College Rep Visits

In-Person Visits

What is a college rep visit?

A college rep visit is the equivalent of an information session at a university: the representatives explain everything about the school, from campus life to acceptance rates, and answer any questions you might have.

Do:

- Take notes on important information about the college, including financial aid, tuition costs, SAT/ACT scores, etc., as well as other facts that you find personally appealing about the school.

Don't:

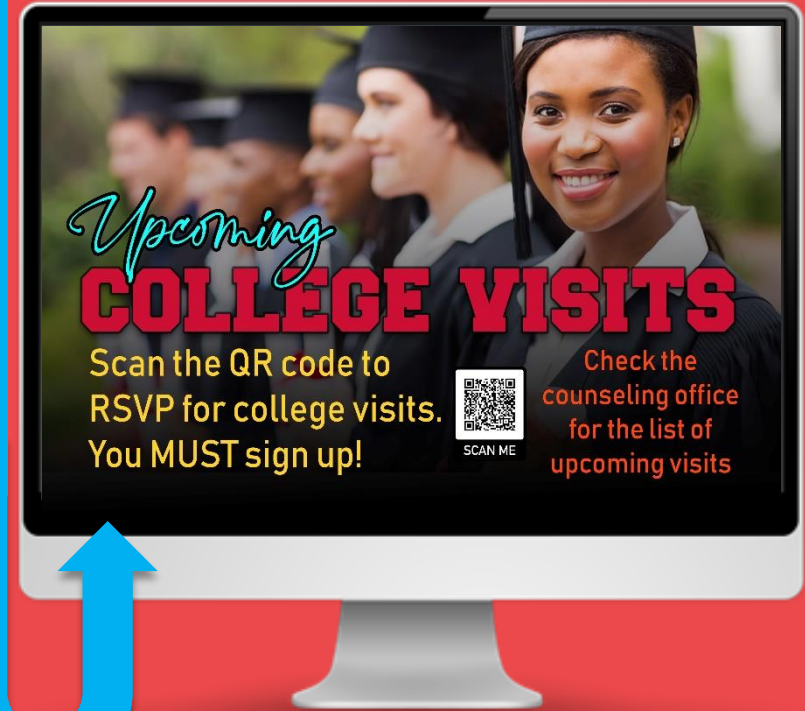

- Attend a visit just because your friends are. The purpose of a college rep visit is to discover what schools you want to go to, not what they want. Stay focused and pay attention.
- Unacceptable dress, behavior or inappropriate comments in the chat can make a bad impression toward the representative. It's important to realize that the representatives are members of the university's administration and consider students that go to their sessions to be potential applicants; thus, a bad impression could affect your chances of getting in.
- Be present and show the representatives that you're eager to learn about what their school has to offer, and in turn, they will be just as willing to answer your questions.

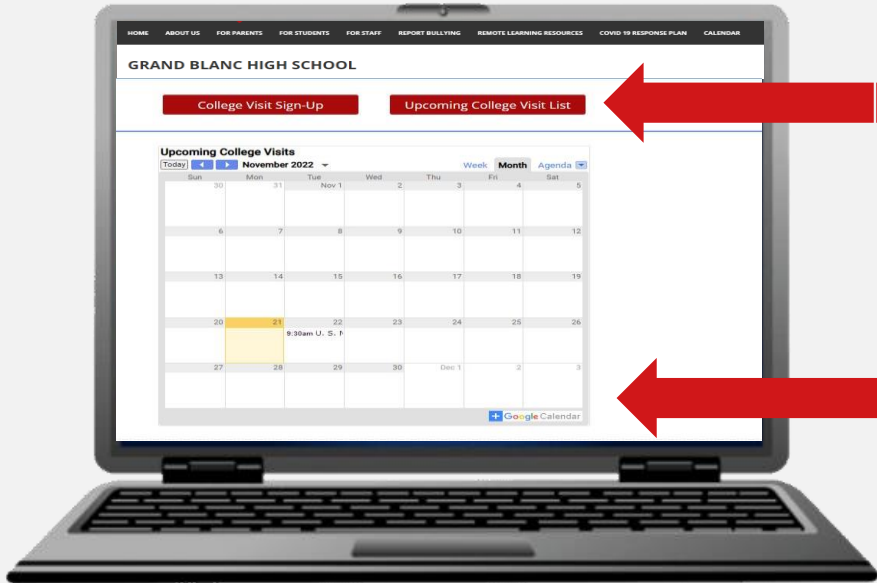

How to sign up for a college visit

College/University meetings are held during one of the class hours. There is a list of upcoming visits, as well as the poster with the QR code to sign up, on the board outside of the counseling office. You must sign up in advance to attend these visits. You can also see the calendar of upcoming visits on the counseling website.

Scan the QR code on the College Visit poster on the board outside of the counseling office. There is a list of upcoming visits posted as well.

Counseling Website—find the list of visits

The counseling website has a list of college visits

Each visit is listed on a flyer on the student page of the counseling website, on the documents tab on the counseling website, on the calendar on the student page of the counseling website, and posted on the board outside the counseling office. They are updated and added frequently, so if you don't see the one you are interested in, be sure to check back!

REMINDERS

Just a reminder...

Reminders of a scheduled college/university visit are sent out via JUPITER the day before the meeting.
