This Page Is Dedicated To Mr. Mario DeMatteis

who demonstrates the quality of leadership that our school needs.

Some leaders are made, others are born. All of them go through vigorous training much of which they seek themselves. In high school, for example, they give extra effort that leads them into debate, drama, speech, music, academic excellence, and competitive sports of all kinds. These activities also develop leadership talents. But first comes the will to give more of yourself, the will to give the extra effort that lifts you out of the crowd. Throughout high school, choose to pursue academic excellence, participate in extra activities and give them all you've got. From that kind of effort comes tomorrow's leaders.

Homecoming '74

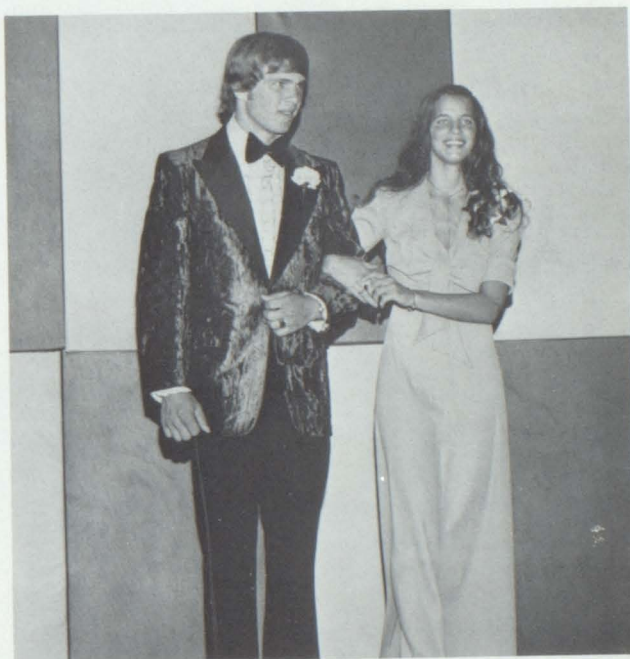

The kickoff of the girls' powder puff started the 1974 Homecoming events. On Thursday night Murray Auger and Gale Friendshuh were crowned king and queen. Following the coronation there was a pep fest and Queen Gale lit the bonfire. The theme for the parade was the "Roaring Twenties". The sophomore float won first place with their "Movies of the 20's" slogan. The homecoming dance was Friday night; The Trave'In Blind played. The gym was decorated with a fall atmosphere.

