- 2. Tim Kiemel has a long respected and dedicated baseball history including playing recreational, amateur and professional baseball collectively for more than 50 years.

BF 33919 Acknowledgment of Good Work Provided by Outstanding District Employees

1. May Lee Xiong, Principal at Txuj Ci HMong Language and Culture Lower Campus, was recently appointed as a Bush Fellow for a 24-month term. Bush Fellows are leaders who are already doing amazing things in their communities — and they have big ideas for what more is possible.

Xiong is reimagining education to support Black, Indigenous and people of color to thrive in schools that celebrate their diverse identities. She grew up in Minnesota feeling disconnected from her own Hmong culture. After hearing the stories of her resilient immigrant parents, she began to truly embrace her heritage. As an educator leading Hmong language revitalization efforts, she helped co-create the Hmong Studies and Hmong Dual Language programs at Phalen Elementary School (now Txuj Ci) in St. Paul. With her Bush Fellowship, she will seek ways to deepen her understanding of language revitalization and build her skills to advocate for transformative changes in public education.

 Each year, the Minnesota Association of International Baccalaureate World Schools recognizes outstanding school administrators or leaders who help promote and sustain the IB program in their school. This year the recipient of the MNIB Leadership Award was Saint Paul Public Schools Principal Teresa Vibar from Hidden River Middle School.

Here's an excerpt from her nomination:

Teresa Vibar has been and continues to be a strong leader and supporter of IB in SPPS. Principal Vibar strongly believes in the IB mission statement and really values the global mindset that the program provides. She sees the way the IB framework is not something extra for our teachers but a way to bring us all together around the initiatives and ideas under the Middle Years Programme (MYP) umbrella.

8. COMMITTEE REPORTS

A. Minutes of the Committee of the Board Meeting of July 9, 2024

At the Committee of the Board Meeting on August 7, 2024, BWP and Associates gave the first presentation on the Superintendent search. The discussion from the Board on this information focused on further details on who should be involved and active in the superintendent search, the focus of the geographical area for potential candidates, budget management for the superintendent search and community engagement along with partnership. The discussion continues on about the timeline of superintendent search and each phase of the search including announcing the vacancy, profiling candidates, interviewing, waves of selections and surveying Saint Paul Public Schools' community.

The second presentation was a Policy Review on the Board Policy 509: Use of Peace Officers and Crisis Teams to Removed Students with IEPs from School Grounds. This presentation sparked a robust discussion among the Board members about the language clarity used within the context of the policy, how will this policy be practiced within SPPS' grounds and the involvement of outside partnership. The third presentation was another Policy Review on the Gender Inclusion Policies – with an update on Policy 500.00 for students and a proposal for Policy XX.XX for staff. These presentations cover the fluid language of self-identification leading to a rich discussion about respect, safety, support and communication among students, staff and guardianship. This policy review also led to a proposal from Board members to have an annual review for some policies. Following adjournment, board members conducted a work session regarding Board Initiated Goals Governance.

MOTION: Director Ward moved to accept the report on the August 7, 2024 Committee of the Board meeting and approve the recommended motions and minutes of that meeting as published. The motion was seconded by Director Carrillo.

10. SUPERINTENDENT'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

This is a time of exactments in the district and I think we all know why. When you start smelling the smell of corndogs from the MN State fair, you know that school can't be far behind. Today was a real privilege for me to greet brand-new educators to SPPS. The enthusiasm was wonderful and I am very excited with the new employee that will be working with our students. I think that they are grounded and their focused are on what it should be, our students and our families. I also had the opportunities to greet principles both elementary and secondary earlier this month and was very interested to see the quality of leadership that we have in the district. You can tell by the color of my hair that I have been doing this for a while and I am very impressed with the caliber of the staff that we have and the commitment to they have for SPPS. They are keeping the main thing, the main thing and that is student achievements, making sure that our student is safe and that our schools are running efficiently. I also want to mention one thing in passing to our public that are listening to at home, I know that there are some issues with our retiree health benefits and I want to assure our retirees that we are working on that, and that we have not forgot you. I want you to know that hour Human Resources and legal team have been working closely to try to find a solution to impact that have been created by our two carriers. Other than that, I am looking forward to the start of school and visiting our kids and I will be doing that on the first day of school, September 3, 2024.

ITEMS PULLED FOR SEPARATE CONSIDERATION

BF 33951 Request for Permission to Accept a Grant from the Cargill Foundation's Childhood Nutrition Grant

Director Allen: I've been working on overall liberating my black people from the oppression that America has put on us for 400 years, and I've been doing that pretty much since 11th grade when I met Katie Maggard at Central High school in various ways and one of the current projects that I'm working on right now, is passing some legislation to end slavery in our constitution. So, it's still written in our federal constitution, and in our state constitution that there is an exception that certain folks can be enslaved in America if you are convicted of a penal crime, which means if you're convicted of a felony, you can then be enslaved in America, I don't think that that's cool because I don't believe in slavery. I do believe in punishment for crimes but I don't believe in slavery in the way that we punish people for crimes in America on the foundation of slavery, and I'm pulling this, because it's directly connected to slavery Cargill actually owns a Plantation in Louisiana, that originally was a Plantation that had a bunch of slaves on it and during reconstruction, they put convict leasing on that Plantation and that convict leasing space has now expanded into a full-blown prison and so those prisoners currently work at Cargill for I don't even know 25 cents, 50 cents an hour to produce products for this major company corporation in the United States, there's several corporations in the United States that still participate in this level of labor Gen. Mills, Target, 3M and it's ironic that a lot of them have headquarters right here in Minnesota, where they say that, no slavery existed, but yet slavery was legal, and so I just wanted to pull this because my moral compass cannot vote to accept these dollars from Cargill and I just wanted to be able to speak about why, because I believe that, yes, there are companies that are out there that need to pay reparations for all of the harms that they've done our community for the last 400 years, this company needs to come clean right now though. They need to stop the practices today of modern-day slavery. When the Dred Scott went to argue for his freedom and I'm sure a lot of you, historians and people weren't historians should know this story. The judge said that's a great argument, as a matter of fact, it's as good as any lawyer can give for your freedom, except for that you're a slave, you're only 3/5 of a man. I believe that that's the reason why people who are incarcerated can't get proper healthcare and they have to live in the conditions that they live in and nobody responds to the fact that they have to drink brown water in Stillwater prison, no one cares, no one responds. The DOC does nothing about it because those people in there are considered 3/5 of a man and so I just wanted to publicly put that out there so that we can chew on this and understand where the foundation of our country lies as we think that slavery is over, but the reality is there's still a whole bunch of people that are currently enslaved and I believe that, as long as we keep this in our constitutions, they will always look at a group of people, particularly black people as either potential slaves or slaves. They'll continue to write policies and laws that will get us criminalized and incarcerated, so that we can contribute to that piece of the capitalism and so until we start to take a stand and acknowledge what's happening around us and really hold these people accountable, I don't believe that anything is going to change, we're just putting band-aids over open wounds and so the very foundation is to end slavery. I have to go ahead and just say, it's got to go through the legislator and it'll be on the ballot and so when you see it, that's when you have your choice to make your decision about where you stand at today, I'm making my stand though, so I'll be voting no on this.

Director Vue: Can we could have Director of Nutrition Services, Stacey Koppon, come up here to tell us exactly what this grant is and what it does and what it's for.

• What is this grant for? This grant is for garden to cafeteria programs, so the funding actually was to cover some personnel to help complete the curriculum. To be used in our schools with our educators, it was also designed to help support some student intern jobs in the summer and then some of that money was also designated for some of the materials for those gardens.

I also read here that's a reoccurring grant program. How long have we added in? How far do we anticipated on having it going into the future?

 This grant has been in place recurring since about 2018 and we currently have 2 years worth of funding, that was awarded through this potential grant that's up for consideration so that is really the end of what we know for today and at that particular point, we would have to evaluate what the attendant future was after that point but at this particular juncture in time it was referred to your project.

I appreciate it. Thank you.

Director Allen: I just want to follow-up, because I think I touched on this, but I want to be very clear that Cargill owes our community a tremendous amount of money and so today, I'm taking a stand but I do believe that these dollars belong to the public schools, along with many more dollars to come as we continue to hold them accountable for the acts that they're doing and so I just wanted to put that out there, to make it very clear, like Yes, we want this money. We want all of the money that they owe us from all of these back years and when we start to get these major corporations to pay in maybe we can fully fund schools, and so I just wanted to put that out there, to be very clear, my vote will still be no, though. Director Valiant: only thing I want to say is that I agree.

Director Henderson: I did want to thank Director Allen for her resilient and tenacity in continuing to bring these issues to the forefront, the hard decision is often how do we hold the very real impacts of decisions that have happened for years before, while also holding the reality of programs that we see here, potentially have the opportunity to positively benefit our communities. I think of gardening, I think of so many of the conversations I've had with you, Director Allan, with Director Valliant around when we get opportunities to put our students who maybe don't have that experience. You don't have the experience to think about what it means. What does it mean to grow your own? What does it mean to have access to all of the things that other folks have. We're taken from us for so long and then had we put that back into our students and into our communities for years to come and it's a bittersweet calculation to make. How do we continue to move forward and hold folks accountable and also know that there are dollars in programs that are going to students led by people in our community that are incredibly positive. So, I'm so proud to sit here with you, and to know that you will continue to raise the reality and the truth and the hard truths, and I also sit here knowing that there are some opportunities that we have with funding like this to move the needle forward for our students and to get them in to spaces that thinking of myself as a kid who didn't know what any of that would have even meant or looked like and didn't know that you could have access to green space or gardening it feels really positive and like a thing I want to see us continue to do so thank you and thank you, Director Koppon.

Director Allen: I also want to quickly point out how our administration because I wouldn't point this out because hopefully other boards across the nation are listening. I want to point out that our administration and our pension program already divested from privatized prisons, where a lot of public school systems are using companies that he filled the furniture for the schools, and so it's kind of like a weird cycle that happens. Our school district has divested from companies like that and also our teachers' pensions have also divested from investing in privatized prisons, which is a popular thing across the nation because slavery is a pretty lucrative investment, unfortunately, and so teachers have been investing in that for many years, but our district doesn't, and so I want to thank everybody who was working on that that happened before I got on this school board and I appreciate all of that, thank you,

QUESTIONS/DISCUSSION:

Director Vue: Because this is a recent policy that was passed back in 2023, and we're implementing it for the upcoming school year. How are families informed that even though our practice hasn't changed? How are families informed that this is a policy going forward at the school site?

• There were several changes made to the statute in the last session. However, the requirement of a policy on this has actually been in law for a number of years, so that part is not new, so part of the intention with enacting this policy is to catch up with the statute that we've been not fully implementing overtime so in terms of the timing, this is actually something that we should have had in place.

It just goes to my question, how are families with IEPs informed even though our practice hasn't changed from what I hear, How are they informed that this is the policy moving forward, I'm just curious, I have 2 children with IEPs, and I don't know if I'm going to that's going to be my initial meeting that I'm going to have with my IEP team or not how does that actually work

• I can't speak to the special education process and in those meetings, but what I can say is that in terms of how are people notified of the policy, I would suggest that it's the same way that people are notified about any policy changes or policies that we're adding, which is through this process right here through the 3 reading process through the discussions that occur in these meetings, and then also then the board action items that get noted when the board does pass a policy and then the addition of those policies into the school district website.

 I would just like to add that we would not have removal by peace officers identified in a student IEP, that would not be part of our protocol and supporting students. It would only be in an emergency situation, and it happens so rarely that it would not be something that we would put into IEP as a practice, we may at times have, students whose IEP may include conversations about how different teams within school may be supporting them and that may be outlined in their IEP. In general, that wouldn't necessarily include a removal. The purpose of the IEP is to identify the supports that are needed to help the student be successful in school and so I don't anticipate that the IEPs would look different because we wouldn't be planning for a student to be removed.

I know that that's not the intention. All right, but I just my parents didn't know if this is a possible outcome that's all, I guess not out of the realm of possibility, that's going to happen. As a parent, I'd just like to know and be papered just in case something like that does happen. I suppose that's all I'm asking for it's just being informed

Director Valliant: I agree with Director Vue, especially having 3 children with IEPs currently right now, even though this is not something that is likely It's definitely something that thing should be presented during the IEP meeting with all the original paperwork. It's the same way that you have parents sign off on a bunch of policies during an eye update, or at others hands, because if what happens? What could happen right is, let's say a student has to be removed and the parent is like I don't know, I don't like how you did that, or you know, I don't understand why this is the process, and then we'll go oh well that's our policy and the parents will ask when did you tell me this? How was I supposed find this out, imagine this and go search for It myself? We have responsibilities and make sure that this type of policy, especially as it is directly related to kids with IEPs, is communicate to parents in a very direct way, and making them aware. If this policy exists that they know how to find it. all those things, because again, while this may be a rare occurrence is not something that never happens, and with a lot of students, you kind of never know, until one day, you know, you need to do it and then the parents confused and then we go hate policy, and they were out there like nah, yeah, how about supposed to know about this? It's just not I mean; they're at least we need to be more attention about making sure parents are aware of this policy is what I'm saying.

• Are you asking how parents are notified if their student is removed?

I'm asking how parents are made aware that this policy exists, how they found it how they made aware from the beginning. Yes, it's rare, but you never know if that student. You know, we'll experience a removal. You just don't know, and so it happens then once it happens. This policy will be brought up and parents will tell you that they were not aware of the policy existence

Superintendent Thein: Is it possible when we started the IEP meeting it might be possible to just address families to let them know, are you aware of the policy? And even if you said they were not aware you could explain it if they are, where you just move on from that point on is that a possibility.

• Yes, anything would be a possibility, what I would just like to share is we serve 6000 students who receive Special Ed services from birth to age, 22, so I think there would need to be more conversation about what that would look like when it's a 3-year-old who's receiving special education services.

