Helping Your Gifted Child Succeed

As a parent of a gifted student, you want to help your child discover what he/she does best. Gifted students need to explore their interests and abilities.

AT HOME

- Be attentive to your child’s comments and observations.
- Create an environment that promotes self-expression.
- Help him/her to develop skills and interests.
- Encourage your child to explore the beauty of diverse cultures.
- Promote exploration and discovery.
- Emphasize effort and progress rather than perfection.
- Show your child how errors can be opportunities to learn.
- Model positive ways to address setbacks.
- Instill ways to help your child understand and regulate emotional reactions.
- Promote a healthy lifestyle.

- Demonstrate how to serve your community.

IN THE COMMUNITY

Find or create opportunities where your child can explore interests and nurture talent.

- Universities and community organizations
- Mentors and talent experts
- Activities and outside courses
- Group/Individual projects or competitions

AT SCHOOL

- Advocate for your child’s interests.
- Collaborate with your child’s teacher.

Director’s Discussion

Welcome to the 2024-2025 School Year!

The beginning of the school year is such an exciting time and therefore full of so many emotions. Excitement can lead to happiness, fear, surprise, and almost any other emotion. As we work with our kids some people find Dr. Robert Plutchik’s wheel of emotions helpful. Even Disney has used similar thoughts in designing the “Inside Out” movies. A more family-friendly emotion wheel can be found at <https://mentalhealthcenterkids.com/blogs/articles/emotion-wheel-for-kids>.

Our gifted services theme this year is “Designing to the Edges.” As we continue to refine our gifted services, we want to ask ourselves how we can create learning opportunities that (safely) push our limits. In pushing the limits, we find what we are truly capable of while still having the safety of our specialist, our teachers, and our school community supporting us. Join us on our journey this year to your limits!

A note from your specialist...

I hope you are as excited as I am about facing the new challenges that the 2024-2025 school year brings. Working together, we can ensure that this school year will be enriching, challenging, and successful for your student.

The Academically and Intellectually Gifted (AIG) program exists to ensure that the academic, intellectual, social, and emotional needs of gifted and potentially gifted students are met. It is my goal, as the AIG Specialist for your child’s school, to inspire the love of learning in your child, to promote critical thinking and creativity, and to provide the support needed to reach his/her full potential.

In addition to supporting your child’s classroom teachers, AIG students will be scheduled to receive weekly AIG services in each area of identification with Mrs. Smith. When students are pulled out of class into the AIG classroom, your student will work with other advanced peers on activities that promote problem-solving, critical thinking, collaboration, creativity, and reflection. Those services are starting this week and next for reading and math groups.

I look forward to working with you and your child this school year! Please reach out to me through email or Class Dojo if you have any questions.