Homecoming Skits

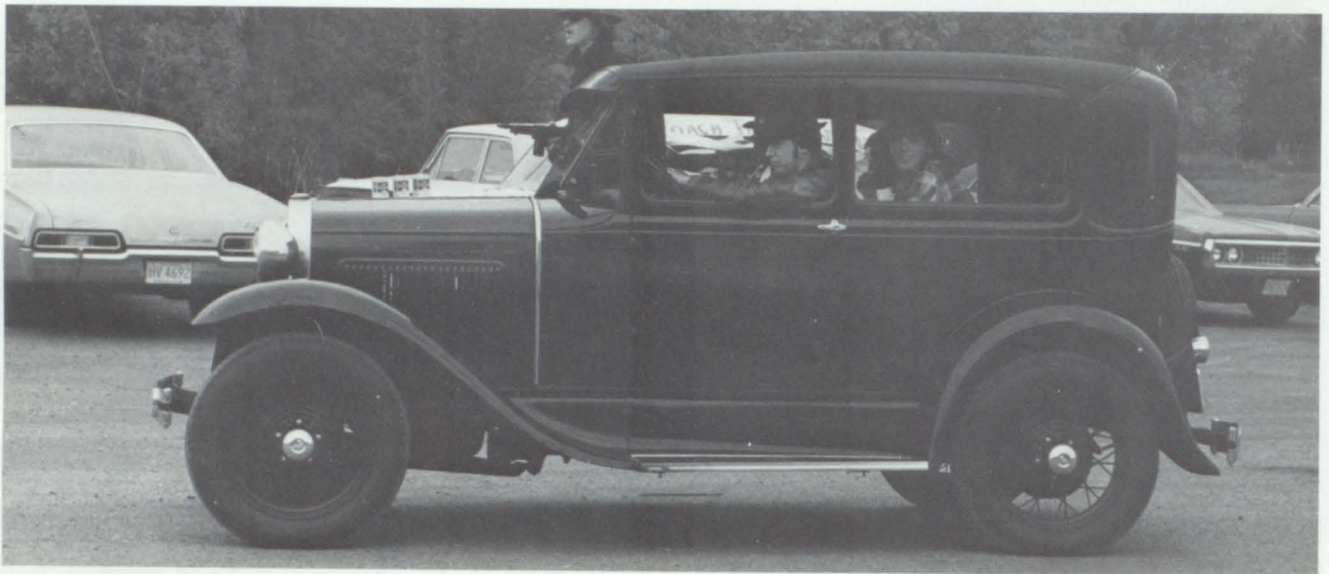

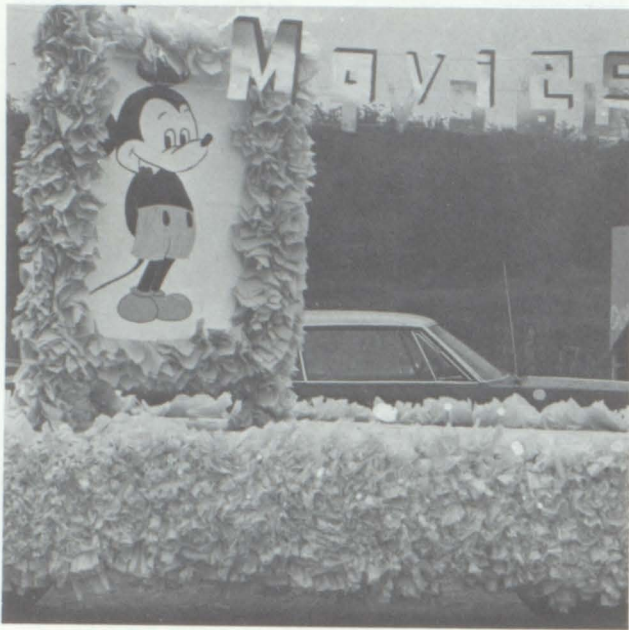

"THOSE WERE THE GOOD OLD DAYS," Nancy Leuer and Pat Adkins reminisce.

"If I wasn't a cheerleader, a farmer, pickup, vampire, or counselor I'd be."

"But Harold, he wants to bring a GIRL to the dance." (Joan Bruner and Scott Ellingson discuss son, Doug Zahler.)

"Excuse me miss...Please don't squeeze the charmin." Scott Ellingson interviews various senior class members about important issues of our day. Every answer to his question came out in a commercial jingle. The class of '75 are true entertainers, illustrated by their original skit.

Adaptation

Adaptation, by Elaine May, was presented by the STMA Masquerers Nov. 8 and 9. The play revolves around one man who plays the game of life. He can reach the security square anytime he wants to, but chooses to go on. He ends up having a heart attack. The announcer is the manipulator in the game; he can move the other players as he chooses. The stage was set up as a checkerboard; the players were moved as set pieces. Various scenes took place in different areas of the checkerboard using colored blocks.

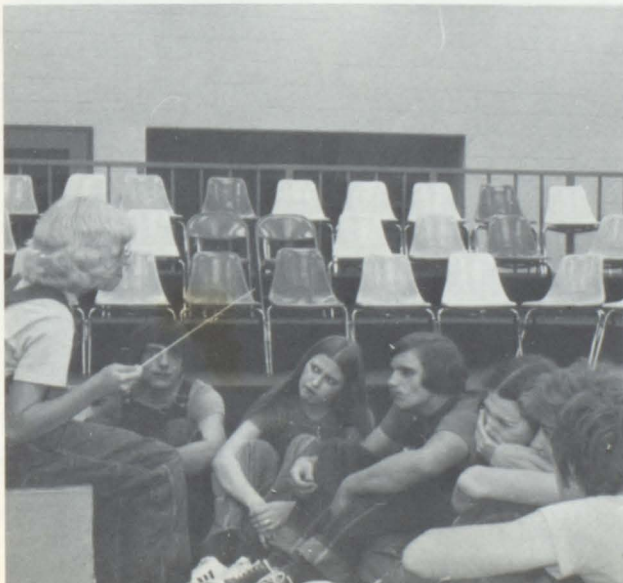

"Happy birthday dear Phil."

