

Bolles welcomes international students

Bolles welcomed a group of new international upper school students who are part of the Resident Life program this school year. Before the first day of school, these students participated in the English Language Learner Orientation (ELLO), an initiative designed to provide a fun and informative start to the student experience on the Bolles Upper School San Jose Campus.

Under the guidance of Bolles upper school teacher Danielle Jones, the students engaged in activities to help them prepare for success both inside and outside of the classroom. From English language classes covering grammar and U.S. history to class schedule scavenger hunts, the group gained valuable insight into how to get the most out of their time at Bolles.

This year's Resident Life students are from all corners of the globe, including Austria, the Bahamas, Barbados, Bermuda, Brazil, Canada, the Cayman Islands, China, Denmark, Germany, Guatemala, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Kazakhstan, Kenya, Mexico, Mongolia, Panama, Russia, Saint Lucia, Serbia, Singapore, Spain, Trinidad & Tobago, Ukraine, the United Kingdom, the United States, Uruguay and the U.S. Virgin Islands.