You answered a good question there, you made me aware, or made all of us aware of the scope of the situation too, but I think all of us are aware that at certain times we're aware that this could be a possibility, or it might be a student that this might occur, and I think what parents are interested in is to make sure that they're not caught unaware. So that's where judgment comes in, and that's what administrators get paid for good judgment and you have excellent judgment, by the way, so I think that's something that maybe we should talk about before this policy is approved

- In knowing that this is a first reading, I would like to propose that this is something that assistant Director Sullivan and I continue to gather more information if it moves to a second reading, we could share more in more information at that time about what parent communication could look like
- I'd also like to know to that the notice of procedural safeguards that the state has put together addresses some of this, and it has a specific section on referral to inaction by law enforcement and judicial authorities. It specifically references that a district can report a crime committed by a child with the disability to appropriate authorities, and that if that happens that the district must ensure that copies of the child's special education and disciplinary records are transmitted to the appropriate authorities, so that information is contained in the notice of parental rights. The district is required as a matter of law to give parents this notice of their rights every time the school district proposes an evaluation or reevaluation or an IEP or a change in their special education programming. So, in terms of those particular pieces that information is conveyed to the parents and convey to them on are gular basis.

The procedural safeguards are provided to parents on an annual basis, and there may be an opportunity for more discussion as to what it can look like to explicitly, make sure parents know about this language.

Director Ward: I'm not trying to argue against anything that's already been said because I think that making sure our families understand what their rights are and what might happen to their child is incredibly important, but the line of the discussion so far has made me question a little bit my own understanding of this. I just want to ask for clarification purposes. We're working on this policy, which we have to pass by law. It has been the case that prior to this policy past that it was rare but possible that a student with an IEP might have had to be removed from school by a peace officer like that has happened in the history of SPPS before. This policy does not change the way that happens and does not give the school any more authority to call peace officers to take students away and does not give peace officers any more authority to take students away than already existed. Is that correct?

• Yes, that's correct.

So then how have things been done previously, whenever families have had a student, removed for school by a peace officer, and they've said like, why are you allowed to do this? What has been the answer there? If it's not like this is our policy?

• If a student is removed due to a crime as such, by peace officer, the parents are notified that there was a crime committed at this school and that was a reason for them being removed.

I think there's going to be some more discussion. I do want to just say like for the for anyone who's just hearing about this for the first time? We've been talking about this policy for a while, and we're still talking about it, because I think we all feel some anxiety about trying to make sure that students are not treated it punitively whenever they need to be cared for and it went to policy committee. We were anxious, we asked a lot of questions, there were changes. It went to the committee of the board meeting. People anxious asked questions decided it wasn't good enough, went back to policy and we've been working on it for a while, not just board members, right but staff as well are very cognizant of the need for caution, whenever we discuss this kind of thing.

Director Allen: I think the discussion that Director Valiant and Director Vue were bringing up around how our parents notify kind of brings me to something that I've been chewing on for about 6 months, kind of like around our discipline policy, and one of the things that was always concerning to me was like there was never really a point it's like, oh here's the Handbook, and these are our discipline policies, but it wasn't until a student broke the policy, and then I'm marching this kid down to the office and I find out whoa, this policy is going to land them 3 days out of school, so I'm wondering, is there a way that we can get this information to parents so that they know cause. I think the best way to enforce a policy is to make sure that the parents know that it's a policy, as kids know, kids break rules, that's what they do, that's how they move, and I'm just wondering what we can do as a district, to ensure that parents are very much aware of our policies, and what the unfortunate consequences could be to certain behaviors. So that they know and understand when something happens with their child, why the principle or the leadership in the building responded in that way. I guess that's that this brought me to that just overall discipline not just because we're calling police officers to the scene, but if a student does something, breaks a window or whatever, what is the consequence for that, and how do we resolve it? What is the process like? If there are restorative practices involved, letting the parent know that these are the steps that we take in our school, they may see a social worker, they may go here, whatever so that they understand that by the time they get a phone call, that says that Bobby is out of control, they know that our schools have gone through all of these different steps to get Bobby on track for academic success, instead of not knowing and then they're just hanging up on us, cause they just think we're calling to bother them about something. I'm just thinking about that, and I just wanted to put that out there for our entire administration. This isn't necessarily for ssls, but possibly for the special Ed department, but also for the rest of the administration to think about how do we start to create like something that so that we know parents know and understand what our policies are all the time, and when things like this change, they know that this thing is in play and this could possibly happen, although it wouldn't possibly happen in our district. Director Henderson: I think what I'm hearing from the board and from superintendent Thein is a desire when we come back together to see maybe a couple different options of what informing families could look like, understanding, it's a different circumstances and different needs for different groups but particularly maybe some strategic thinking about the age groups where this has had to and to be implemented or thought through before could be helpful for the board to consider.

QUESTIONS/DISCUSSION:

Director Allen: No questions. I just want to publicly say that I feel very seen with the gender diverse title, what we call the label we've got here labels, I'm not into labels, So I've never been, because none of them ever fit me but gender diverse is very inclusive to who I am as a female who doesn't necessarily fit the gender binary ideal of a female and I think that a lot of our black masculine female students are going to appreciate this term a lot, because there's a lot of us in the community, not just students, but in the community who just don't really relate to a lot of the terms that exist in the LGBTQAI community, and I'll say that this is the first time I've ever seen one that I said oh that fits me. So, I'm hoping that this spreads a little bit, and I hope that our students get to hear that term often so that they identify with it they can also feel seen, so thank you.

Director Ward: Looking at page. 9 of the slide and sure gender inclusiveness says a student support team will meet to determine a student support plan, the student support team will consist of the student parents or little blue guardians etc. Could you remind me of the context in which the support team would create a support plan this? Isn't creating a plan to make a building more inclusive? It's for a specific student and in what case.

Student support teams exist at most all buildings to support the needs of students oftentimes, our office is called in when we have like a student that may need to go through a process like they're not necessary transition, but they need an update to how they identify, and therefore, they need a plan that is set up for that particular student. Hence is why we ask for the facilities audit, so there may be a student that is female at birth however, they're now identified as male and trans-male and therefore they need to have a plan because there may not have gender inclusive bathrooms, so that team would work with that student. The teachers and the staff and hopefully the family as well, to make sure that they identify what are the needs and the support you also have to keep in mind that some of our elementary students are going through this process and so that's a very different conversation at a developmentally approach, has to be considered as well of what their needs are, especially as they're navigating this transition. As an elementary student around other elementary students as well. So that's what that student support team is there to do really think about the whole child in all the various levels and complexities that are intersectional to this dynamic conversation

I know that this follow-up question raises something controversial but what happens whenever a student needs a student support team and they don't want their parent to be part of it, because their parent is not supportive of their identity.

• The parents are not required to be a part of the students support team and so therefore there are staff there that would support the conversations and the needs, as well as additional staff that would possibly help operates the conversations with the families and parents and again. We're talking things look very different based on the age of the student, and the needs sometimes parents come to the staff, especially the elementary age and say, I've noticed that something seems to be very different developmentally for my child, based on how they see themselves in terms of their gender, so oftentimes, that conversation is initiated by parents, therefore it's carefully supported and navigated. I'm really keeping in mind the developmental social and academic needs of the student when we're speaking about middle school, high school students oftentimes that conversation looks very different. There are some parents that truly support the transitioning of identity of students, and there are many that don't so what our goal is to make sure that we center the needs of the child first with the student support team to make sure that conversation to parents, so that they're a part of that process but what we wanted to make sure is that in the updated language that the student has autonomy and authority around who he gets to participate and represent them on that student support team so that they could have an adult that closely lines to them and also one that they feel supported by.

Thank you and I think that I read the language here. The student support team will consist of the student parents or legal guardians when possible. I guess it's the, when possible, that's supposed to acknowledge those difficult situations, but since it says will I think it's like a little confusing. Maybe it should say, may I don't know for sure what will actually get us there, but I do want to make sure that whatever this ends up being gets to what you're describing

• I appreciate that update. Thank you.

Director Vue: My question Director Pope, is this will be referenced in the student Handbook correct? This kind of goes to my question about the other policy is how are the people who are being impacted be informed of these new changes.

• Just a clarification are we referring to the student rights and responsibilities. We will work with that committee, as they begin to do their revisions to determine where the information should be in that right to responsibilities Handbook.

Director Henderson: I have a question building off of that. I think I'm really excited by a lot of this language. I think it's a really, really positive step but thinking about how if I am a staff member who, as a student who is confided in me about their desire to develop either some supports or is looking for some support. How are we informing staff that this exists that they are within their rights to support students, and to begin this with them and that, even in the circumstance that you recognize you might be pushback, and this is something that you were working individually on with a student what are the ways in which we are offering support and training for them about what this could look like, because I imagine what could happen and what likely will happen. In some circumstances, as a family might find that their student has disclose to a staff member of their identity or a change in their in their name, that maybe they use at home for safety, but use a different name at school, because it's the one that they identify with, and they feel comfortable with so what are the ways in which we are really clear about how we're protecting the staff who are supporting our students in this and what are the ways in which we're keeping to taking Director Vue's to this point, how are we keeping students informed of their rights in our building in terms of how we will support them.

• There are several things there. So historically, we've held a policy DP asynchronous version as well as it's like a policy update posts or update that we make sure is provided to staff, so that they're aware of the policy, what it means and how to support it. I think the other piece in terms of protecting staff. The first thing that came to mind the policy protects the staff. So, once they know, and we have a policy, it lets them know what the rights of the students are and what their role is in enforcing that policy. So that's why the policy is very important and, in the training, and the updates that we provide to staff, that they become aware of that, I think to your point about disclosure, if a student discloses to a staff member, something about their identity that the parent doesn't know about, that's why the student support team is so crucial at the building level, because they work to navigate and talk through and tease out all of those pieces and also inform necessary staff at the building of what is the proper protocols to be using in relation to particular children?

Director Valliant: As a parent, I would like to have awareness of all the support or practice that my child if getting at school. I felt that if I found out that my there was something going on with my child at school and I was not notifying about it, I do not know if I can trust the school anymore even if I support it or not because I felt that I was lied too and things about my child was kept from me

Based on our previous conversation at the COB, I understand and I believe I hear what you're saying I think also too in the questions that were brought up from other board members tonight, I think what if It's very critical from u law's perspective is that parents and families are aware of our policies, because if they're aware of this policy, then they know that this policy is created to protect their child. So, then that means, as parents, you'll have to be in good communication and observation of your child to see what they may be going through, possibly, so that you can have those conversations with their child to bridge that conversation to school. This policy, however, is created to protect the students that especially are not accepted by their parents, because they elect to identify differently based on their gender identity. What's resonating with me around what you're saying and what you've said cause I've thought about what you said, even at the COB and I did share with you, I hear you. It's very important that our parents are aware of the policy, so they know the intricacies, and what expectations, they we need to hold themselves too so that we can hold ourselves to expectations that we need to uphold for the safety of our students.

Director Allen: So, I don't know where these surveys happened for the LGBTQAI community because I haven't never seen one about bathrooms, or none of this, just policy's got them moving across the nation and so I think it's very interesting, because what it's done is it's allowed me to kind of like go into my own self and say, Hey, how do I feel about these particular things that are happening around me. One thing that has always bothered me being a gender diverse individual is the identity of pronouns. It's like it didn't bother me before I had to announce to everybody that I'm she, her, hers or him, him, they or whatever I have to decide because again, I'm kind of a no label person, I guess but if you say you are no labeled and you're a label because the label is no label, So I've never really kind of identified, even with that but it always is kind of an uncomfortable moment for me when we got to go around the room and say, our pronouns because that doesn't necessarily identify who I am as an individual and it almost dehumanizes me for a moment. So, I just wanted to put my little 2 cents in there because I never get the survey from the gay community, I don't know how I miss it. I'm out here married to a whole lady, so I don't know how I miss the surveys, but I always miss them. So, I just wanted to put my 2 cents out there since I have the ability to use this platform. Then I'm not really comfortable with the whole pronoun thing either.

 I hear you. There was a point in time in my journey around this work. I wondered okay if I got to start saying my pronoun. Can I also assert who I am racially because we don't do that but we want to acknowledge the pronouns? I've come to see in the eyes of our student me saying my pronouns help to validate them and allow them to feel safe and secure in this district, so I've kind of evolved. I can always still include that. I am a black proud female that also identifies it uses she her as pronouns, because I've recognized how much it's empowered and liberated others, so if that's something that I have to do to extend and to meet others, I'll do it.

I see what you did there by using that liberation word because I'm all about liberating others, and for that very second, I can sacrifice for the liberation of the broader people so I feel you, thank you. Director Vue: I have a question around Equitable access to facility space that best, along with their gender identity, and facilities that staff feels comfortable and safe accessing, my only question here is it's good to put that in the policy, but to what extent are we able to provide that in our very different buildings that we're in?

That's why we do need to work in partnership with facilities and divisions of schools and learning to conduct some type of audit to see what is feasible and reasonable in our just varied and very diverse facilities in our district. The reason why it's so important. I've heard stories of students in particular where they've foregone going to the bathroom all day, because they didn't have a bathroom that they could identify that was near them, that they felt safe and comfortable accessing. Also 2, in terms is if a student elects and identifies in a certain way and they use a particular bathroom, there are people that other students that use that bathroom. The safety of that student may become compromised because they elected to use a very different bathroom. So that's why we want to have this audit, and the term it kind of sits a certain place, but I see it more as a cross conversation that would be very dynamic, where we would actually walk through buildings, talk to staff and get a clearer sense about the needs of particular students and staff, especially but to really think about how this is done in a way that truly centers, the safety of all

So I appreciate you communicating that to express the rationale in the need but for me, someone who is a board man who wants to vote, and I want to make sure that we're able to deliver on what we're voting for even though, that this is the goal like this is what we want to do, but we can't do it yet could we add some language in there saying that we are, we're going to do what you suggest? An audit where needs assessment to address to address at work? I just want to make sure that you know the expectations are clear and we don't have this yet across-the-board that we were, we're working on. It does that kind of make sense?