"Which way ya going."

"Remember, a polite protest is a lot more effective than a rowdy one."

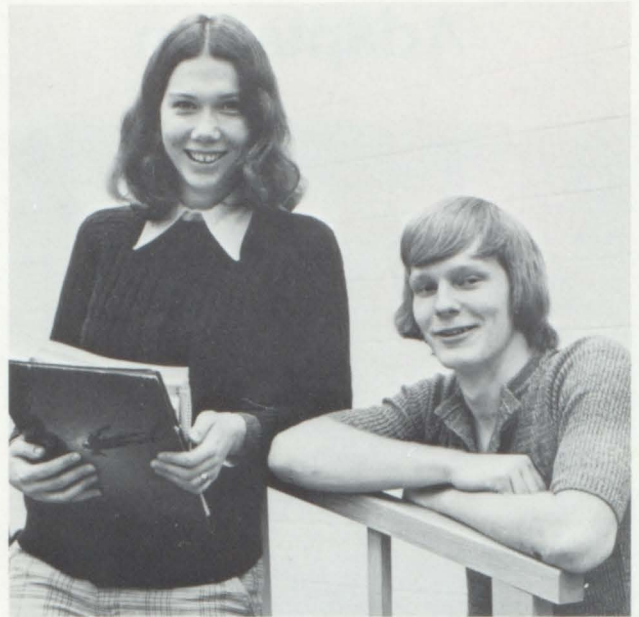

"I'll take care of you mom."

Besides the memories of the Knights' 1974 season, Joe Marx will carry something extra with him when he graduates. He will not only take with him two years' worth of All-Conference honors (last year The Great River Conference and this year in the Wright Country), but also Joe was named to the November 21 WCCO Radio All-State Team of the Week on that station's prep parade program. The honor that probably is the most prestigious of his awards is his being named WCC Lineman of the Year by the 10 coaches in the conference. He was also named STMA's Most Valuable Player by the vote of his teammates.

STMA probably had one of the best kicking corps it has ever had, let by placekicker Loren Vetsch and punter Joe Marx, who took over for the injured Dave Schumacher. Among the accomplishments of this group is Loren Vetsch kicking a 39 yard field goal, the first in the school history. After this achievement, Loren was named the Star of the Week by The Minneapolis Star. Joe Marx, filling in for the injured Dave Schumacher, punted for a 34.7 yard average with his longest being 55 yards.

Seniors

The Dassel-Cokato game had special significance to the 12 members of the Knights. For these 12 it was the last football game of their high school career. These seniors were: Greg Eull, Murray Auger, Earl Dehmer, Carl Eull, Bill Aydt, Dan Lenz, Jerry Lindenfelser, Loren Vetsch, Joe Marx, Doug Zahler, Chuck Eull, and Mike Charmoli. These seniors provided a steady base for the team all year led by co-captains Joe Marx and Dan Lenz. Marx and Earl Dehmer also received All-Conference selections. Carl Eull was voted most improved player. Tri-captains for next year will be Dave Schumacher, Gregg Barbeln, and Keith Kornovich.

Wargames

The war goes on and on and on throughout the year. This year's wargames club is very busy with activities ranging from a full bulletin board mock world war to a Panzer Tournament with trophies to the match winners. (When someone said war is (expletive deletian) he was right).

Rocket Club

On its first year of existence the Knight Flyers really "took off" when it came to model rockets. The idea of the formation of such a club started when several students suggested to Mr. Ketel that such an organization had educational possibilities and could also lead to having a good time. So the club was formed having many launches including several during lunch hour allowing students a close look at a real rocket launch.

