Nurturing a Love for Reading

At Murphy Elementary, we're all about nurturing a love for reading right from the start, and we want everyone to enjoy it!

In Ms. Megge's and Mrs. Noeker's second-grade classrooms, they've come up with something pretty cool – the Reading Tent. It's making reading fun, helping their students become enthusiastic readers, and it's open for all to join.

In the Reading Tent, students often team up to read to each other. It's like a mini book club where everyone can join in and have a blast together. Reading with friends makes the whole experience more enjoyable and helps kids get better at discussing stories in a way that's fun and interactive.

The Reading Tent also serves as a space for independent reading. Students are encouraged to select books that pique their interest and spend time reading quietly inside the tent. This practice promotes self-sufficiency and instills a sense of responsibility for their own learning, all while providing a cozy, friendly environment.

The Reading Tents in Ms. Megge's and Mrs. Noeker's second-grade classrooms at Murphy Elementary aren't just any old tents – they are special places where kids can explore and learn together. These teachers are making reading enjoyable for all, and it's helping our young readers grow and learn for a bright and enjoyable future.
