Glitz

a full service salon in Odessa, provided ECISD TPRS parents an awesome opportunity to get pampered with nice haircuts in preparation for first day of school. Several students took advantage of a full day of pampering. The students chosen were students that are soon to graduate with a life plan in place.

Students in the Ector County ISD Teen Parent Related Services program had a chance for a little pampering Monday, thanks to the I AM Preparatory Foundation partnering with Glitz House of Beauty and Lavish Barber Shop.

"There is an epicenter where divine love and the human experience meet that has always fascinated me. In this place, two power statements that God said to humanity live: I AM whatever you need me to be and you are whatever you believe in your heart to be. One is a proclamation made by God, to us. The other is an affirmation we make to ourselves. Both power statements, begin with I AM.... Which means, self-sustainability and civil-development are predicated on how we see the world collectively, and how each person discovers the value of their fingerprint," stated TC Hughes, founder of the I AM Prep Foundation and eighth grade AP at Crockett Middle School.

"We love doing stuff like this. We like getting to see different people, getting involved in the community. It's ... something different for us,"

Waters said. Montoya, TPRS student, stated. "It means a lot because I'm not always able to do things for myself," she added.

A big thank you to "I AM Preparatory Foundation", who took charge in organizing the wonderful opportunity to our students.