• Yes, I will make sure that I connect with the other colleagues that were supporting me in the discussion about the facilities audit to determine What language or next steps could be.

Doesn't mean we can't pass this now. I just want to make sure that everybody understands that we don't have it in place yet.

• If I can interject, I just want to make sure that the audit is not a part of the policy, so the policy being approved for sure is not dependent upon that, but that rather we're going to work with the facilities department to do an assessment in terms of what our needs may be in terms of physical plan to make any modifications and obviously, that would need to be incorporated into any other district wide facilities plan that we would do and within those timelines. So, I just wanted to clarify that.

That is true I don't want. I don't want that. Call to be completed and we passed this. I don't see I don't see what we have to do in that sequence. What I'm concerned about is just making expectations clear to the people who are in poor impact about its policy. Director Carrillo: Yeah, I was actually going to point you to slide 21. Which says consider a facilities audit, but Director Vue kind of addressed the question. So initially I was going to suggest change it consider to something more direct rather than just a consideration. So, consideration doesn't have any action but given that you're requesting to remove it, maybe this whole section needs to be removed. Is that correct?

• I think that probably would be appropriate and then as we progress on that work, it would be important for us to come back to the board and provide you with an update and to also let you know as we make any adjustments to the overall facilities plan how that fits within the bigger scope of the district's plan.

Not everyone like it when we get audited by outside organizations, there tends to be a negative connotation to it. I think in a spirit of truly envelop, truly trying to create a Nexus of support, and that includes our students, our families, that includes our staff who needs to be trained, who need to be supported in in some in some cases. I would like to also extend that that call or that awareness to us as leaders so that we can be considerate and really try to support our schools through this because not every school is in the same place both in terms of facilities and in terms of where they're able to reach out to students who are in some sort of journey, so I want to be able to just make sure that that you know our approach is one of lifting up rather than pointing out deficiencies and so that we make sure that when we say audit, we're engendering trust, not fear Thank you.

Director Henderson: I had was thinking specifically about the conversation we had at the COB, and it was around to I think Director Carrillo's points, folks are in different places in their understanding of LGBTQAI issues in general, and what that means for students and staff, so what are the different ways in which we are providing educational opportunities. What does that look like in terms of training? What does it look like in terms of supporting full classrooms right like? What does that look like for building that trust and that knowledge and that, I think a lot of we've used it in terms of like language, so it becomes commonplace, and it just becomes part of the culture of our buildings.

Can you or anyone share a little bit about what that could or does currently look like.

As I mentioned before historically, through the office for equity, we've provided a range of professional development opportunities and learning. We also have a lot of programs that we support throughout Office of equity, which include GSA and we have those at middle schools and high schools. There has been a plan in collaboration and work with our school social workers to do special groups at the elementary level as well to support the needs. There many of our staff support those opportunities for our young students, whether it's key quest our other youth summit, where they have opportunities to learn and grow as students. There hasn't been as many at the adult level and the staff level. However, we do have some affinity groups that are supported through the union and also, some informal affinity groups that have been established within the district It's a support kind.

But there isn't like a or maybe there are like PD opportunities for educators to learn more about how do we engage with students, what does this look like? What does it look like through a restorative lens because I imagine there might be a moment where a staff member, either intentionally or unintentionally misgenders a child? What does it look like to rebuild that, and how do we talk about it in both the like macro, like how the district addresses it sends, but then also how do we talk about it in terms of on a classroom level?

• So as I said, historically, we had equity requests and concern process through the office of equity, where oftentimes building leaders would put in a request and our equity coach team and other staff would create and develop the professional development that oftentimes was differentiated a little bit based on building it at various buildings that had the same general request. So typically, we would create professional development to help support that building's learning and growth around those needs, and that language and things of that nature. Going forward, there's a various discussions about how to best provide professional development in tangent with these policies and I think that'll be continued conversation about how we would do that in the future.

I look forward to learning more about that. My last question was, I remember some of what you shared at COB, you shared a little bit about the process of how you brought stakeholders in to thank you shared about how to come to some of these definitions to think through how we write this policy, what that could look. Like, could you share a little bit more about that stakeholder engagement.

So originally when we were asked right this, it was just a group of equity staff members, we came together to kind of craft and draft this piece and then we took it to the GSD pack their meeting and shared with them the current drafts, and that was after we had reviewed the policy with the policy work group, because I thought it was very important, it was their last meeting and wanted them to have a sense of what may be moving forward in the coming months, and to offer some of their thoughts. So that did occur in June with that group, and the hope would be with others in the company.

So there is a plan then to bring this back to folks to get additional eyes on it. Perhaps

 There can always be a plan that would be made given that I know we're in the process of the reading, as I said. with the student policy being that school will be resuming soon, I think it's definitely a prime time to get their eyes on it and get their feedback and I would welcome the opportunity to and between the readings to get additional feedback as it aligns to this process.

Okay, thank you.

QUESTIONS/DISCUSSION:

Director Carrillo: Enrollment and go back to slide 19 I think student placement. First of all, thank you for all the effort and a special thank you for the people who are currently doing the work I've been in that place and I know it's, it's a heavy load right now, but I'd like to know and I think maybe this was related to a request that I'd done earlier. I'd like to understand approximately. Where we are in comparison to last year at the same time, and then respect to our projections, it's not necessarily I want exact numbers, because I understand those are not going to come until the October counts, but I'd like to be able to be aware where we are so that we're prepared, and I think it's important for the community to just be aware of how it going to be a year where we're going to hit our targets early or are we going to be needing those students throughout the year, just awareness, and then in terms of that, 89% of kindergarten plant capacity is filled. What is your general assessment? Are you feeling comfortable? Are you feeling like well, this is, where we expect it to be, or is this a little bit under enrolled?

- Regarding that question about I feel good about the 89% of our kindergarten capacity. We do have some sites that very few where we believe we have excess capacity so in those particular sites, we are making those current reductions and have those conversations with administrators this week and likely be reassigning those staff to a different school, where we have more capacity or more students than we have actual allocations of staff. So that's happening but that's across-the-board for all grades specifically at kindergarten I feel good about that. I also feel good that with those additional 33 Karen Kindergarten, those are all new to the district and that I think that will help if you think about that, that's a class and a 1/2 and so at this particular point literally today, for instance, we enrolled 20 new students that's almost a class well regardless of where they went. It's almost a class for students, so our role really now is to retain, we really as a whole community as a whole school district, we neither retain the students that we have with that.
- I would like to add something about we're dealing with last year versus shooting through the chair director creator um, with regard to where we were last year this time we'll have to do some digging with that. Our enrollments are not verified at this time, if we look at our preliminary enrollments, it will look like we have something like 36000 students enrolled. We know that these are not the environments are not verified, and so there's no certainty in that, and with that we're not really sure where we are with regard to our projected enrollment. We start to look at enrollment and we start to verify enrollment the 1st day of school, and then we'll start to post every day and as enrollments become clean, we get a better idea by the 4th day of school and then kindergarten start it'll sort of puts us back a little bit, but we get closer and closer every day. There are some schools that will have very clean verified enrollments within the first week of school and there are some schools that it'll take longer the other process that's happening is. As schools verify enrollments of students they might discover that they have open and they're still getting students, as that's happening, and the good part is that when they're getting students after school begins, those enrollments come verify very quickly because the students aren't enrolling in their starting school and they're getting their schedules, and they're enrolling, but it's the cleaning of the ones that are not showing up for various reasons, but we will get cleaner as the first week goes, and we'll start reporting daily enrollments, and so we'll, and we report those daily enrollments. We report with regard to where we were last year. We report on the attendance, so not just the enrollment, but how many students actually showed up on the day. We also report where we were this time last year, so as we start to report from research evaluation assessment, it'll get much much cleaner, but unfortunately, at this point I have no faith that we are actually going to have 36000 students

That makes sense, thank you.

Director Valliant: Thank you. My first question is, can you say more about recruiting from the Philippines?

• If Assistant Superintendent Nistler wants to join, she certainly can, basically we knew from a while in the summer that we were not going to probably be able to fill our position just even regardless of our recruitment efforts. There was not a very large number of special Ed people that actually were applying for vacancies, so we've been doing a lot of work with principals in terms of people who may have worked in their building and having them apply for a tier one license but we knew that wasn't going to fit the bill. So Carolyn Sherri, who is fairly new to the district is someone that we have a really close partnership within Human Resources, and she's the person who's facilitating a lot of the actual screening of the special Ed candidates, and we're using her as a resource as we're doing some networking as well to potentially find some additional candidates. and it was through Carolyn networking with a counterpart in another district that she found out about the work that was being done in other districts across them. It's a metro area and we actually met with the Superintendent of Fridley, probably about a month and a 1/2 ago to talk about the success that they were having with their recruitment efforts, Fridley and a number of other districts have hired quite a few individuals from the Philippines over the past several years. and this partnership would actually be with the Philippine government, and so the Philippine government is actually doing a lot of the recruitment and the initial screening of candidates and one of the pluses about this program is that the individuals are going to come with comparable us credentials, that's always one of the challenges when we're working with someone who's coming from another country, because as a part of that process, one of the things that we have to do is get their credentials evaluated by an organization that actually determines the US equivalency and so with the partnership with Philippine we would actually already have that information, they would also even be working with us to actually help with the PELSB application for those individuals to be able to get their license application process through the state, that's something that we would be able to do pretty expeditiously, they actually set up everything so working with them and then working with our immigration attorney helps that process in terms of applying for the H1-B a lot simpler than if we're just working with someone individually so they do the initial screening of the candidates and make sure that they're primed and ready to go and then we do the actual finding screening of those candidates to make sure that we think that those individuals are actually a good fit for our organization.

- This is something we started to explore just within the last couple of months, the workforce shortages that we have been experiencing with our special education vacancies is not unique to St. Paul. It's been present across the entire state and Dr. Brenda Lewis, who is now the superintendent in Fridley, had previously been the superintendent in East Grand Forks and she was one of the first to work to see about recruiting international teachers. The reason we specifically are recruiting teachers from the Philippines is there is an organization that specializes in recruiting teachers from the Philippines. It's a company owned by a husband and wife one of them is Filipino, and they help work with the Filipino government, and with the immigration attorney, they are doing some of this screening, the recruiting and the teachers that we are, that we're interviewing are very highly qualified, most have advanced degrees, masters said. It's degrees we've had some that have their doctorate. Many have several years of experience. Some of the teachers are coming with over 10 years of teaching experience within a special education setting, and this is similar to what other districts have experienced across the State of different districts have brought in about 400 special education teachers from the Philippines, the teachers that come have it get a tier 4 special education teaching license from PELSB and over the last couple of weeks, we started to have conversations with SPFE different Partners and there's a collective excitement about this opportunity, the teachers could be here for up to 6 years and our vision is that they become part of our school community and that they build relationships with their colleagues with their administrators, they'll be living here in St. Paul as active members of our community. There's a lot of supports and details that we are working out we're going to help them with housing will help them get social security numbers, we're going to greet them at the airport, so that they immediately feel welcomed into this community. We're going to be working on affinity groups will be doing some specialized onboarding. We really want them to be successful and there's a lot of work that we have left to do but we're excited about the opportunity to add more special education teachers that are highly gualified
- As assistant Superintendent Nistler said, both on the special Ed side in the HR side, been in conversations with the union, the union is supportive, and they want to make sure that we keep them in the loop, because they want to make sure that as we welcome these new teachers into the district, that they feel as if they really are being supported both on the union side and on the district side as well. So I mean no matter what our recruitment efforts are in terms of whether it's grow our own, it's going out there and actively recruiting special Ed, that's a huge national shortage across the district, it's the hardest area to be able to get candidates. There are not enough people who are actually going through special education, teacher licensure programs, so we will never be able to grow enough of our own teachers, even though we have that through que, and we have a new program that we're trying to ramp up for next year. That's also going to be focused on special education, there's not enough of a pool of candidates nationally, and there's too high a need nationally, so we have to continue to be looking at different ways for us to actively recruit highly qualified special Ed teachers to the district.

My second question is At a high level, how are we preparing these teacher for a different culture, to understand our city, our children or families. How we prepare them for especially when it comes to special education and supporting them. I'm really interested in what we are doing, I understand what we're doing to support them as a person coming over from a different country but what are we doing to make sure that they're actually able to support our children in the way they need to be supported outside of what comes with a formal education?

First and foremost, I think your question is really very important and I say that for a variety of reasons and I would say the big reason is I worked in another district, that was more than 4 times the size of this district, where we had an exchange program with Spain and so we brought in Spanish speakers to work in our immersion programs as well as to be Spanish teachers, and I think one of the things that we failed at as a district when we did that was that we did not do anything to really one, truly prepare them for what American students are like, which is very different than what students were like in Spain and I think that was a huge, huge hurdle, and I think then the other piece is just the work that I don't feel like we did enough of was really making sure that we as a part of the onboarding process really work through what are the critical kinds of things and information that they really needed to know to make sure that they were successful in terms of being able to do their role, but also to be able to work effectively with students and to be able to work with families and so what I would expect as a part of the work that we're doing so know that this is still a work in progress or in process, we have not worked out all the details, but I want to assure you that that is absolutely something that's really very important to us and so we certainly expect that as a part of our onboarding process that these would be the kinds of modules for lack of a better term that we would be putting together, and I think that's also going needs to be part of the mentoring process that we would also need to develop and put in place in order to not only help them be successful as professionals but also to make sure that they're meeting the needs of the families as well as the needs of our students, but it's not going to be a be quick overnight, but it's going to be asked to be a collaborative effort for a number of us across the district to really work on putting those pieces in place. In order for them to be successful and for this to actually be an effective recruitment strategy because the goal is for not only to get people here, but to also retain those individuals, and also to make sure that they're going to be effective and successful in their roles.

