Design principles are value statements that can help the community frame what matters and inform the tough decisions Pittsburgh Public Schools must make related to the strategic allocation of resources to ensure equity, excellence, and efficiency. The Superintendent's leadership team drafted Design Principles in four areas to frame potential decisions based on best practices.

Superintendent Wayne Walters shared the draft design principles with the Board of Directors at the March 7 Education Committee Meeting for their feedback. Dr. Walters now would like the input of the entire Pittsburgh Public Schools community. Visit pghschools.org/designprinciples to learn more, take the survey, or sign up for a focus group.
