Summative Performance Credit Completion for Excused Absence

Orchestra performances demonstrate knowledge, learning and technical fluency of the music studied in class. Additionally, summative performance attendance is a part of the experience of participating in a performing ensemble. If a student does not attend a performance and has filled out a conflict form within the required timeline, meets all of the criteria for a makeup, and is approved by the orchestra director, that student may complete a makeup assignment to earn credit for the missed performance.

In order to make up a missed concert performance, the student should:

- Created submit via email a video recording of themselves playing all repertoire from the concert.
- The recorded performance should be at performance tempo and include all of the rests written in the part
- The video performance will be graded based on the Habits Performance Rubric found found on the High School Orchestra website (under "Grading").
- The student should make an appointment to watch a video recording of the concert in the HS Music Office
- After watching the performance, the student should complete the WSMA Ensemble Critique Form (available at the make-up).