Director Allen: I think this is like the most amazing program. I have ever heard for teachers and I think that if we would have implemented this a long time ago, we wouldn't be worried about having teacher the color in our classroom. We're talking about housing, infinity groups, we can't even get 3 black teachers to have a conversation in the teacher's lounge without somebody getting written app half the time infinity groups, warm welcome. Aren't you just impressed with the advantage of this district because I'm telling you, you know, II appreciate all of this that we're doing, I just want us to do this for all of our teachers for all of our teachers of color when they come in, let them know that we really appreciate them being here because I can't tell you how many times I found a special Ed teacher somewhere crying in a corner, and I had to be their support group as a paraprofessional, being underpaid, that was the way our district operated pre previous to this so I'm excited for this. I just hope that we're going to use it for all of our teachers. Especially our black teachers and then I also have a very another question similar to Director Valiant about supporting our students because when we go to special, Ed, we've got like 50-60 years of miseducation of black children in the special Ed area and so historic. How are they going to understand historically? How to not continue the disparities because we haven't picked apart every single policy. That is because this is like a targeted systemic issue. It's not like we can just come in and say, you know, stop doing that to black kids. No, there's policies all embedded all throughout our systems in this country to do that. So if they're just following the rules, they're following the policies they're rolling with how things are supposed to go, how are they going to know that they're not contributing to the disparities of our brown and black kids in our classrooms because I think that our teachers that we have right now have been through the 10 year transition that we've been going through of trying to prevent that so they have things besides policies, professional developments, all kinds of things that have gotten them to a place where they go, wait a minute let's not put the kid out of class for that let me try this other technique I picked up 2 years ago or whatever and that's why we're seeing our numbers go down, but I'm just really concerned about you know putting folks into this space that don't necessarily know the historical background of public schools in America and the impact on brown and black communities and then special Ed specifically over the last 50 years and the impact of brown and black communities that's very concerning to me and I hope that we're going to do some really intensive professional development to give them a thorough understanding of what we have going on in our public schools across the nation as they roll into this very specific position. So, I'm just putting that out there if you have answers then please let me know

One thing that I'd like to share that I think can be in response to a few of the questions. Many of the teachers that we are interviewing have incredibly strong instructional pedagogy in talking with other districts that have brought in international teachers, the teachers that they have brought in have guickly become some of their strongest when it comes to actual instructional practices. Students are making progress in settings in which those same students had not been making much progress the last couple of years and so with the hope that the teachers that we are bringing in have that strong instructional foundation, our immediate priority is going to be helping our these teachers learn about our community learn about our students, we've been really excited that the teachers that we are interviewing are doing a lot of research about St. Paul. They are talking about the diversity in our community, they're asking questions about what we are doing in regards to equity. They are coming into these interviews with having done some research about our district, which is exciting because it shows that they're eager to be here and they're coming wanting to know more that they're coming with a sense of curiosity and wanting to be coached and their many of them are saying, what support can you provide what trading are you going to provide and when we're doing this onboarding training, it's not just going to be instructional practices, it's going to be working with the office of teaching and learning about cultural responsive instruction, we're going to be working with the office of family engagement and community partners

I just want to point out that there is some history that's not right on the surface, and there's understandings that they can't find in books. We just seen the Australian break-dancer. She's a PhD in breakdancing, so books don't teach everything as a matter of fact, sometimes they teach nothing as we saw right and so I'll just say that I have my concerns, I do you know I do understand that they're not coming from the foundation of American education and so they have a different perspective which is great coming into our classroom. I just want them to know what they're walking into because I think that that's going to be really important so that they understand our children as they're continuing to provide culturally relevant curriculum in St. Paul.

Director Valiant: I have found the people who have told me who have immigrated to the US is that almost all the time, they already have a very negative preconceived notion of black people in general, black Americans, because of what they see on TV, because of what they hear, because of the videos that they just shown during their process of coming over people tell them not to associate with us that we are trouble, they see only negative from the majority of the case, negative images of us. I am really concerned with that fact that those biases will be there. I want to make sure that we are addressing that immediately, not dance around the truth, it's not something that I am like making up or that I feel, this is a truth. I am concern about bring people into the district who already have a bias. They can't establish a relationship with black people if they have not interacted with, but this is what they've learned. We need to be addressing that right away.

I could not agree with you more. I think however, I would be remiss, if I did not say that we're making a huge assumption that people who already work here don't have those same biases and may not be operating from the same kind of a perspective, so I agree with you wholeheartedly and I think to help people make the transition that absolutely needs to be a part of it, but I'll be honest to say, I think some of what we're talking about is something that every teacher in the district needs to have it's not just people who are coming from Philippines or from some other foreign country. So I just feel like I have to put that out into space, because that's real.

Agreed!

Director Carrillo: I have some follow-up questions first of all. I'd just like to echo the comments made by Director Valiant and Director Allen regarding this, I wholeheartedly agree that bringing in educators from abroad requires us to do a service to them and to the community it's not independent from each other I think they will be better educators, they will be better people if we help them insert themselves properly into what is St Paul. What's the history of St. Paul, what are the realities of St. Paul and then for our community, we owe it to them. So, in line of that, I have a few follow questions, I think chief Nistler, can you can help me understands the placement only for 6 years. Is that correct?

- I believe the visa is 3 years and it can be renewed, so it would be up to 6 years
- Basically, we would be applying for H1-B Visa, which allows them to work at the end prior to the end of that 6 year period if this is someone who's doing really well in the organization, then it would be up to the district at that point to decide if we're going to sponsor that person basically to get a green card.

What would prevent us from doing that?

If they're not performing well, I don't think we'd be keeping them first of all for the 6 years, but I mean, that would be really the reason that I would see that we would do it. We would now want to retain someone and continue to invest those kinds of financial resources into someone who we did not feel was being successful with our students.

So are they essentially probationary employees for the whole 6 years?

• I don't think that statutorily, we can do that. I would think that they would have fall under the same guidelines as any other employee that we hired through the district that is legally able to work they would have, in this case, they would have a 3 year probationary period so we would need to make a decision prior to the end of the 3 years if we were going to ten-year them. If something happened beyond that 3 years and they had performance issues, and they were significant then the district would then have the decision to make as to whether or not they would continue to sponsor that individual for them to actually move forward to getting the green card.

Then a follow-up question to that is you mentioned that they were going to be licensed through PELSB, can you explain that process to me and does that mean that we don't request a licensure directly through the state because PELSB does it for us?

• PELSB is a state, that's the same licensing agent that licenses every teacher in the state of Minnesota.

So I'm having to disconnect here because I hear that a few years ago there are educators who are required to go through a pathway to get a tier licensure, but now that was closed by the state, these are people who have advanced degrees and meet the requirements, but because they didn't go to school in Minnesota, they're not allowed to get that licensure they have to go to school in Minnesota. So, what what's the difference here, explain it to me.

• It's a little complicated. There are different categories, so the reality is in the state of Minnesota, if you have a Bachelor's degree in an area but you have not gone through a teach a prep program, you got to be eligible to get a tier one license. Once you enroll in a teacher licensure program, they'll change that license from a tier 1 to a tier 2 license that you've got to complete the coursework and take some tests in order to move to a 3 or a 4 license. So 3 or 4 would be considered to be a fully licensed person

So these people are coming in as tier 4 correct.

• Well if it depends it all is going to depend on each individual person's credentials, if someone has already been through a teacher preparation program, and once they look at PELSB people determined because they will actually look course by course to determine whether or not they actually meet the current state requirements for that specific licensure, some people may actually be able to get a tier 3 or a tier 4 a license. Some people may be a 1 or a 2, it just depends on what their credentials are. So, everybody's isn't going to be the same. There are not one size fits all.

So we don't have control over what tier they come in.

• No that is up to PELSB.

Ok, that's good. I do not have other questions just a comment. I fully support programs like this. I think you can get great educators, this way. My students have had educators from other countries that came through here a left because of COVID, but honestly, it really comes down to what the input is and my only concern is that we're going to shove him onto a site and tell the administrator the site you train them. I think we ought to take ownership of this internally and centrally, and I think we have to make sure that these people arrive at the site, ready to hit the road rather than delegating it to staff, you're going to get uneven results.

I would say yes, and no, and here's why I would say that I would say that I think as a district, we have a responsibility to make sure that there is a solid onboarding program that's going to touch on a variety of areas. There are some responsibilities that the site has we cannot, as a district acclimates someone to the site, make sure that people got all the connections that they need at the site that is the administrator's responsibility. So I would say in terms of putting together what that big, overall onboarding program looks like and evaluating that and figuring out how to fine-tune it over time, does lie with our partnership that HR and OSS, DOSL I and a variety of other departments across the district would have, because we want to make sure that we give them the best, but there's still going to be some ownership and responsibility on the administrator at the site to help to make sure that that person has a successful transition there.

Director Vue: My first is with the East African site, adding a sixth grade. I'd just like to hear more about the rationale about that decision and how that decision was made.

• It was the work of the initial program planning committee, including the planning community that evaluated and we looked at if it would be a pre-K to 5 or pre-K to 8, and so it was determined that the program would grow as long as there was interest to a pre-K to 8, and because of the building that we're currently at the old Jackson building has this physical space, the program will continue to remain there for this current school year and the goal is that if the program continues to grow and show interest in a need from the community, we will continue on as of pre-k to 8 and likely the entire program will need to move to a different location. There's enough capacity right now at Jackson to do that, but if we go beyond pre-K to 6, we will need to move to a different location.

So, what I hear is it's a going, it's going according to plan. I just want to make sure, because if we're entering the realm of middle school, the net has to have the stuff that middle school has and I'm pretty sure the planning committee has thought about that.

That is correct

Okay now my second question is around the start time change for the American Indian Magnet program, just same question. The rationale that came behind that in how this decision was made and how the community was informed.

• That is something that we've been working with the community actually for the last year that's not a surprise that they are moving to 930, as you recall, there were a couple of schools a few schools that we had to modify at the start time when we went to metro transit in order for all of them to work and have drivers for every bus, we had them modify some of the schools and so as promised we told those schools that we would eventually get them back until their original tier, which in this participate case, American Indian Magnet is at 930 that aligns with a number most of the other K-8 to all be on that third tier, and then lastly, as you know that the American Indian community, some of their efforts have been intentionally wanting around 1/3 tier, as they seen their attendants digress with students getting there earlier, so they have requested that to have the latest possible tier we could and that's 930.

Thank you, I appreciate that just one last comment. Just I would appreciate all our administrative leaders here under all our directors, forgetting the school year ramped up, this is supposed to be the most exciting part of the school year for us, I hear a lot from our lot, our leaders that there's 2 days of the year school year that's the most exciting, and that's opening day, and that's graduating day. So just embrace this time, that's happening right now, it really is us getting a fuel for what the school year is going to be about and I want to hear and learn everything more about it as we move forward Director Valliant: Can you talk more about fair and equitable grading? What does that mean.

Charlotte Lender Assistant Director High School Program, So fair and equitable grading, this is the third year that we're working on Re-thinking, how grading reflects a student's learning, and it's based on the philosophy of standard space grading, what we've done in St. Paul for the last 2 years, has had conversations with teachers and with students and with families and done a great deal of research in terms of how can we make sure that what shows up on the transcript reflects a student's learning and not simply, the teacher's perception of how a student is behaving in class and how a student is learning in class, and it's based in part there's 2 specific texts, Joe Feldman's grading for equity and also Zareth Hammon's culturally responsive teaching in the brain. So, we've worked many, many people have been part of this project. This is the second year that we're actually implementing it in the high schools, and so in terms of the actual title fair inequitable grading, we're trying to work towards students understanding what it is that we want them to learn and how they can learn better or kind of continue to learn and also, how they can have a role In saying I need help learning with this this grading system doesn't seem quite fair, can I have another opportunity to demonstrate my learning, can I have another opportunity to find a way to apprehend the material in a way that fits with my learning style. So, it really ends up with 3 shared beliefs across the district. One is that grades reflect what students knows one can do. Another of the beliefs is that grades are part of a growth mindset so that students can try again if they haven't learned it the first time and that teachers recognize that need, and the third shared belief is that, as a community, we are working that our systems continue to support students so that they know what is expected to learn that they can find the connection to their life after high school and that their grade then becomes a route there, they participate in their grade instead of simply receiving their grade.

Okay, thank you.

For all the potential staff and teachers out there, Saint Paul Public School, is a great district in the great city. We have a historic city council right now. We have a potential Vice President, right now. We have charred out a superintendent of the year. We have Olympians, right now, so come here, be great. The mission isn't just for our students, is for you too. This is a place for you to grow. Think critically, proceed your dreams and change the world to help our students do the same thing. Thank you

13. BOARD OF EDUCATION

A. Information Requests/Responses and Items for Future Agendas

Director Vue: ARP American Rescue Plan Fundings about to come too close and at some point, in the future I'd like to see a definitive report on how those funds were utilized in terms of what our design was at the beginning, what our workflow was as we were using it in the impact of all our fund. I don't know what the timeline is for that, but at some point, in future, I'd like to see like a definitive impact. A report of how the ERP funds were be utilized.

• We plan to put together a report just as you said, be prepared sometime in January. Director Carrillo: I'd like for the teaching and learning team to make a presentation on 3D-E at Como and Washington understands a little bit more about the program that's going to be developed there and how those partnerships came about and just curious to know more and I think the community would be interested to find out what makes it special and what we can learn from it.

