

Strong Skills start for GLTHS

The Lowell Sun

UPDATED: 01/21/2018 06:35:52 AM EST

TYNGSBORO -- The Greater Lowell Technical High School SkillsUSA chapter officers attended the recent Massachusetts State Leadership Conference for Workplace Readiness held at the Best Western Royal Plaza and Trade Center in Marlboro.

The annual event of more than 400 student officers from around the state focuses on leadership development, service orientation and teamwork skills. The Greater Lowell Tech delegation represented the school well, bringing home multiple awards and honors.

- Nicole Helms, a senior from Tyngsboro, earned a State Leader Award, a proactive award, a service-project safety award, and bronze medals in Community Service and team quality.
- Anthony Milisci, a junior from Lowell, earned a State Leader Award, and a gold medal for team quality.
- Maggie Acosta, a junior from Lowell, earned a State Leader Award, a proactive award, a service-project safety award, and a silver medal for team quality.
- Evan Blatus, a junior from Dracut, earned his second State Leader Award, was a top finisher in Leadership training, and earned a team-quality achievement award.
- Lyralee Ayala, a senior from Lowell, earned a State Leader Award, a proactive award, a gold medal in Community Service, and a team-quality achievement award.
- Alyandra Ramos, a senior from Lowell, earned a State Leader Award, was a top finisher in Leadership Training, and earned a gold medal in team quality.
- Kylie Lambert, a senior from Dracut, earned a State Leader Award, served as mayor of the community construction team, and earned a fifth place in team quality.