

AP Human Geography

Scope and Sequence 2024-2025

Course Description: Human Geography is about making connections through the study of patterns and processes which shape human understanding, use, and modification of the Earth's surface. In today's world where places are increasingly interdependent, it is important to have an understanding of how events in one region of the world can have a major impact on events in other regions. Human Geography provides a framework to understand how this world is spatially organized and interdependent. In this rigorous course, students will develop a sophisticated view of the world enabling them to use geographic concepts and tools to make sense of why things happen where they do. This course of study is the equivalent of an introductory college course and is available to students interested in taking the Advanced Placement examination in Human Geography.

The length of each unit is a specific number of days, but it is understood that there is a range of +/- a day. The purpose of the flexibility is meant to allow teachers the opportunity to plan for the needs of their students and to accommodate re-teaching or review when necessary. If pre-assessment indicates student mastery could be obtained in a fewer number of days, the additional time could be used for extension or carried into the next unit.