B. Board of Education Reports/Communications

Director Allen: I think I might have missed this last one, last month was so crazy. I was all over the place, but we went to the School Board Partners conference and I went to a workshop that talked about culturally responsive assessments. I got excited, I was like unbelievably excited, and so they were like having us test out these questions to make sure they were culturally responsive because they were trying to pull together with some national group, pulling together culturally responsive assessments. I'm super excited about this, and so everybody keeps doing all your research and digging and looking and digging and looking because as soon as it hits the ground, we want to start running.

2. Director Henderson: What was it all the way back in like the winter? When we started a conversation Director Allen with the council member Nick, about a school time programming that work has continued and has looks a little different now it's more of like a working group, but I think getting closer to a clear question, and in a way of trying to figure out what it is that we want to answer, which feels really exciting to really understand how do we address the needs of our students across our city, but also like how are we all working towards the same problem in a way that feels really cohesive, so that's really exciting, really excited to continue to be a part of that space and then today I was able to join Dr. Thein and folks at the new educator week got to share some good vibes, hopefully with folks and just always, really, I think empowering to live across the room and see folks who are excited to be there. I saw some good responses and some head nods, and just people really turned on to like hear what was happening, and like be engaged, so I'm really excited for this sort of the school year, I know we all are ready to be in school and seeing things kick off.

QUESTIONS/DISCUSSION:

- Good evening, my name is Lillian Hart and I'm here to represent the community members, former students and staff members that all hope to see the Harding atrium renamed for our own Minnesota teacher of the year Michael Houston. As an East Side resident, former student and current colleague of Mr. Houston's. I feel uniquely gualified to speak on his dedication commitment and contributions to the St. Paul Public Schools community, which are vast and lasting for the last 21 years. His reach has extended beyond the classroom to execute the hardest job of all inspiring future educators, he has inspired multiple students to become the kind of people who want to continue his legacy by returning to St. Paul to teach and speaking with other former students turn St. Paul educators, we all agree that we would not be where we are today without his influence and support. I'd like to read an excerpt from a support letter that comes from Dr. Robert Kruger at Concordia University that details the kind of educator and community member that Mr. Houston is when we needed an instructor for an evening section of our math course for prospective elementary teachers. Michael was ready to accept the challenge. This is a tough class to teach because the students assume the math should be easy since they are preparing to teach elementary students. Of course, we are teaching the deeper theory of the foundations of elementary mathematics. Observing him teach this class was fun. His easygoing style, along with his practice. Nope, you are not giving up classroom attitude led the students on a journey to a taste of success and mathematics some for the first time. He later goes on to say. I wanted to discuss his motivation for entering the teaching profession. What Michael said stuck with me. He strives to be a role model for students. Especially for those growing up in a single parent home like he did. He wants all students to know they are loved and that they can be successful, but it won't always be easy. This is exactly the kind of role model. We would like to see memorialized, not simply for his accomplishments, but for his passion. Thank you.
- Evening. I'm Matthew Grill speaking as part of the hearing community, both as a current teacher and an alumni. I was had the honor of playing for coach Kiemel while I was in high school and then continuing to be able to thrive under his tutelage at playing amateur baseball with him and I'm coming today, hoping or presenting his case for naming the Harding baseball field after him, I think in Athletics we very often think that success on the field dictates an honor such as this, and if that were the case Kiemel come out, certainly deserve this honor he was the Harding varsity baseball coach for 38 years. Coaching multiple teams to conference championships being named the St. Paul Public Schools baseball coach of the year numerous times and helping guide the lives of over a 1000 players that he saw in those years. He is the currently has the most wins of any baseball coach in the history of SPPS with over 400 wins. He himself is a very decorated athlete, very decorated baseball. He graduated from Harding high school, where he was a 3 time varsity letter winner, then he went to play at Luther college, where he was 4 time varsity letter winner, including becoming an all-conference college baseball player. He then played a year of baseball in the Chicago Cubs organization before returning home to Harding high school. If that were all there was baseball coach again, I think that would be enough to warrant this honor but that isn't the reason that I believed he should have this field named after him. I'm one of 6 different players that had played for him that then went on to coach either at SPPS or colleges in the area and it was coaches' way of teaching us that it was okay to fail. Baseball is a game of failure. If you fail 7 out of 10 times you're one of the most successful baseball players in any league, and he taught us that failure is okay, as long as it's leading us to work harder and succeed in the next game. It's okay if we don't do it perfectly now. If it's improving us later in the words of wonderful desirous recommendations from Keith statement, who is a former player and the current head baseball coach at Augsburg University and he said, for many of us coach Kiemel was more than just a coach. He was a mentor a leader and a role model. He instilled us the values of hard work, perseverance and sportsmanship, which have carried us through life's challenges both on and off the field. His passion for the game, and unwavering dedication to the students of Harding high school have left a mark on our community. So, thank you for considering this request. I sincerely hope you'll see the merit in recognizing coach Tim Kiemel's extraordinary contributions by naming the Harding baseball field after him.

- I will just say it's been really heartwarming to hear and receive so much positive feedback. I think a lot of times you get a bunch of emails and you kind of think, oh, what is this and to have a bunch of people be like we really believe in this and want to see this happen. This is exciting, to honor some incredible folks like this.
- I'm really curious for folks that like currently work at Harding, what do you envision this like. At least with the students in the school, like how to really uplift whether it's the atrium or field, because that's a space that young folks go through every day, I know, Mr. Houston is still actively teaching at Harding, how do you believe that this may also help influence the culture and climate of the building by having the dedication, I think it's a great idea but I'm just really curious, what would you guys envision on that forefront?
- We talked about that in our committee work, and which is why, as a committee, we decided to let's just pause because we didn't want the traditional plaque and one of the community members says, you know what, we might want to involve the community to design and create a mural. Well, if we're going to design and create a mural, then you know we need to look to find funding in support all of that. The answer really to that is that we need to wait and see and we decided on what we want do.
- We wanted to bring on the excitement of a new school year and get the information out about the recommendation to get that approved and then the fund. It may take 6 months to do it, it depended on how involved it would be or the resource that it's going to take to do that but they definitely want to involve the school community as well as the general community.
- What is the plan then to involve the school community, how is that being rolled out?
- So, the work will lie actually in this school. They haven't asked for that support, but obviously, if they need it, we'll provide at the district level in our mind in our office administration office at the school, but they once approve, then this goal will go back to the larger body at the school and ask for it's a little bit more particular with the baseball field, because there's a very identified targeted area. I know the belief is to provide alumni players, the Athletic department there at Harding, and to your point, everyday students walk through here and we want to be able to make it extremely special, how it's seen and want everyone to feel included as well, so I think the ideal is to really provide something massive, but what that might mean, we need to wait and see if there's an interest. We could come back to support, which is an update, and so important about what the decision was. That would be something board would be interested.
- I fully believe that this would add to the culture and climate of Harding, it's a community that's really been hurting the last couple of years and I don't teach it Harding, but I have attended events that have happened since Mr. Houston won teacher of the year and just to see how the Harding community has really rallied around him and it's really kind of brought some joy back, just to kind of see how his influences really help that communities start to heal. I don't get to walk the halls every day anymore, but I used to love being at Harding and I really think that this will helping bring that back for a lot of our kids.
- I just want to say thank you, that's exactly why we wanted to wait, too is so that we could give students an opportunity because a lot of the committee work was done over the summer. I'm really excited about this. I think it's exciting to uplift members of a community in ways like this, that highlight is the best examples of who we are and celebrate things that have been accomplished.
- I don't know a coach Kiemel, I don't think I've ever met him but Mr. Houston, every time I've met him. I've come away going like, wow, like this guy's great. This sounds like a great idea to me. I do feel like I need to ask these questions just to cover my basis, which is a forced pun based on and being a baseball coach but how broadly is the larger Harding community aware of these potential decisions, and have you heard any objection from anyone?

- I haven't received anything and I will say that was It's my role try to help the committee understand and see that while it may be good for us and we may experience and know both coach Kiemel, as well as teacher Michael Houston, that there could be others out there that may not have had a good experience and may want to have an opportunity to not support this, and so we do need to take time to slow down with all our policy and our procedures with it, and I thank the committees for allowing me to do that and working with me to do that and over the last since, we started in June we officially started the conversation in May, we haven't heard, I haven't heard anything negative or received any negative feedback from the community
- One of the things that led us to do this is we felt we're an education establishment, and we should celebrate our educators when they do great thing and that would be something that everyone can celebrate the staff, the students, the community that comes in to the school and I know that we've reached out to lots of different groups during the summer, Harding had some groups, social groups that got together, we shared that information. We reached out to the baseball team, former players and things like that, so have we done it and reached every corner. We have started it and we will continue to do it until the actual awarding of the area is complete.

6. Executive Audit Summary Presentation for Saint Paul Public Schools (Draft Version)

Superintendent Thein then welcomed Tom and team to present.

Within the presentation were details about:

- Audit results year ended June 2023
- Fund balance as a percent of expenditures in the general fund
- SPPS general fund fund balance activity
- General fund revenues
- General fund expenditures per student ADM
- New GASB implementation and upcoming changes

The full presentation can be found in the BoardBook.

QUESTIONS/DISCUSSION:

- Before we leave the slide, I was wondering at what point in the year is the fund balance measured, because, I'm wondering how this aligns with the budget we adopt in a given year. I'm sure we adopt the budget, and there's a certain fun balance, but then like throughout the year, or certain funds might not be spent.
- So this is measured kind of like an liability where it's just at month-end and maybe some things that have gone into the increase that'd be important to share when you're talking about how this relates to the budget is part of the reason that increased as they were kind of budgeted for positions that were left open during the year. Therefore, you have expenditures, you don't spend the head revenue allocated to that you had more students than you had budgeted for which is a positive thing but that leads to more revenue than you and budgeted for and then the American Rescue Plan dollars that kind of came in with COVID. The district used those strategically to supplant some funding, make sure that they spent the money before the deadline and that allows you to add to the fund balance to then spend down and I think the budget for the next 2 fiscal years is a planned spend down of some of that obviously you can't do that into perpetuity, but I think that that is Kind of part of that same with how that kind of works in with the budget?
- I know you guys have been working on kind of a fund balanced, kind of revision or working through some of that, and I know we've gone through and we know that you have the minimum fund balance requirement of 5% unassigned, it would be maybe look at what you want, your target percent to be a lot of districts have want targeted fund bounds between about 20 and 30%, but they'll have a minimum and a maximum defined of what they're want to do, so maybe something to consider, as you guys work through that.
- So as a clarifying question, I want to make sure I understand correctly. So like this past year, we sent down some in the budget we adopted was pretty close to that 5%, the measurement is not at the point of what we adopt. It's at the end of the fiscal year. What is then remaining that has not been allocated throughout the year, and that's represented by the blue line, and the green line is what is the sort of the fund balance of budgeted 4 plus everything that ends up not being allocated in the way that it meant to.

- The green line represents every think of all of the assets over liabilities, so what's left at year end in total and that also includes the things that are unassigned, but it includes restricted fund balance, you receive money and it has to be spent on a certain thing, it also. Includes non-spendable things so you have prepaids, a prepaid expenditure, you can't actually do anything with that, so it's nonspendable you have a signed fund balance, which is done by management, you have committed what yourself the board is able to commit and then unassigned. As the last bucket, which is something that isn't committed assigned or any of the others, and then that's the blue line does that answer the question?
- Yes, thank you.
- Can you explain what a clean report?
- So, when we say your audit reports, unmodified or clean out, a report that means that your financial statements are materially correct, we are not able to neither does the district or any entity want us. To give you absolute assurance on your financial statements, because absolute assurance means we've audited every possible transaction that could go into or through your district's operations, not feasible. So our under oddity standards, we make sure that they're materially correct, which means we have a calculation that we use according to auditing standards that gives us a number, basically a materiality number, and we want to say, every single number in your financial statements is within that kind of various threshold that allows us to issue that clean honored opinion. If you look at the intro controls for the district, we do not provide an opinion on internal controls, no auditing firm. That is our responsibility is to let you know if we identify any deficiencies or potential deficiencies.
- What is compliance so, yellow book is well when you start talking all different things, accountants are very strange. We have governments have yellow book. If you're a federal government entity, you have something called the green book, all sorts of different things, if you have cars, that's a blue book, also, yellow book is what we call, it's essentially government oddity or generally accepted government auditing standards. So the federal government has basically said, if you're a governmental entity that spends federal funds, we're going to put out this additional requirements for the for auditors to follow, essentially to help increase the transparency, the scrutiny that governments are going through when it looks at internal controls and compliance and things like that. So, when we say that there were no compliance findings when it comes to a vellow book report. What we're looking for when we look at that compliance threshold is say that there was a material there or violation of some type of a contract that could have a significant impact on the financial results. We would need to report that think of a had a huge violation in like an EPA contract or some type of thing like that, or it could be resulting in a significant liability for the district. That's a type of compliance finding we're starting to look at there. Having done this for 20 plus years now, working with local governments. I don't think I've ever actually reported a vellow book compliance finding in my entire career. They're very rare when it comes to that, especially at the local government level.
- So this is a draft, is anything missing there's between this one and the final part
- There probably won't be much difference in information in general, this is pretty finalized. The difference is we have a couple of levels of quality review, the most common things that change in our verbal reports. So, we take your reports like, almost 200 pages long we type up a disclosure, and we adjust it sometimes slightly might change like a couple fund balanced classifications. There's something that process but the overall numbers that you guys are looking at are unlikely to change the single added results, I've kind of alluded to you might see a couple of items pop-up there, since we're still doing some of that compliance testing most likely in the area of procurement. That's what we see most often in districts and he had issues last year with that so that wouldn't be surprising to see. The next time we meet, just because it's more affordable, probably, we might short enough kind of how we present it and unless something new.
- Are there are statics, what is what, perhaps there's, I do a lot of the review and select off recommendation stuff.

