Important Information for the Residents of Lower Dauphin School District

Superintendent Message

Being superintendent of schools can be incredibly rewarding. There are very few jobs where you have a front row seat to see the future being shaped right before your eyes.

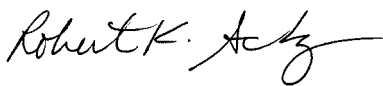

We have amazing students in our schools and I hope you are as proud of them as I am. This newsletter contains stories about how our students are working to make Lower Dauphin a better place through acts of kindness, giving to others, and sharing their talents and abilities with others.

“All of our district stakeholders want what’s best for our students.”

It is also my pleasure to share the new hires we’ve made to start the school year and to share information about new administrative roles – some through new hires and some via transfer from within the district. I have confidence they will serve our students and community well for many years to come. All of our district stakeholders want what’s best for our students and that’s a key attribute we look for in hiring new staff.

I feel blessed to lead this school district and help plot its future course. It’s my promise that we will continue this district’s proud traditions as we move ahead, ensuring a bright future for our community.

Sincerely,

Robert K. Schultz, Ed.D.
Superintendent

District begins work on Comprehensive Plan

A committee of school staff, students, parents and community members has begun meeting to chart the future direction of the Lower Dauphin School District.

The district’s existing plan is an extension of a plan first adopted by the school board in 2012 with a midpoint update approved in 2015. That plan laid the groundwork for moving toward a 21st Century Learning Environment.

Under the leadership of Superintendent Robert Schultz, the new plan will assess the district’s strengths and areas needing improvement. State requirements require that the plan use a web-based framework which is expected to deliver thoughtful data-driven and research-based planning. The district plan will then be available for public inspection via the state Department of Education website. The new plan will also need to be approved by the school board in order for it to be able to be uploaded into a yet-to-be unveiled state website in March.

To date, the district committee has worked to develop a set of common values to guide the creation of vision and mission statements. Those values stem from the Lower Dauphin among districts feeling bus driver shortage

The number of licensed school bus drivers in Pennsylvania has declined in recent years. – since 2013, licensed school bus drivers have dropped from a high of 46,000 to 44,000.

Lower Dauphin is not alone in feeling the pinch of this lack of licensed school bus drivers – this summer the district worked with its transportation contractor, Rohrer Bus Services, to consolidate bus runs.

fact that Lower Dauphin is a caring community that wants its students to be “future ready” and exhibiting the Falcon PRIDE traits of perseverance, respect, integrity, discipline and excellence. In addition to setting a mission and vision for the district, the plan will set the goals and objectives through the 2022-23 school year.

Bus driver shortage

As a result, five buses were eliminated from the roster.

And yet, even with that reduction of five buses, Rohrer was short four drivers who had to be covered with substitutes from other school districts or from the Rohrer corporate office.

“This isn’t a unique problem,” said Superintendent Robert Schultz. “It’s a conversation I’m having with a lot of superintendents in surrounding school districts who are encountering the same difficulties.”

What this means is the district experiences inconsistency in the experience for our students. They may not have the same driver with whom they started the school year.

“The bus driver is the first and last face many of our students see,” Dr. Schultz said. “You cannot understate how important that can be. It sets the tone for a student’s school day and can impact their evening at home.”

Additionally, with the consolidation of bus runs, many students’ bus stops changed and the length of some students’ bus rides changed. These changes have compounded the difficulties on some bus runs.

“Busing has been challenging this year,” Dr. Schultz said. “It seems like an easy thing, but a transportation system for close to 4,000 students covering 90 square miles and picking up and delivering to more than 50 schools has become incredibly complex with the shortage of drivers. We appreciate the understanding and patience of our families as we continue to work to deliver the service they expect and deserve.”

“Any goals in the plan need to be specific, measurable, attainable, relevant and time-bound,” Dr. Schultz said. “And based on the early work on values, we want to focus on academic goals, preparing students for the future and continuing to provide a supportive environment.”

