Dear Colleagues,

Your students have the opportunity to graduate from Johns Hopkins University debt-free.

This time last year, Hopkins officially became need-blind for domestic students, including those with DACA or undocumented status. This means we are able to fund 100% of a family's financial need through a combination of grants and work study, not loans.

We believe that the most academically curious students should have access to the opportunities, resources, and intellectual community where groundbreaking ideas are created—regardless of their financial circumstances.

These changes will afford Hopkins undergraduates the freedom to boldly explore their passions, see where their curiosity leads them, and find new ways to apply their knowledge. This freedom is what has enabled our students to change lives and impact the world for more than 140 years.

We realize your best and brightest students have many great options during their college search. We hope our expanded financial aid commitment will help you identify new students who may thrive here.

We are so thankful for your partnership. Please don't hesitate to reach out to us at counselors@jhu.edu if you have any questions.

Sincerely,