Coach Dave McKibbin

"If I hit the ball in the stream twice do I add four strokes?" "Yes, and if you don't get it across this time let the men play through." This is the second year that the STMA girls' golf team has attempted the Monticello golf course and their improvement is almost unbelievable. All along the course the girls chatter gaily. Half-way to the green someone asks, "should I use my putter yet?" "On the ninth hole, "Hurry up, the sun's going to set in ten minutes." and after that last ball clunks into the sunset, "Hey, this isn't the ball I started with." The girls met their first tragedy when a set of clubs were left outside overnight and were reported missing the next morning. Tears were transformed into chuckles however, when Merle entered the office after a stroll on the roof with the entire set in hand. Despite these few technicalities, ask any of these 7 girls what their favorite sport is and you will hear an emphatic, "Golf!"

Teacher

When Jerry Flahaven opened his classroom door at 8 a.m. on Tuesday, Dec. 3 at STMA, he released a birthday greeting he is going to remember for a long time. His grammar students had stuffed his classroom with 25,000 inflated balloons. The balloons were donated after students appealed to the MINNEAPOLIS STAR TRIBUNE'S COLUMN ONE for help.

It took 50 hours, using three air compressors, to blow up all the balloons, as told by Murray Auger, ringleader of the project. "We got pretty raw fingers from tying all those balloons," Murray said.

The students had been at work off and on since Friday blowing up balloons in a study-hall room near Flahaven's classroom. After Flahaven left school about 11 p.m. Monday after a parent-teacher meeting, the students moved the balloons on an assembly line to Flahaven's classroom, finishing about 2 a.m.

The students were waiting for Mr. Flahaven as usual at 7:30 a.m. when he opened the door the balloons came tumbling down. "There are not too many surprised that can top this," he said. "I'm kind of up in the air about the whole thing. I couldn't believe that nine kids could blow up 25,000 balloons. The project really inflated my ego," he said.

What did they do with all those balloons after the surprise? Murray said school officials "turned the seniors loose on them" with pins the last hour of school. "It sounded like a giant pop-corn popper," Murray said.

Why was Mr. Flahaven worth the trouble?

