

- CATHY: What, children? What can I do for you?
- TRAVIS: Well, we were supposed to perform our pageant in the town square tomorrow.
- CATHY: Oh, yes. I saw the signs and we're planning on being there.
- VICTORIA: Well, right now it's been cancelled. The mayor won't let us do it.
- CATHY: What?
- BRITTNEY: The mayor said that the square would be too busy—too much traffic.
- ASHLEY: He also said his re-election was soon and he didn't want anything with a manger scene.
- KELSEY: It isn't hip or happenin' enough . . .
- CATHY: Oh my, no manger scene? But that's where Christmas began, with the birth of Jesus. He knows that!
- KELSEY: Will you call town hall and ask him to change his mind?
- CATHY: I sure will. This is too important.
- VICTORIA: Yeah, you just wouldn't believe how many grown ups don't know about Jesus.
- QUINN: We've just got to tell them!
- CATHY: Yes, you do. I'll call there right now. Don't worry, I've got a good connection down at town hall. Thanks, boys and girls. God bless, and I'll see you tomorrow night at the town square on Main Street!
- TRAVIS: It's gonna take a miracle for that to happen.
- VICTORIA: Christmas is all about miracles.
- KELSEY: Wow! That lady was so different than anyone else we've met today!
- BRITTNEY: I liked her.
- KELSEY: Me, too.
- (music begins to "It's Very Clear to See")
- BRITTNEY: She . . . sparkled.
- VICTORIA: She doesn't need Christmas decorations on her lawn. She sparkles on her own.
