Market Recap

Bond yields took another step down in June, despite generally mixed data, as consumer inflation appeared to cool. The monthly employment report was once again stronger-than-expected, and as a result drove yields to their peak for the month. U.S. businesses added +272k workers in May following a revised +165k April increase, effectively dashing any remaining hope for a July rate cut. The separate household survey was a different story as the total number of employed workers actually fell by -408k, while the overall labor force declined by -250k, pushing the headline unemployment rate up to 4.0% for the first time since January 2022.

The May consumer price index, released the following week on the morning of the Fed's June 12th FOMC meeting, was arguably the most anticipated news of the month. Headline CPI was mercifully unchanged in May, bettering the +0.1% expectation and down from +0.3% in April. Core CPI was up +0.2% after a +0.3% increase in April. On an annual basis, overall CPI edged slightly lower from +3.4% to +3.3%, while core CPI fell from +3.6% to +3.4%. All good. Motor vehicle insurance was still up an ugly +20.3% year-over-year but was actually down -0.3% for the month. The second straight consumer inflation report indicating (slightly) cooler price data sparked a morning rally that drove yields sharply lower.

The June Fed meeting concluded that same afternoon, and committee members took little comfort in the improved CPI reading. Instead, they exercised caution, which reversed much of the post-CPI rally. As expected, the overnight rate target was left unchanged for the seventh straight meeting. The so-called "dot plot," representing the overnight target rate projections of 19 voting and non-voting committee members, was a surprise as the number of expected quarter point cuts for 2024 was lowered from three at the March meeting to just one. Although this recalibration seems to show a more hawkish stance, the reality is there are simply fewer opportunities to ease as the year winds down. Total rate cuts of 100 basis points were forecasted for both next year and 2026. If core inflation were to fall back to the Fed's +2.0% target sooner than expected, the Fed might be incentivized to move more aggressively.

The May retail sales report proved a bit softer than forecast, up just +0.1%. Auto sales made the biggest positive contribution, while gasoline sales were among the categories that fell. But, perhaps the most important news in the report was that restaurant and bar sales took a step back. This seemed to indicate that consumers' discretionary spending capacity may be waning. On a related note, both new and existing home sales fell in May, not due to a lack of demand, but rather continued lean housing supply. As a result, the median sales price climbed to a record $419,300, unaffordable for the average buyer and adding unwelcome pressure to the rental market.

A cautious approach by Fed officials is warranted. Central Bank credibility is at stake. It's still far too early to declare victory in the inflation battle. Labor remains in short supply and housing is scarce. This signals continued pressure on both wages and shelter costs, the two primary drivers of U.S. price pressure.

The European Central Bank (ECB) and the Bank of Canada both cut rates in June. In Canada's case, it might have been premature as the May inflation rate unexpectedly reversed a downside and moved higher. With its patient stance, the Fed hopes to avoid a similar policy misstep.

S&P rates the creditworthiness of individual bonds from: AAA highest to D lowest.

Investing in fixed income securities involves interest rate risk, credit risk, and inflation risk. Interest rate risk is the possibility that bond prices will decrease because of an interest rate increase. When interest rates rise, bond prices and the values of fixed income securities fall. When interest rates fall, bond prices and the values of fixed income securities rise. Credit risk is the risk that a company will not be able to pay its debts, including the interest on its bonds. Inflation risk is the possibility that the interest paid on an investment in bonds will be lower than the inflation rate, decreasing purchasing power.

Cash alternatives typically include money market securities and U.S. treasury bills. Investing in such cash alternatives involves inflation risk. In addition, investments in money market securities may involve credit risk and a risk of principal loss. Because money market securities are neither insured nor guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency, there is no guarantee the value of your investment will be maintained at $1.00 per share, and your shares, when sold, may be worth more or less than what you originally paid for them. U.S. Treasury bills are subject to market risk if sold prior to maturity. Market risk is the possibility that the value, when sold, might be less than the purchase price.

Investing in stock securities involves volatility risk, market risk, business risk, and industry risk. The prices of most stocks fluctuate. Volatility risk is the chance that the value of a stock will fall. Market risk is the chance that the prices of all stocks will fall due to conditions in the economic environment. Business risk is the chance that a specific company's stock will fall because of issues affecting it. Industry risk is the chance that a set of factors particular to an industry group will adversely affect stock prices within the industry.