- So if the federal guidelines essentially, if you code any payroll to a federal program? If you have like a think, you have like a special Ed director if you code a 100% of their payroll to the program. They're the special Ed director they prospect a 100% of time on special Ed, but say a teacher that, maybe they teach a couple regular classes. Maybe they teach a couple special education classes, they split their time, 20% special at 80% regular. There has to be something documented like A Time certification semiannually, sometimes a time card. Itself will show the coding different districts have different things in place, but there has to be something supporting that allocation, if what's supporting that allocation is well, they spend about 20% of their time in special ed and we don't think it's a compliance issue but for those seeing a lot of purposes, they say, Hey, that's an exception, you have to really document them and then would you say that's a fairly normal finding in terms of comparison with other districts, or would you consider that?
- It's elevated and you know a need for immediate correction, I would say, anytime you have a federal compliance audit and you have a recommendation. I would say that that is a good thing to follow-up on in remedy, okay and definitely improve the process. So any of the results that we provide you guys as the board we have elevated to the level because we think that the district should make progress on them. That being said is it normal to have a couple of allowability items in a district. I would say the occurrence like percentage-wise of our testing is a little bit higher than usual, but also, you're working with a more disaggregated district with more things that go into payroll, so it is a little hard to compare when you're talking. The second biggest district with the other school districts that we audit, so definitely something to focus on and fix, but you'll notice title regular program, no problem, So there's a process in place that works for the district. I think they just need to apply that to special Ed part of what lends lens. Let's that is when everything goes remote and how that worked with time sheets and things going digital, and then then you had your for FY23 is really when it got back into person, we did see a little bit higher degree of that type of recommendation, but again, I would say, right if you're looking at, like 20 or 40 that we're testing, yet definitely something to fix from a documentation perspective, but also understand that we didn't we test these in detail. We look at all the numbers we didn't see anything where we're like, oh, they spent that money or allocated it incorrectly, you didn't really need that approval piece of the allocation.
- So for a competitive absence is where it says this will like to increase the government liability.
- Yes, for account of purposes, right is for accounting purposes, rights so compensated absences is a liability that you guys book. That's it's kind of like the best estimate of if everybody quits at 6:30 am, what's that cost? I mean, that's kind of what it's trying to project. It's not a likely scenario, it's likely never going to happen, but that's how they have you do it. In addition to that, what else is likely to happen and what are people likely to take. If I got a 1000 sick leave hours built up, what's the likelihood I'll take 40 a year, so that's the part that's going to increase. Is, it's really going to for some of those sick hours that aren't accrued, fully. There's going to be an estimate that says, if I've got 2000 sick hours and I only get paid out 500 if I leave, what's the likelihood and how many am I likely to take them 1500 that are left and then they're booking more. Now, that is only on your government wide statements, so it's not really on the Functional pieces, you're looking at from a budgeting perspective, and you guys don't have kind of an internal service fund funding that because you have plenty of coming forward in your regular fund balance, which is signed kind of committed to that, and you wouldn't necessarily have to change how you do that because it's not. It's kind of a fictional liability for the end of the year if that makes sense.
- How many hours does it take to do an audit a $1 billion district?
- If you have all the things you need 12 hours. That's long it takes, but that is broken up with planning, doing the work and then the work gets done, then we review it then Chris reviews it and then QT reviews it. So there are like things you have to do in a certain order. The ideal time frame from start to finish for district the size of probably about 3 or 4 months, and it wasn't during the scheduled time, so I think given the turnover and the things that went on in the finance department, the past couple years, we've been working on them you can kind of see what the findings they're fixing things, as they're kind of catching app with stuff and I do think there is a plan in place to issue much earlier going forward and now we have a dedicated team. I do think there will be progress made in the timeline fronts, if you look start to finish last year was our first year auditing you guys for FY22, which has its own kind introduces the first year and that I think we started in October finished in March and then this year it was kind of started towards the end of May and we'll finish the end of September. We anticipate this year to start beginning November an issue as soon as possible. The most likelihood might be early spring, but we're going to shoot for before December if possible. That'll be a tight turnaround. That's kind of the goal we're going to set with the district internally, and we'll see how that goes.

- Can you help us understand what the delay because I know traditionally districts are accepting their audit by November of it of November, 30th or whatever, I was really just genuinely curious about how much it is total number of like what I would consider billable hours that would exist and so like perform an audit of this and I know that's not the way that like I was just curious how many hours is spending and reviewing and auditing our financial and 1 and 1 thing to maybe point out 12 hours is the ideal amount if we have everything.
- The first time and it's during our scheduled field work, you know, I would say, if you know if it's different timelines, things take longer, you know. If we ever have anything that's incorrect or recommendations like you're seeing that stuff takes longer to look into this year. We aided in the implementation of that, so we had a team that kind of worked with that review contract, so there are things in addition. To the audit that we help with kind of from a procedural standpoint that is ours outside of that, but that's a little more consultative than the actual assurance works we're doing and then just in terms of next steps. we're planning to present the next month at the board meeting with the finalized audit.

7. Presentation - Budget Policy

Motion: Vice Chair Ward motions to move the Budget Policy presentation behind the Ethnic Studies Update presentation. Motion was second by Director Henderson.

Superintendent Thein then invite members of the administration team to discuss this report with Board Members.

Within the presentation were details about:

- Purpose of Board Budget Policy
- Budget policy requirement
- Board budget operations
- Working session
- Post-working sessions and informational meeting
- Budget draft
- Public input and adjustments
- Reallocation and implementation

The full presentation can be found in the BoardBook.

QUESTIONS/DISCUSSION:

- Generally speaking, we have received the district recommendation to what the budget and we have signed off on it. Sometimes we have complained about it a little bit, but then still sign off on it and the way that we have sort of structured our budgeting process, there wasn't really a way for us to be involved at a point before it was too looking to make changes.
- hoping that we can get the board involved in the budgeting process earlier so that we can be productive Partners in making budgetary decisions without it being disruptive to the operations
- The purpose of this policy is set expectations regarding the roles of the community and the board of education in the budget. The process and to establish lines of authority and procedures for the establishment of the school district's revenue and expenditure budgets, the policy of the school district is to establish its revenue at extender budget budgets in accordance with the applicable provisions of law, the annual budget will effectively express and implement the school. District's goals and priorities. So a lot of that is just saying that we will evade a law. The last bit is saying that we will craft our budget to align with the goals and priorities that we have made explicit through our various processes

- It's really basically the practice that we've actually been implementing under the requirement section.
- So the board budget is the section of our overall budget that has to do with you. The board's functions. Rights like our board budget is what we use to pay our board employees, which is our board of the fair and board secretary. It's what we use to pay for our travel and our professional development opportunities.
- The board budget is a section of the district's budget, the funds, the operations of the board of education's prior to April 15th each year, the board of education. So we'll evaluate the current year's board budget and draft aboard budget for the following fiscal year. This task may be delegated to a committee of the board. The board budget will be provided to district leadership for consideration and their first drafts and budget options, the reason why it says here, our dismay be delegated to a committee for is in the past. This has been a function to the extent that we've done it of the board budget committee, and then the intention was to roll that committee into the governments and operations committee so this would allow a committee of the board to make to go through this process, we wouldn't have to delegate to a committee
- when the budget is put together? Is there a timeline included, and in that timeline, how would the board? How would this fit with that timeline? And is there something that would say.
- the board budget, as you know, has its own program type, just like all the other programs, just like all the other things. So I would anticipate this being handled in the same manner as any other program for it and/or any other site, so we typically have those the last 2 years. Anyway, we've typically had those program budgets allocations, allocations to those program leads first week in April. And those usually come after, like about a week that the sites get their allocations.
- this draft policy that we'll get to later that allows us to waive or just requirements in a given year if we feel like we need to I do I do believe that we should probably move that date of April 15th to. A date in April which is April 1st. I think normally we would be having these conversations during our January meeting and subsequent the important retreat about what our needs and what do we need? What do we need to function as a board during a prospective school year or prospective calendar years.
- This board budget will be provided to district leadership for consideration right, it's not a directive, we think this would be beneficial to us, and there's a built-in a way for us to come back and say, we're cutting this year, we really can't do this, that's good and because I'm just thinking about the entire budget process and yes, departments or divisions may say we would like this, but not because they ask, where do they get it but the reality is we actually look at based on the goals and the priorities that have been established because we really use the information that we got from the community.
- Last year we started working on the budget process before way before January. I think January was when we actually had our first working session with the board and provided you with a lot of data and information and so it seems to me like January makes a lot of sense. So, should we say before the end of January, does that make sense. But, I just want to be mindful that that January is when new board members come in so they caught off guard so we have to be upfront with them about this if we move forward with it.
- The working section, so this was somewhat inspired by this section of the of the draft policy was changed in response to and inspired by the working session that we had at the beginning of this year, I think it went pretty well. It was, it was kind of great to see the work that our administration was doing to come to sound budgeting decisions, I was really impressed by it, and this sort of enshrines. A process by which we can continue to do basically everything that you said you were just saying by the end of the third full week of February, the latest, the board should hold a public working session to review a the establishment of a set of parameters for draft budgets for the upcoming school year.

- I guess the question is there anything in this list that we might not need in a given year, just the spending data across school, that's how i was that we had not doing that and that was the only one I mean, everything else we need.
- post works and sessions, slashing informational meetings basically work in section, and this was one section and the committee, I think, at a recommendation by chief sager, I think, was like some of these things are are different enough that like It's like they're not going to have an end to work session, so we should have a different section for them. So I'm just going to redo this. The draft budget options for the upcoming school year based upon the previous discussion, I think this is now will instead of should the draft budget options for the upcoming year school year will include and/or be informed by a relevant efforts to improve student performance gaps the plan to maintain district financial health see outcomes data across schools. The commitment to develop options for any proposed spending increases cuts or reallocations. These options will be specified and based on variable priorities as directed by the board, which speaks to something that is happening in the working session, explicit alignment to the goals of strategic plan of the district, as well as the goals of the board of education if the board has had goals and f staffing and enrollment trends and projections
- what if to get set, we deleted this entire section, and then under the working session, say, something about us setting expectations for updates on the process of developing the budget? My next question's just when how far from when we do the working session that I guess what we would say due during the working session, if at least by that suggestion that it could be anything. Could we also just make sure that there's a section that says, prior to budget adoption, the board will receive presentations that outline specific target funding areas or something to that effect.
- it's already something that is being provided to the board at COB, and BOE right, but then I think what I read from this is just like what information we continue to receive host the working session.
- I know that there's a lot of constraints around what funding we have to do that, and it would really require us to examine our district operations as a whole. In thinking about which positions have the most impact to student achievement, so rather than outcomes.
- the question of bringing it out in the public setting and having the discussion about it, which is something that you know? I guess in the interest of trying to be able to move forward, what if at least for now, it's not included, but if we as a board, think of a way to add it into the policy in a way that makes sense and we're comfortable with, we can do that during the readings of the policy and remember we, I think you made some change up above under the working session that talked about it's not going to be at all inclusive of I don't know, I don't know what the wording is at this point because we talked about so many different things, but that does then give the board to say, you know. Can we have some of this data so that we can't consider this as a part of whatever decision we're make? When we move on to the next section
- The composition of the budget preliminary and final will be a packet composed of required fund allocations comparison to prior fiscal year and a detailed document that breaks down all site allocations, administration departmental funding, displaying dollar amounts.
- There's been constant requests to have information about what does the budget contained, and a lot of the questions that for questioning that we've received on this point has been well, we don't have final data.
- You're going to get the final budget. Come June 30th, and then you will approve it.
- What we want at this point is essentially a SnapShot, and we understand it's going to move, we understand there's going to be more information coming in between April, you know, for a specific date and June 30th that are going to change those numbers. So our understanding is that the main work around setting the parameters and understanding what is driving the decisions that are going to craft this budget happens earlier, the draft gives us the opportunity to say.

- We get in our packet of information. It essentially tells us what is being allocated to school sites, which school sites have, and hopefully, by then, have you know been able to give it back? What is allocated to different departments and not necessarily on a line by line. But you know, we do want to see, like blocks of like money. This is going to operations, this is going to this, and then the final points, which may be contentious, is not necessarily every single contract. But we do want to see a ratio, and we wanna start measuring a ratio of how much money is just getting paid out to contracts contracted services. I think it's something that I'm then we get asked a lot by the community and it's a concern that the community has founded or unfounded, but because there's no information about like how much you spend on contracted services, it's something that we usually just draw blanks and say we're spending money on all these contracts.
- it comes down to distrust from the community about the district's funds. Now what we're trying to do here is clear the air and start building is by building blocks of trust with the community so that they see, this is how much we're spending this is our ratio our ratios going up this year, why we have the information we, you know, purchased this. Thing that we had to purchase, or this year, we pay for all these iPad that needed to get replaced or reading. That's the kind of information that we like to be able to share with the community and be able to have that conversation prior to when the budget is approved.
- It'd be very helpful that people know that contracted services include a lot more than people realize they take a look at it and all of a sudden, they realized that excel energy is a contracted service and having you start putting those things together. People think the district is hiring outside people to do work that could be done by employees in the district, and it's a bigger thing than that, so it's got to be an education for all of us and but especially for the public.
- if I think we talked about that earlier, these are some options to put together a full complete budget and have options like that, by April 1 would be the problematic. I mean, it just wouldn't be practical
- Just as long as we have that sense of expectation and what those options look like, and it's of very much of a framework, a skeletal budget type of thing somewhere right around that time.
- I understood that you're asking for a draft of that before we actually give you the final. Yes, and that's where I that would be challenging to have that done by April 1.
- I think there are a couple things that are really important like making sure that it's not so early that it's impossible to do it, but also making sure it's not so late that once we get the options, we can't make a decision to make changes right or whenever we get the options, it should not be too late to change the budget.
- I don't know that we can automatically give you that because it's because, and the reason why I say that is this because when we gave out allocations to departments, we made a decision as to in order for us to get to, where we wanted to get to for the bottom line number, right. This is the reduction that needed to be made across-the-board, and then we looked at by area by area to see, did that come app to that number, so to be able to tell you, it's going to mean, this is for sure, as where it's going to come from, we're now going to be able to tell you that by April 1st, because we're going to give the allocations off to those areas, they're going to make the decisions where those reductions are going to come from, but the percentage of reduction target that's going to each of those areas is knowing.
- I think April 1st as a deadline makes sense. This is not like the full thing or April COB I think that's good for you. Yeah, April COB we could get a snapshot of it move it over to the budget like final budget.
- Given all the things that we've talked about. Yeah, I'm not sure where the board is at, but I feel like do we not need to see the revised version before this actually goes to a reading.
- Public input, the district help hosts public meetings to get the feedback from community members for the purpose of informing budgetary citizens. At least one of these public input sessions will take place in the fall at least one will take place within 8 weeks prior to the adoption of the budget move so the reason why this is constructed like this, it's not super specific, as far as like what the public says, public and possessions should look like, which gives us some flexibility around that it does specify that this is for the purpose of informing budgetary decisions.