To that end, the committee will pursue the following goals:

- To increase the percentage of students proficient or advanced in math at all buildings by 5.4 percent when comparing 2018 state test scores with those from 2023.
- To increase the percentage of students proficient or advanced in English/language arts at all buildings by 4.5 percent when comparing 2018 state test scores with those from 2023.
- To develop a board-approved school counseling plan which includes career- and college-readiness activities which will be completed by 93 percent of students.
- To use surveys of students, school staff, parents and community members to evaluate current safe and supportive schools initiatives and improve and enhance efforts in identified areas.

The next step for the plan will be the development of action steps to implement the broad goals outlined above and the creation of a separate committee will continue to refine and develop mission and vision documents.

“We want to provide the best educational experience for our students and to do that, we need to know what that will look like,” Dr. Schultz said. “This plan will serve as our guide to continue to produce the quality graduates our community expects of us.”

Firefighters teach students important lessons

Firefighters from across Lower Dauphin visited elementary schools to talk about fire safety.

Cafeteria manager wins major award

Bonnie Sheffer, cafeteria manager at Conewago Elementary School, recently won the Mid-Atlantic Region Hourly Associate of the Year award from Chartwells.

Chartwells, and its parent company, Compass Group, is the outside company which manages Lower Dauphin's cafeteria and food services.

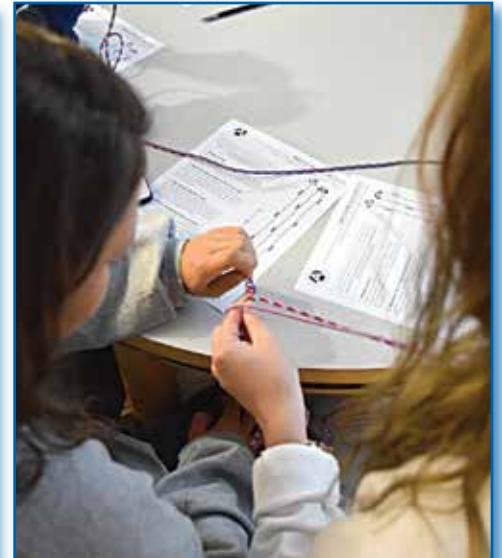

"Bonnie has done an amazing job for us at Conewago for many years," said Brad Mettle, Chartwells food services director. "This award is well-deserved."

Mrs. Sheffer was chosen from 96 school districts which contract with Chartwells in the Mid-Atlantic Region.

"The children like her and so do the staff. She goes above and beyond to meet all of the needs of the students as well as the teachers and other staff in the building," said third-grade teacher Krisann Morgan. "It is completely evident that she takes pride in her job and is not only a good cook but a good leader as well. She deserves so much more than just an award, but it would be a wonderful place to start with to express our thanks for all she has done and continues to do for Conewago."

Chick-Fil-A Leadership Academy starts fourth year

Thirty Lower Dauphin High School juniors made a commitment to learn about leadership and then demonstrate what they've learned in a program sponsored by Chick Fil-A restaurants.

The Chick Fil-A Leadership Academy is in its fourth year at the high school and saw a record number of students apply to participate this fall. At the academy's kickoff meeting, Harrisburg restaurant owner Brad Burkholder told the students to "have fun, practice leadership and have an impact on our community."

Students participating in the program include Sophia Alterio, Natalie Bennett, Rachel Blessing, Cassidy Burton, Josalyn Byers, Olivia Carnes, Alexandra Cassel, Grace Craig, Abigaile English, Caleb Gibbs, Travis Hershey, Lauren Hunter, Abby Lauer, McKenna LaDuke, Abigail Lennox, Mya Macfarlane, Rachael Miller, Mackenzie Mowery, Deyanery Rodriguez, Janie Rost, Valentina Scottodicarlo, Sebastian Salinas, Elijah Sells, James Taylor, Emma Walt, Bridget Wappman, Emily Wealand, Lillie Weaver, Katherine Weigle, and Halie Woodring.

At their first meeting, the students created bracelets and cards for veterans at the Lebanon VA Hospital. Other plans for the year include a service project to help animals, possibly in partnership with the Humane Society, and an impact project which is still being developed. Previous groups' impact projects included a community day for service members and area first-responders, a field day for students with special needs, and a recognition breakfast for school bus drivers.