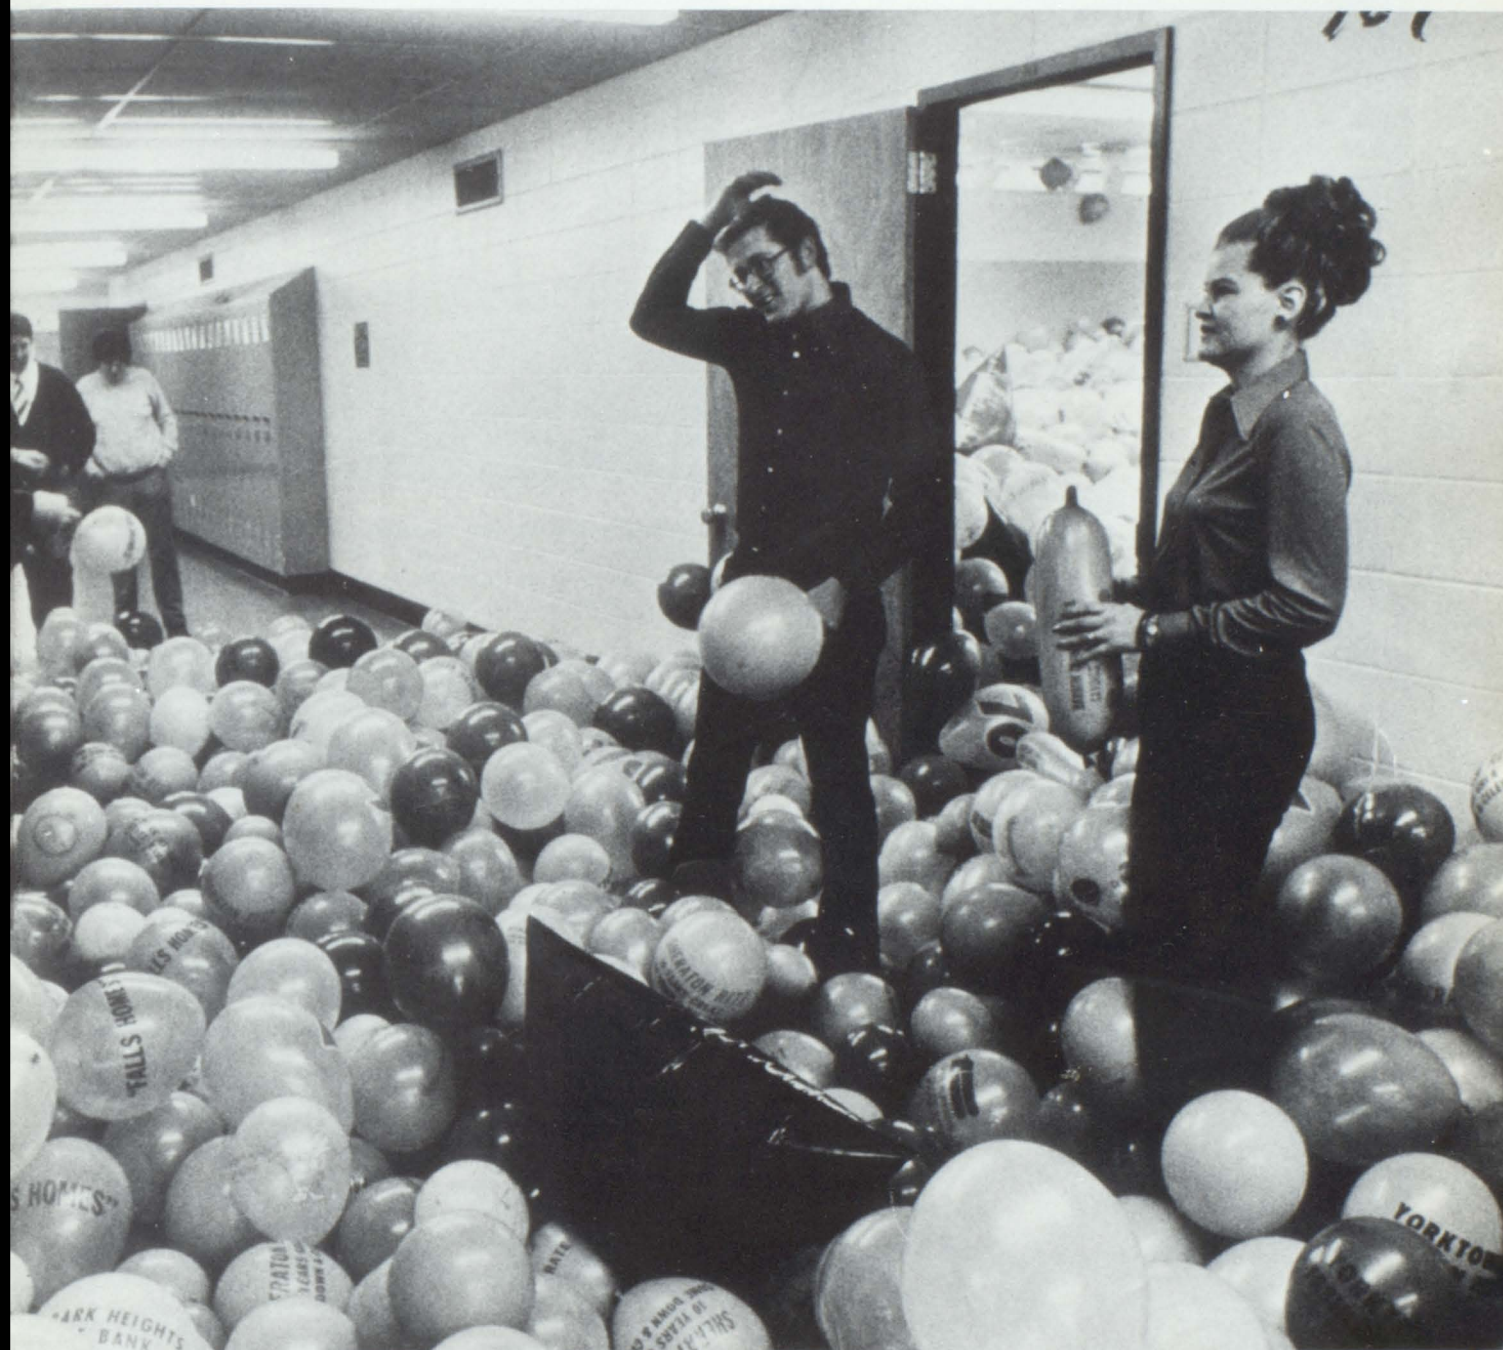

They said, "He's a good teacher. We really learned grammar. He's someone you can talk to. He'll chaperone anything."

