TYNGSBORO -- Greater Lowell Technical High School hosted an open house recently for interested eighth-grade students and their families.

The event provided an opportunity to demonstrate the unique 21st century "2 educations in 1" college and career education that students receive at Greater Lowell Tech.

It also allowed parents to meet instructors, visit and interact with the 23 technical programs, learn about many athletics, clubs, activities and the admissions process, and apply on site.

During the month of December, Greater Lowell Tech eighth-graders from all district middle schools to tour the campus and facilities and to learn more about the programs offered, including the new Advanced Placement and Dual Enrollment programs.