"You're going to be engaged. You're going to be challenged. You're going to be stretched," Burkholder told the students at the kick-off meeting. "That's how growth happens!"

Fifty Lower Dauphin athletes competed in the annual Fall Special Olympics at East Pennsboro High School.

Special student-athletes perform at fall games

Fifty student-athletes from Lower Dauphin competed at the Special Olympic's fall games at East Pennsboro High School in October.

Phineas Howarth, a student from South Hanover Elementary School, was all smiles as he competed in the long jump. He'd been practicing at school before the games and that practice paid off, getting high fives from all the buddies who were with him. And judging from the excitement of his buddies, they may have been more proud of his jump than he was.

"I love hanging out and talking with the athletes," said Phineas' buddy Matthew Giampetro. "I just want to help him have a good time and encourage him to perform well."

Phineas' other buddy Max Klingensmith agreed. "I enjoy helping kids that need it and helping them with their athletics is even more fun!"

During the games, students competed in track and field events and enjoyed spending time with their high school buddies. Students also compete in winter games involving skiing and ice skating. In the spring, the entire region gathers at Messiah College for the Area M games which includes track & field events and swimming. Those games are qualifying games for advanced competitions.

"This is a great event for our special athletes and our buddies," said Justin Hanula, high school principal. "Everyone comes away from this day with smiles on their faces and pride in a job well done."

Ferguson sings at nationals

Lower Dauphin High School senior Aidan Ferguson performed November 9 as a member of the 2019 All-National Honor Mixed Choir in Orlando, Fla.

Aidan, a bass singer, earned his spot at the all-national honor festival after performing in various honor choirs last year, including PMEA District 7, PMEA Region 5, the PMEA all-state festival and in the All-Eastern festival hosted by the National Association for Music Education.

NAfME also hosts the all-national honor festival. The all-national honor ensemble performers represent collaboration and creativity in its highest musical form. The all-national honor ensembles consist of a concert band, symphony orchestra, mixed choir, jazz ensemble, guitar ensemble, and modern band. Students were chosen through an audition process.

Aidan was one of 240 vocalists in the mixed choir where he rehearsed a challenging repertoire in preparation for performing under the direction of prominent conductor Tesfa Wondemagegnehu, who serves as the conductor of the Viking Chorus and the Chapel Choir at St. Olaf College.

At Lower Dauphin, Aidan is a member of the Chamber Singers under the direction of Elizabeth Colpo and also performs in the Men's A Cappella.

Fourth-graders at Nye spread kindness

Chase DeHart and Evan Ketty help spread kindness at the start of the school year at Nye Elementary School.

Colorful dots appeared on classroom and office doors at Nye Elementary School at the start of the school year – the culminating activity of a story fourth-graders read in class.

The story the students read was “Mr. Peabody’s Apples,” a book about the value of truth, the pain that can come from a false rumor, and how important it is to choose words carefully. After reading the story, the classes discussed the story.

“One of the things we talked about is how words can also have the opposite effect and kind words can create more kindness,” said fourth-grade teacher Tricia Mosner. “We brainstormed a list of people at Nye that we could share kind words with and got to work spreading kindness.”

That work of spreading kindness took the form of “Kindness Confetti” which fourth-graders taped to doors throughout the school.

For example, Lydia thanked art teacher Christine Atkinson for being “super kind because you help me when I don’t know what to do.” Noah expressed his appreciation for school reading specialist Kaylee Keener for being a “great reader.”

“One kind word can make a difference to somebody,” explained fourth-grader Evan Ketty. “They would feel good and say something nice to somebody else. Kindness can spread quickly.”

Sophia Ditty takes the oath of office administered by board Secretary Sharon Hagy.

Ditty joins McQuinn on school board

The Lower Dauphin Board of School Directors appointed high school junior Sophia Ditty to serve as Associate Student School Board Representative.

Sophia is the daughter of Lisa and David Ditty. She performs with the Chamber Singers and has acted in the spring musical and Dramapalooza. She is the communications officer for Class Council. She is also a member of the Science National Honor Society, Math Honor Society, History Honor Society, Spanish Honor Society and Tri-M Music Honor Society. She is involved in her church youth choir and participated in mission projects. Her future plans include attending college with the goal of attending law school. She will serve beside high school senior Emma McQuinn, who returns for a second year as student school board representative.

