EDUCATE • INSPIRE • EMPOWER

Feedback from Participants

More than 1,100 participants provided feedback for 98 individual professional learning sessions

In their own words

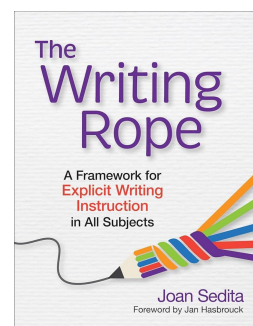

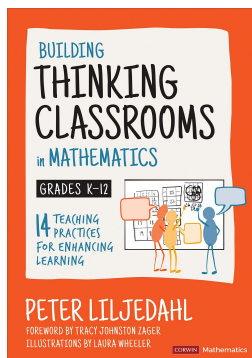

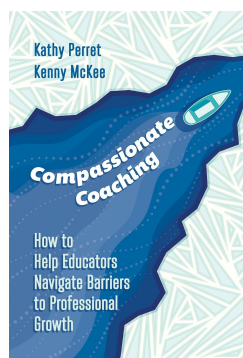

"The modeling of exemplar adult learning formats, with carefully selected content based upon group feedback, triangulated with collaboration and connection-building is the perfect trifecta. I look forward to these...no, I rely upon these meetings to fuel me in my role."

"The ongoing collaboration and work with our Boise-Eliot/Humboldt leadership team through our Rise-Up partnership with the MESD these past two years has been incredible to see our work around student engagement and attendance evolve and encompass even more areas at our school and within our community and how it is still having a positive impact on attendance even after the 10% improvement we saw in our regular attenders based on our state report card from last year."

"Thank you for coordinating this and making it happen! This is such a valuable time to have a "safe space" to ask our questions and have a team to help solve something."

2023-24 Book Studies

During the 2023-24 school year, professional book studies brought educators together from across the region to explore new ideas and improve practices.

"I had feelings of sadness and excitement. Sadness because I know how I am currently teaching isn't working well and I want to fix it, but just don't know how yet. Excitement because I am reading this book and participating in this book study so I can begin implementing new ways of teaching with my students."

2023-24 New Network Spotlight

SOCIAL SCIENCE MONTHLY MEET-UPS

"No matter the session, and no matter the topic, there was always at least one meaningful and new connection that people were really excited about. The two people who are working towards a common focus area were in the right time and the right place and are now off on their own planning, and doing it. And it was a result of them being part of this community and growing their community to include each other."

—Brad Parker, MESD Social Science Specialist

MESD's Brad Parker and Uma Joshi-Gracia launched the virtual Social Science Monthly Meet-ups in the 23-24 SY to create a space for knowledge sharing, collaboration, and community building across the state. The focus of each session connected to one of the major shifts happening in social science education such as Integrated Ethnic Studies; Tribal History/Shared History; and Holocaust, Genocide, & Human Rights Education. Participants in the monthly meet-ups included educators, administrators, school district and ODE staff, and members of various community organizations. The sessions were filled with excitement about the possibilities for alignment and partnership as they work towards implementing these newer shifts in social science education. Brad Parker, who will continue to facilitate these meet-ups in the 24-25 SY, emphasized the value of holding space to build and grow relationships, community, and partnership.

Workshops and Limited Run Series

One-time workshops and limited run series provide opportunities for educators to engage with education leaders, learn about equity-centered and research-based strategies, and practice new skills. Workshops and limited run series in the 2023-24 school year, included:

Intro to the Science of Reading and Structured Literacy: In this series, participants gained an understanding of the science behind how our brains learn to read and how to teach that learning.

SEL In Your Own Words: In this series for paraeducators, participants learned about Transformative SEL practices and frameworks and practiced tools for communication, motivation, and addressing conflict.

Spring Integrated Guidance Series: These sessions were designed to align with ODE's Integrated Guidance and aimed to support districts and charter schools in planning for equitable community engagement.

In their own words

"[My Paraeducator Coach] explained concepts well and was always kind and understanding when explaining things that I need to improve upon."

"[My Preschool for All Coach] is superb. As a person of color, working with a white coach who is genuinely free of biases has been a transformative experience for me. She respects and values my perspective, making me feel safe and supported."