- This is not us, asking people to come to us. So we can tell them how it's going to be, and they don't have a chance to give this feedback that's meaningful. The goal is to really gather feedback the reason why it specifies that one will take place in the fall is because we want these people to be able to speak to us early enough, which prior to the outcome of the budget is because, at some point we are going to start telling people what we're about to spend money on
- The reason why I really would like us to move forward with the readings of possible is because the goals is the try to get this implemented before the end of the year and since we have a 3 reading process it might take a while.

8. Ethnic Studies Update

Superintendent Thein then invite members of the administration team to present this report. Within the presentation were details about:

- Objectives
- Overview of the ST24-25 ethic studies
- Critical ethic studies timeline
- Critical Ethic Studies course overview, goals, curriculum and outcomes
- Support for educators
- Updated MDE requirements
- New Social Studies & Ethnic Studies Standards Implementation Plan
- Ethnic Studies Training Pathways
- Continuous Improvement

The full presentation can be found in the BoardBook.

QUESTIONS/DISCUSSION:

- The other objectives in the front is enlisted ethics on these training headlines. I don't think I saw anything about it or did I miss it half?
- We, this is how we interpreted that question, the training pathways for our teachers and then training pathways for our students, and this is upcoming. We've had the educator cohort in place for all 3 years, and then it's possible.
- Okay, so are we still doing that forward, or is that just what we have done?
- It's still the first one is September 19th, so we've got it on the schedule for this year. They all get together and they work on the curriculum together on a monthly basis.
- In addition to the district wide training previously that there were some training initiatives that I think these teachers were able to opt into, particularly over the summer is that something that they're still able to partake, and I know that was, I've heard from educators if that was a really helpful space to be able to learn and to learn outside of just in this environment,
- We have had a critical, I think studies institute for the last 3 summers, the last one, this past June during the EXPO and that's what we're working towards for next summer, whether it will be a separate institute, as we did for the last 3 summers with the Sierra EXPO or whether it will be a separate Construct, but agree, it's a possible opportunity is a continuation of that CRI EXPO that previously existed or have existed.
- there's nothing specific, because we're still talking with them. We've also had some transitions and staffing; we have a new person who has accepted the position and starting on the 30th of September. I'm having a report who has been doing this work in another district and is really, really part of the when you come MDE cohort, that is the working group for ethnic. We're bringing out ward, and the offer 2 possible opportunities with McAllister are not set in stone, but we did talk to them about some grant funding that has to do with undergraduate students and I'm interested teachers from SPPS, not in a in a joint course learning together around these topics. Again, it's not finalized, it's just conversations, so then this summer, as folks were preparing to go back to buildings, what opportunities were they able to partake, so they could partake in the CRI EXPO? Subset, which is was basically totally separate but on the same days and then the opening week, we had about an entire strand just for those teachers to collaborate with each other and then extra time for them to get together during opening week beyond, they were also invited to a guest speaker for the social studies so that we could start introducing them. They had the options to participate in those areas.

- Should something like the Macalester option fall through? Would our plan then be to find a different pathway?
- We're always going to be paying attention to how we support our educators in the summer.
- I'm really excited about well. First, I'll say the folks who built all of this, we're going to stay on their shoulders and they were giants and they deserve like every kudo that we, I could give fantastic people and how it did fantastic work have chosen to do, move out-of-state and take other opportunities, but the person coming in is going to have a lot of ideas around where we are and where we need to go and the position is funded, which is something that is stable funding for the position and is going into the future.
- We are committed to supporting the social study strand and the critical ethnic studies class, because it's helps our kids get across the stage and as a graduation requirement, so we'll be supporting all the way through okay,
- Like English ten is can be hard, if this is not going well, I don't expect this to go well, because this is a bit of a more advanced class.
- As we explored the data, we were concerned about the critical ethnic studies cohort, and then in comparing it and noticing that they're virtually the same. It's a stay wide problem and many antecedents or reasons that that happens, there's attendance there's engagement, there's understanding of the of the topic. There's the way that it's brought to students. There's also the systems and structures we have, or have had in place around the schedule and the grading systems and the ways that you do school to and we're being more specific about how these things work and how you get your grade and when you're on track, and when how that happens at high school, to improve this system wide problem and so it's not of courses, individual problem per se, it's all of those things together that we have to solve, it's like the Rubik's cube, we have to figure out to make improvements, we just didn't want to blame or hide the actual data from you and it's why we have a credit recovery network, and it's why we have credit recovery at al but anytime a kid needs to go to credit recovery, it takes away one of their options for a college and career seminar or something that they'd maybe really be interested in, because they're redoing something that they missed the opportunity the first time. So we're, we're really cognizant of that, and we're trying to make headway in in all of these things, but we do see it as a system wide problem, and we know that fair and equitable grading is going to help our tightening of our schedules is going to help and then talk into students what's going on, where now have advisory, every single day in every high school that was not part of the system, every Friday. Their advisory teacher is asking them. Hey, how on track are you? How are your grades going, what things can be weak to be working on? How can we approach this and help you to help yourself get all the choices you can get in high school.
- I hear what you say but I feel that ethnic studies is more critically looked at and I will be harder. We shouldn't compare some other classes other classes this isn't doing great either.
- The fair and equitable grading initiative that we have is based on these 3 beliefs that students should know what their grades should reflect what they know and can do that. They should know how they're going to be graded that they have rubrics, that everyone has access to and that they know ahead of time, this is how I demonstrate learning and that they have multiple opportunities to demonstrate and relearn, so in terms of what that process looks like they're in the curriculum that's been built out for critical, I think studies for every unit, there are multiple summative evaluations, so their final assessment, there's a couple ways they can do it. There's also within each school. They have a time frame in which something can be turned in, so it's not. Like it's due the 1 day and you don't get credit if it's not due so the time there's no one deadline for work to be due, so that's another way to make sure that they have apple opportunity to demonstrate what they've learned in terms of relearning the material again, that's different in every school. The teacher's time available to relearn this the material, but what we're supporting with the support, and with the educator cohort is that they designed their curriculum, and it's in the plans already, so that there's like a lag time that students can move ahead or they can relearn, and so it's built into the curriculum that they have time to expand their understanding or to relearn something so that is it is a project. This is our second year of implementing this way of thinking of grading at the high school level.

- Okay. So this is only the second year of this, like fear and equitable grading procedure, while in the past, we've still had recommendations and coursework that students can actually there was still an expectation that there was some relearning able to be had in order to move that needle right?
- Yes, would say, it's much more, it's permeated in the last 2 years in a way that we didn't have it permeated previously and we're learning new things constantly. So certainly, since the pandemic, there's been a relearning, I would say on the part of teachers and students' kind of how we do school, and this is a great opportunity. I'd say to let them know that they have a place they have some agency that they can say I didn't get it, I didn't. I would like another chance at this and now we have the language in place to support them with that.
- I have more questions about that, but I know that this is a conversation about The ethnic studies course and so I wonder if that's not something that we maybe could also go back to just, I think I'm really interested. I think because this option has been available to young folks throughout our system for a long time, and it hasn't necessarily change. I think I appreciate that there is this new renowned effort renewed effort to make sure that that learning is happening and so I'd be really curious to continue studying the results that come with this and so as you all are so interested in that.
- There 16 teachers teaching critical ethnic studies right now. Can you talk a little bit about what the selection are pre-requisite kind of in terms of selecting those teachers to teach?
- When the course was built and the work was put together where there was a St. Paul's school work group on ethic studies and they put together a teacher a job description for a critical essence studies teacher, and it included at that point input from various community groups in the pacs, and the student groups and for the first two well, every year we've suggested to the principals, as here's the job description, we'd like to have a teacher whose life experience reflects the students as much as possible that they've had some understanding of what it takes to teach a critical ethnic studies course, so to prioritize bipoc teachers and/or teachers who've done study in this and so of the 16 teachers. I think 8 of them have been teaching it since the beginning and have been part of this 2 years now, 3 years of building that body of knowledge there have been budget cuts, and so we have, I think 23 new teachers this fall, who did not teach it last year and so that's what we did during opening week was met together, they all met together for 3 and a 1/2 hours, I was with them for part of it and shared with them the work shared with them, like the approaches to learning that you have to really take into account with an excellence with an ethic studies class, so we have the guidelines, it's not always possible to once you're dealing with the reality of the staffing and the budget but that is the guideline and it's like a preferred Teaching role?
- I would also be curious if there's any way that we could see the data comparison. So the folks that have been teaching it for 8 years and maybe have more of that lived in life experience compared to the others and I don't know if you guys could get that data, but I think that would be really interesting, because I think it, this would be, and I would hope that the folks that have experience it more often probably are yielding better results. I guess that's an assumption that I have that I could be way off on.
- Can you talk a little bit around like other departments to what is actually like, can you give us a SnapShot of what's happening during PLCs, what are some of the likes of big projects and curriculum?
- I can speak to the critical ethnic studies plc last year. Is that what you're preferred to so or what the goals are for this year. Yes, so we have a district wide plc data cycle and it involves setting a goal studying, the students in your classroom, how they're assessed how they're learning is showing app if you're pursuing your goal. So, in critical ethnic studies, last year, we actually at the beginning of the year the staff and I planned that they would start looking at attendance and grades in a way that they hadn't looked at the previous year because the previous year, it's a It's a heavy lift to build this course and to teach it, and so the first year was mostly their P LC was spent on teaching pedagogy, and like how to do the teaching last year, they really dove into the grading and the attendants, and they did plc cycles in terms of how do we balance maintaining the rigor and helping students like supporting to the rigor in essence is what happened and so that was the what their plc work was last year, plc's, our teacher directed, so they choose what they're going to focus their work on, so actually one of the professors from Macalester came in opening week last year, August 24 and August 23 and spoke about the history of grading from an ethnic studies perspective and says, let's unpack it from this direction and then look at how we're doing the grading, so I think it was an interesting year and the data that we showed from quarter 4, the grades had they were, they had improved the teachers reported on that themselves, too, that they felt like they had done some solid work in terms of unpacking how they were teaching and keeping the rigor and then supporting the students to the rigor so we hope that that will continue their first educator cohort meeting is September 19th and they will kind of discuss this event. At that point and decide which direction they want to go and we'll support them.

- On the final slide you talked about the evaluation plan for 24-25 school years of the current school year. Can you say a little bit more about what that as a district? What the goals are for the school year within that evaluation plan, are there specific matrix that we're looking for in that or like what projected outcomes? We're hoping to see just so that way at the beginning of this year, we may be able to look at it again. At the end, I know you all are checking that data, but i'm curious what we're working towards as a district for this year.
- We don't have the district wide and a district wide evaluation plan for this, but for critical ethnic studies, the staff and I spoke planned on this in June and July before he left and Brandi sadiki, who will be joining us September. 30th, as our new ethnic studies specialist, we're working on what we can do within the educator cohort, and within the plc, like how what they think would be helpful to be evaluated, and then as a department will be working on like what our evaluation is by the end of the year, but I would have been more details for that. I could speak to briefly the last 2 years, as part of because the teaching that specialist position is funded, there is some reporting that goes back and so we've worked with rea to gather data from students and from the teachers that way so what I hear is we're trying to take this year or some of this year to actually create a more like structure of evaluation plan for me
- So, in the in the goals of the critical ethnic study slide, our last point is developing critical thinking skills to empower them to the agents, a positive change and more equitable future. And that's something that we, I was part of that board in 2021, approving these goals for this, for this requirement and I'm curious to know if we have things kind of connecting that to our conversation around the outcomes of the critical ethnic studies have we asked our educators one are we meaning that goal and how what they're feeling is about, you know this, you know, this last couple of points specifically, what's the connection between that and our students' reading comprehension as they're entering this class, because I'm assuming they're taking it around the 10th grade most of them, and so what's that is, there a correlation that we could see understands that, you know if we can get our prepare, our students with better comprehension skills as they arrive. Would their experience be better? Not necessarily outcomes. It just measured in grades. but actual experience, like their critical thinking are improved and more importantly, there their connection to their community more relevant. So I'm just curious to know, I think we've asked a lot of questions around this table and that really come down to the fact that we're all very, very interested. I can hopefully speaking for all the board members, and we're all very, very interested in outcomes and understanding. You know what are things that we can do here to make the educator's lives better. Their work better and the outcome of the students better, so just thoughts, maybe it's, I don't know if it's more of a question as much as it was a data point request to kind of start asking educators, what are things that would improve the quality of the experience from the students' perspective but before they arrive into the class.
- I know that the teachers have spoken about what making sure that the material speaking to the student's literacy level, making sure that the students have options for materials and so all the units already built into the curriculum, we have videos, we have different leveled readings, we have speakers coming in and the assessments they can respond in written form in recorded form in verbal form in conversations so that part of it. I would say, we're working on it, we can get better and I agree that that would be an interesting data point to gather, if we could get the, if we can get the reading level and then compare It based on the level of the materials that they're interacting with that would be interesting. I'm not sure if another part of your question was, if the evaluation would also look at how they see themselves developing their thinking skills. I don't know if that's measurable as much as it is like an output of the educators themselves reporting that the outcome of the class you know, at the end of the year, or at the end of the semester is better and that's something that I would trust the educators to tell me. So I'm just curious to know if that that's being gathered in a survey format or something some way like that. I think it definitely can be part of the evaluation process for this year.

