Overall result: Merit

ABRSM

A3 Hassler: Ecossaise — 26/30

This was played with an upbeat air, with the dance-like nature engaged with well through crisp articulation in the melodic lines and a predominant firmly held pulse. Most rhythms were secure, with just a few moments of unevenness, and although there was scope for more tonal light and shade, a sense of direction in the phases was broadly delivered.

B1 Madden: The first flakes are falling — 25/30

A suitably unhurried tempo was adopted, and hand synchronisation was firm too. Some longer melodic notes needed to be more legato and brought out of the texture in a more cantabile tone, and there was a lack of expressive shaping at times too. Nonetheless, although tone could have been more varied, it was largely delicate, with the mood captured on the whole.

C2 Crosby Gaudet: Angelfish — 25/30

The hand crossovers were neatly negotiated in this largely poised performance, and despite some tiny hesitations and rhythms slips, it moved along with the momentum of the music mostly captured and usually convincing tonal control and contrast. Not all phrases were fully directed, but the shimmering texture did add idiomatic interest overall.

B1 Burgmuller: Arabesque — 25/30

Playing exhibited a clearly articulated melodic line, with chordal figures also snappy. A few moments lacked full hand coordination, and the initial tempo slowed somewhat and settled down, but the quicker figures were dispatched with purpose, and whilst not always rhythmically even, they were in keeping with the positive mood.

Performance as a whole — 26/30

This was an imaginative rendition in terms of a sense of occasion, with often vivid involvement in the playing itself and suitable time taken between pieces. Musical outcomes were largely consistent, and whilst each item did contain a few less solid moments, for example in rhythmic evenness, the technical and interpretative challenges of the programme were largely well met, and there was also a solid acknowledgement of balance between the parts and textural variety.

Congratulations on your Merit.

Place	/

Competitor Name : Lau Yuet Tung
Performing Piece : Minuet in G BWV Anh.II 116 by Anon.

This was cleanly played, at a suitable speed. Try to avoid equal accents on each beat, as this makes it very hard to give shape to the phrases. Also, try to keep the left hand lighter. The rhythm was not very even in the last part of the piece but the pulse was mostly firm, otherwise. You knew the notes well.
