

Greater Lowell Tech grad is pastry chef at a San Francisco restaurant

The Lowell Sun

UPDATED: 09/25/2016 06:37:22 AM EDT

TYNGSBORO -- Kimberly Conroy had a plan. She knew she wanted to study culinary arts -- not just in high school but also in college.

With that goal in mind, Conroy embraced the opportunity she was given at Greater Lowell Technical High School to pursue her goals.

As a Culinary Arts student, the 2009 graduate began to blossom. She was able to use her creative abilities to her advantage in baking and pastry arts. As early as her junior year, she was offering suggestions for flavor pairings as well as plate designs to be featured on the menu at The Artisan, Greater Lowell Tech's in-school restaurant.

Conroy also participated in culinary competitions, some of which earned her scholarship money. In the competitions, she was required to create and produce original menu items.

While at Greater Lowell Tech, she participated in the school's Cooperative Education program, attaining a position at Banq, a well-known Boston restaurant. After graduating, she attended Johnson and Wales University in Providence, R.I., where she

Greater Lowell Tech 2016 graduate Kimberly Conroy is a pastry chef in San Francisco under Dominick Crenn, the "World's Best Female Chef 2016." COURTESY PHOTO

Sun staff photos can be ordered by visiting our