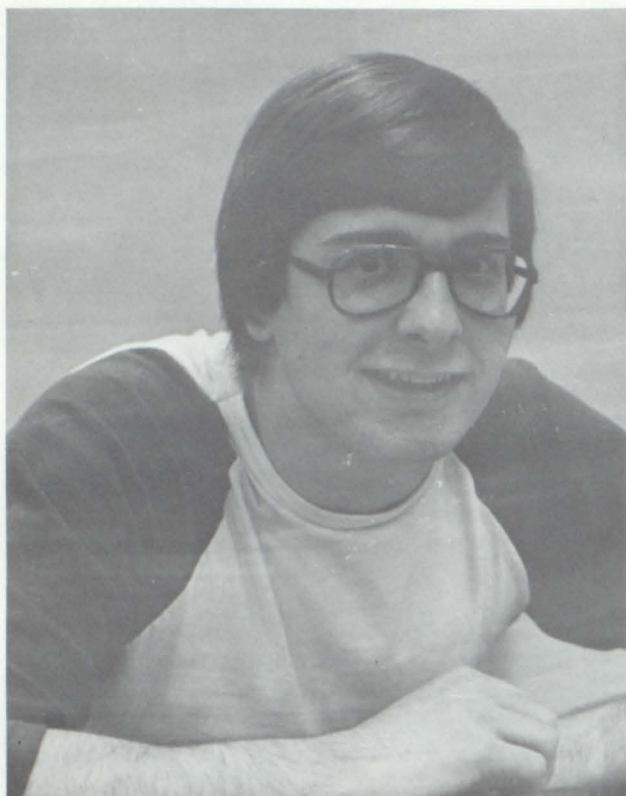

"We want him to remember us." We think he will.

(This story was taken from the MINNEAPOLIS STAR, Wed. December 4, 1974.)

