

GLTHS gave Tully spark he needed

The Lowell Sun

UPDATED: 02/12/2017 06:36:49 AM EST

TYNGSBORO -- David Edward Tully III, a 2007 graduate of the Electrical program at Greater Lowell Technical High School, said the school gave him the skills needed to enter the electrical field.

"Being a student in the Electrical program, I felt like I was ahead of many people starting in the trade who didn't get the hands-on training," Tully said.

He credits his instructor for sharing his knowledge and experience, inspiring him to pursue a career as an electrician.

After high school, Tully returned to Greater Lowell Tech for its Adult Education program to complete the necessary hours required to obtain his journeyman license.

Tully started working as an apprentice in 2007 and in June 2011, he received his journeyman license, his "proudest moment." In April 2012, he was promoted to project superintendent, and has been in charge of many projects since that time. GLTHS assisted him in lining up an interview for the job he currently holds today.

David Edward Tully III is a successful graduate of Greater Lowell Tech's Electrical program. COURTESY PHOTO

Sun staff photos can be ordered by visiting our SmugMug site.