TYNGSBORO -- Kenny Dela Cruz, a junior in the Carpentry program at Greater Lowell Technical High School, has been selected to represent Lowell as a National Youth Delegate to the 2017 Washington Youth Summit on the Environment at George Mason University.

Dela Cruz joins a select group of 250 students from across the country to participate in an intensive, weeklong study of leadership in environmental science and conservation. Dela Cruz was chosen based on academic accomplishments and a demonstrated interest and excellence in leadership in the sciences and conservation studies.

The Washington Youth Summit on the Environment is a unique student-leadership conference designed to develop and encourage future leaders in the important fields of environmental studies and conservation in the 21st century. Members include world-renowned scholars, distinguished scientists and award-winning university faculty members.