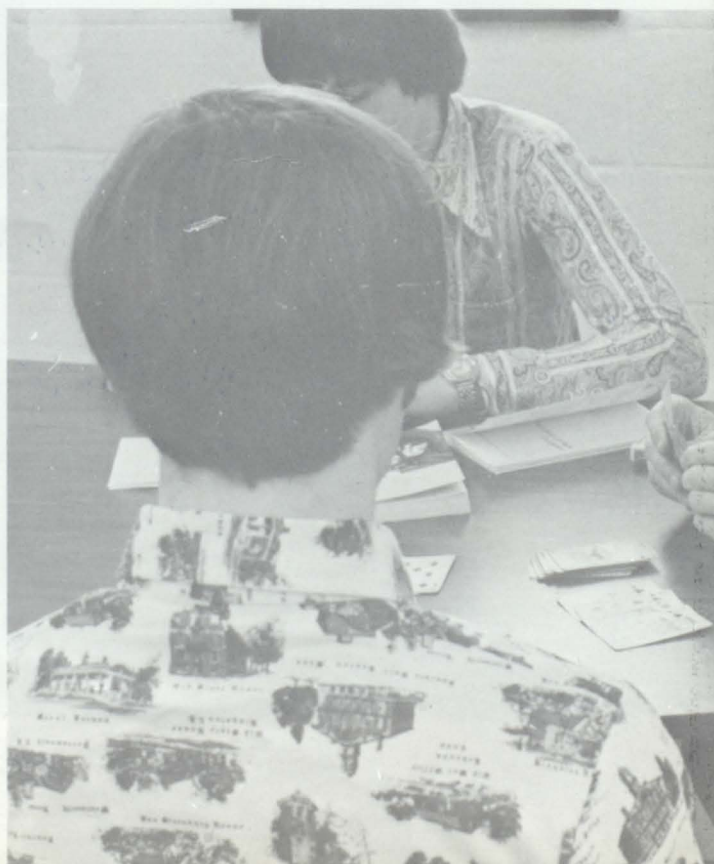

Unlocks Door On Secret Of Inflation

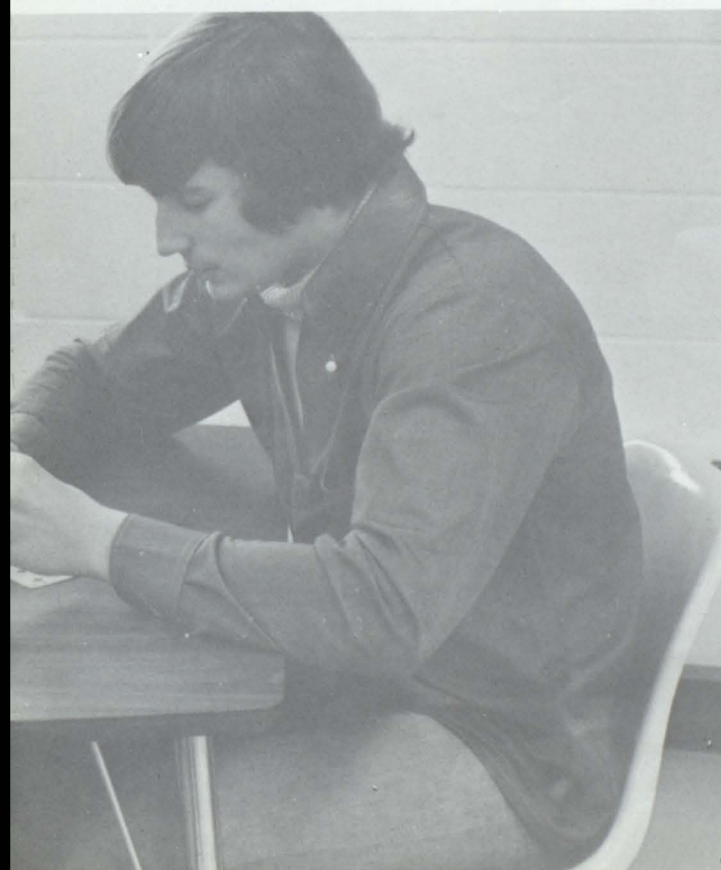

This is a poem for you because you are my friend.
Sometimes I'm not the best person, but don't judge me for that. Help me to be better. If I do something that you may not do, don't think bad of me, for I am not you. But still. Help me to know your friendship. And help me to know myself.

Stop Looking at Me!

She said to smile pretty!

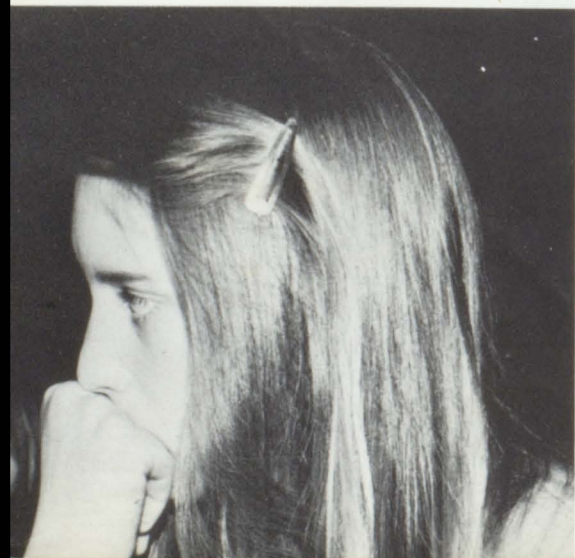

(LEFT) It isn't even
my birthday!

(RIGHT) We're too
shy!

(Mike Dick) "Isn't she wonderful?"
Don't you dare take that picture! (BELOW)

I wonder where he is.