Emma is the daughter of Mary and Scott McQuinn. She sings in the Chamber Choir and auditioned to be part of the PMEA District and Regional choirs. She participates in the spring musical and fall play. She is a member of the National Honor Society, National English Honor Society, Science National Honor Society, Latin Honor Society, Believers in the Gospel Club and Youth and Government Club, where she is president of the judicial branch. She is president of the Class of 2020 and of the Tri-M Music Honor Society. She is a member of the praise band at her church, and she volunteers at Relay for Life and at the Middletown Home. She plans to attend college with the goal of becoming a dermatologist.

Three Mile Island presents check to LD CTC

Representatives from Lower Dauphin Communities That Care accepted a check from Three Mile Island to support preschool literacy programs.

In August, Three Mile Island Site Vice President Ed Callan presented a $10,000 donation to support the LD CTC Books on Board bookmobile.

The donation represents the 13th contribution from Three Mile Island to LD CTC to support the bookmobile and other preschool literacy programs. Since 2007, TMI has donated $187,500 to Communities That Care.

The donation is presumably the final one as the plant stopped generating electricity in September and efforts are underway to decommission the plant.

“Three Mile Island has been an important partner for us,” said Jim Hazen, LD CTC executive director. “Their annual donation represents 10 percent of our operating budget and the presumed loss of that funding will be a major blow to our organization.”

The LD CTC bookmobile delivers books and reading activities across the Lower Dauphin School District. In 2018-19, it traveled 4,000 miles and delivered 5,057 books to 2,437 patrons. Working in partnership with Mr. Bob’s Subway, 145 students received prizes for completing the summer reading program, “Reading is my Super Power.”

In addition to the bookmobile, LD CTC mailed 786 books to preschoolers ages 1-4 on their birthdays to promote reading.

“TMI’s steadfast support of our bookmobile and literacy programs means that a generation of students has been exposed to books at a very early age which helps set the stage for success in school,” Hazen said.

Seven assume administrative roles with Lower Dauphin

Lower Dauphin has named seven individuals to administrative positions in the district.

Vincent Crone was a member of the district's maintenance team before becoming a maintenance supervisor. Prior to coming to Lower Dauphin he was self-employed and worked at the state Department of General Services. A Lower Dauphin graduate, he was an apprentice with the Sheet Metal Workers International Association.

Joining him in the operations department is Timothy Bigler who will be the grounds and custodial supervisor. Mr. Bigler was a self-employed contractor and a construction superintendent before coming to Lower Dauphin. He holds a master carpentry certificate from Lancaster County Career and Technical Center.

In July, Dr. David Wuestner transferred from the high school to Conewago Elementary School as principal. He had served as a high school assistant principal for 16 years before moving to Conewago Elementary School this July as the principal. He holds a bachelor's degree from Cedarville College, a master's in teaching and curriculum from Penn State University and a doctorate in educational leadership from Immaculata University.

Replacing him at the high school is Jared Wastler who comes to the high school after three years as a high school principal at Dover Area High School. He was also an assistant principal and social studies teacher in Carroll County Public Schools in Maryland. He earned his bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland and his master's in educational administration from McDaniel College.

Kenneth Kulina transferred from the middle school to the high school as dean of students. He had been the dean of students at the middle school for 10 years and transferred to a new position at the high school in the fall. Prior to being dean of students at the middle school, he taught social studies at the middle school since 1996. He holds a bachelor's degree from Penn State University and an associate's degree from South Georgia College.

Replacing Mr. Kulina at the middle school is Karli Hatten who has been a classroom teacher at Londonderry Elementary School for the past 12 years. She earned her bachelor's degree from Penn State University and holds a master's degree from Wilkes University.

Finally, Lindsay Adams moves from the kindergarten classroom at Nye Elementary School to the principal's office at East Hanover Elementary School. She earned her bachelor's degree in elementary education from Robery Morris University and a master's degree from Penn State where she also earned her principal certification. She has been a teacher at Lower Dauphin for 13 years in grades 5, 3 and kindergarten.