- So in slide 6, I'm interested to know what are the 7 principles of it studied. Oh yeah,
- and I'm just going to call it up. The work group in St. Paul public schools built the curriculum in those 4 units and those themes of like developing identity, understanding the importance of advocacy based on the 7 principles. And so let me see if I can. I will have to I don't have them printed out here so I'll have to come back to you with them. But it's some of them are balance, community peace within self Knowledge of identity and I don't have the other 3 right here, but they are exemplified in the curriculum in those 4 units whisk. One of them is the important advocacy as a tool against depression and I will have to make sure that I'll just send them to before I leave.
- What's asked of students right based and another thing I want to point out is on slide 11, because I don't know a few people if the cohort is not about this, but because of the interdisciplinary nature of critical ethic studies, shouldn't it be like a foremost part for English ten like the odd feeling better at English ten? Wouldn't they, because they know some of the principles of essentially, and they can apply it? so what I'm saying is based on the 7 principles of ethnic studies and the students kind of learning all those principles.
- I would say, I can't speak exactly to what the cohort is focusing on, but I know they deeply value the interdisciplinary aspect of the course, and they have had many conversations that I've at least been privy to about the value and the power that will come from having ethnic studies be that strand as it's built into the curriculum moving forward. As it stands now, its critical ethic studies is a 2 credit. During 10th grade, and they could be taken in the fall or the spring. English 10 is all year long, so they're kind of overlapped in some way or another, but I would say, personally, that is a deep hope that, as students are learning more through the ethnic studies framework, they'll be able to bring more of this to their other courses
- Just one question about the student survey, based on what we heard from the students. We're going to kind of address that need and go forward. What exactly did come out of the students early?
- The student surveys were conducted as I said, mid-semester and end of semester, and the results were shared with their teachers themselves. The ethic studies specialist also talked about them in the educator cohorts, there were a lot of the percentage of students who took the study was not a 100%. So I think last year, throughout the year, they averaged about 40% of the students during the 4 times that the survey was sent out, and so I don't have the specific grade, but it was overwhelmingly positive. What the students reported in terms of their experience with the class having said that 40% of the students took it, and so then that makes me wonder about the 25% that aren't passing the class, did they not take the survey but that I don't have the evidence on that.

Contacts are made via mail, phone and email and in home languages. Parents/guardians have had a minimum of 30 days to comply with the law after they are informed that their child is non-compliant.

BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Education (the Board) of Independent School District No. 625 (Saint Paul), Minnesota (the District), as follows:

SECTION 1. AUTHORIZATION. The District is authorized, pursuant to Minnesota Statutes, Section 126C.55 and Chapter 475 to refund its outstanding general obligation school building bonds. This Board hereby determines that it is necessary and desirable and in the best interest of the District to issue its General Obligation School Building Refunding Bonds, in a principal amount not to exceed $14,700,000 (the Refunding Bonds), the proceeds of which will refund, in a current refunding, on February 1, 2025 (the Redemption Date), the 2026 and 2027 maturities of the District's outstanding General Obligation School Building Refunding Bonds, Series 2013B, dated June 25, 2013, and issued in the original principal amount of $28,635,000; and the 2026 through 2036 maturities of the District's outstanding General Obligation School Building Bonds, Series 2015A, dated as of June 11, 2015, and issued in the original principal amount of $15,000,000 (collectively, the Refunding). The purpose of the Refunding is to achieve debt service savings.

SECTION 2. SOLICITATION AND AWARD AUTHORIZATION; AWARD PARAMETERS.

- A. In order to accomplish the purposes set forth above, the District has retained PMA Securities, LLC, in Albertville, Minnesota (PMA), as its independent municipal advisor with respect to the sale of the Refunding Bonds. PMA is hereby authorized to solicit proposals for the Refunding Bonds on behalf of the District on a competitive basis without requirement of published notice, in accordance with Minnesota Statutes, Section 475.60, subdivision 2, paragraph (9). The Superintendent, the Executive Chief of Financial Services and the Executive Chief of Administration and Operations, and each acting individually (each an Authorized Officer), in consultation with and upon the advice of representatives of PMA, are hereby authorized to approve the sale of the Refunding Bonds and to execute one or more bond purchase agreements for the Refunding Bonds with the purchaser(s) of the Refunding Bonds, provided that the aggregate principal amount of the Refunding Bonds shall not exceed $14,700,000, the true interest cost thereof shall not exceed 5.50%, and the Refunding results in a positive net present value savings.
- B. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this Section 2, the adoption of this resolution alone shall not be deemed to establish any obligation on the part of the District to approve the award of the sale of the Refunding Bonds or cause the Refunding Bonds to be issued.

SECTION 3. SERIES DESIGNATION OF REFUNDING BONDS. Pursuant to a resolution adopted on July 18, 2023, this Board authorized the issuance and sale of the District's General Obligation Facilities Maintenance Bonds, Series 2024, in a principal amount not to exceed $44,900,000 and a true interest cost not to exceed 5.50% (the Facilities Maintenance Bonds). Pursuant to a resolution adopted on August 22, 2023, this Board authorized the issuance and sale of the District's General Obligation School Building Bonds, Series 2024A, in a principal amount not to exceed $15,000,000 and a true interest cost not to exceed 5.50% (the School Building Bonds). The District subsequently authorized and issued its $101,315,000 Full-Term Certificates of Participation, Series 2024A, dated as of March 7, 2024 (the Series 2024A COPS). It was thereafter determined to combine the Facilities Maintenance Bonds and School Building Bonds in a single series of bonds (the School Building and Facilities Maintenance Bonds). With the issuance of the Series 2024A COPS, the combined School Building and Facilities Maintenance Bonds are intended to be designated as Series 2024B Bonds.

This Board hereby authorizes the Refunding Bonds; provided the parameters set forth in Section 2A are met. The Refunding Bonds are intended to be designated as the Series 2024C Bonds.

The foregoing provisions of this Section 3 shall not prevent the Board or the Authorized Officers from issuing and awarding the sale of the Refunding Bonds combined with the Series 2024B Bonds, if this Board or the Authorized Officers, in consultation with PMA, determines it appropriate to do so.

SECTION 4. BOARD RATIFICATION. Upon approval of the award and sale of the Refunding Bonds by an Authorized Officer and execution of one or more purchase agreements, the Board will take action at a regularly scheduled or special meeting thereafter to adopt one or more approving resolutions prepared by Dorsey & Whitney LLP, counsel the District (Dorsey), among other things, ratifying award and sale of the Refunding Bonds, providing for the terms and conditions with respect thereto, and authorizing the execution of additional documents, instruments and certificates. Notwithstanding the expectation that the Board will ratify the award and sale of the Refunding Bonds at a subsequent meeting, execution of any purchase agreement with respect to the Refunding Bonds o prior to such meeting shall be binding upon the District as of the date of execution and ratification of such action shall not be required.

SECTION 5. OFFICIAL STATEMENTS; LEGAL DOCUMENTS; ADDITIONAL AUTHORITY. PMA, on behalf of the District, and employees and officers of the District, are hereby authorized to prepare and distribute one or more preliminary official statements (whether one or more, the Preliminary Official Statement) related to the Refunding and the sale of the Refunding Bonds. Any Authorized Officer, or any duly authorized delegate thereof, shall deem the Preliminary Official Statement substantially final in accordance with applicable federal securities laws. The Authorized Officers, and each individually, are hereby further authorized to review and approve the distribution of any addenda or supplements to the Preliminary Official Statement which are useful or necessary in connection with the marketing and sale of the Refunding Bonds PMA, Dorsey, the Authorized Officers and employees and officers of the District are hereby authorized to take any additional actions, including but not limited to the negotiation and execution of documents or the engagement of other third-parties (including a trustee), as may be useful or necessary in connection with the Refunding and the Refunding Bonds.

SECTION 6. STATE CREDIT ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM.

The District hereby covenants and obligates itself to notify the Commissioner of A. any potential default in the payment of the principal of or interest on the Refunding Bonds and to use the provisions of Minnesota Statutes, Section 126C.55 (the State Payment Law), to guarantee (to the extent provided therein) payment of the principal of and interest on the Refunding Bonds when due. The District further covenants to deposit with the Registrar selected for each particular series of Refunding Bonds, or any successor paying agent, not less than three days prior to each interest and principal payment date for the Refunding Bonds an amount sufficient to make that payment or to notify the Commissioner as provided in the State Payment Law that it will be unable to make all or a portion of that payment. The Registrar for the Refunding Bonds, as the case may be, is authorized and directed to notify the Commissioner if it becomes aware of a potential default in the payment of principal of or interest on the Refunding Bonds, or if, on the date two business days prior to the date a payment is due on the Refunding Bonds, there are insufficient funds on deposit with the applicable Registrar to make that payment. The Registrar for the Refunding Bonds shall be required to cooperate with the District, the Commissioner and the Commissioner of Management and Budget in implementing the provisions of the State Payment Law. In the event that amounts sufficient to make any such interest or principal payment are held by an escrow or paying agent and invested as authorized by Minnesota Statues, Chapter 475, and such escrow or paying agent is required to use proceeds from such investment to pay to the Registrar the amount necessary to pay such interest or principal on such payment date, then the requirements of the State Payment Law relating to the deposit of such amounts with the Registrar prior to the payment date of such interest or principal shall be deemed satisfied and neither the District nor the Registrar shall be required to notify the Commissioner that insufficient funds are available to pay such interest or principal on such payment date. The District shall do all other things which may be necessary to perform the obligations hereby undertaken under the State Payment Law with respect to the Refunding Bonds, including any requirements hereafter adopted by the Commissioner or the Commissioner of Management and Budget. The District understands that as a result of its covenant to be bound by the provisions of the State Payment Law, the provisions of the State Payment Law shall be binding as long as any Refunding Bonds remain outstanding.

B. The Authorized Officers, each acting individually, are hereby authorized to prepare or cause to be prepared, and to execute, any applicable Minnesota Department of Education forms related to the State Payment Law in connection with the issuance of the Refunding Bonds.

SECTION 7. EXPIRATION OF AUTHORITY. If the Authorized Officers have not approved the sale of the Refunding Bonds and executed the related purchase agreement by December 31, 2024, this resolution shall expire.

Upon vote being taken on the foregoing resolution, the following voted in favor thereof: and the following voted against the same:

Why are we proposing the adoption of this policy?

- The current Gender Inclusion Policy is exclusive to students
- See proposed policy HERE

192

Purpose of policy: This policy addresses the inequities some staff, including intersex, transgender, gender diverse, and gender creative staff confront as they navigate a system designed using a cisgender, binary model.

General Statement of policy: The staff of Saint Paul Public Schools (SPPS) deserve respectful and inclusive work environments that foster a sense of belonging and value their gender identity and gender expression. SPPS ensures that all staff have access to inclusive professional development opportunities, work settings, and facilities in which they feel comfortable, safe, and supported.

Revised definition since last reading

D. Gender Identity refers to a person's inherent sense of being a man, woman, both, or neither. A person's gender identity may or may not correspond to their assigned sex at birth or to their primary or secondary characteristics. A person's gender identity is not necessarily visible to others. deeply held sense or knowledge of their own gender, including their name and pronouns.

Additional definition beyond terms used in policy for students:

K. Transitioning refers to the process of someone making changes to live according to their gender identity, also known as gender affirmation.

• Additional language is included in the final definition for transitioning.

IV. Ensure Gender Inclusiveness

A. Respect the gender identity and gender expression of all staff members by honoring their right to be identified and addressed by their self-identified name and pronouns.

B. Within professional development and work meetings, prohibit the separation of staff and/or work materials based upon gender unless it serves as a compelling and ragogical approach and/or pedagogical tool.

C. Provide all staff with equitable access to facilities that best align with their gender identity, and/or the facilities the staff feels comfortable and safe accessing.

D. Employees often continue to work while they transition. Administrators and supervisors must be sensitive to transgender, gender diverse, or gender creative employees' reported concerns related to issues of belonging, safety, privacy, and needs associated with transitioning under the Minnesota Human Rights Act.

IV. Regulations (Additional Section)

A. Confidentiality and Privacy

Saint Paul Public School employees have the right to disclose or keep private their gender identity and/or gender expression. Staff elect when and with whom they share their private information. Personal and medical details related to an individual's gender identity and/or transgender status is their private information and legally protected. Individuals must consent to others disclosing their personal, private information. Circulating information and/or details about a staff member's gender identity, gender expression, or gender transition is unacceptable. These practices do not align to creating belonging in SPPS through an inclusive, safe, and supportive work environment.

B. Official Records

Employees have the right to update their self-identified names and pronouns with Human Resources through the district's employee information management system. Employee's self-identified names will be reflected in their email addresses, technology display names, and ID badges. The staff member's pronouns and photograph on their ID badge may also be updated to reflect the employee's gender identity and expression. Employees do not need to produce documentation of a legal name change in order to update their self-identified name with HR. Documentation of a legal name change is required for an update to employee records beyond the district's information system (i.e. Federal and State tax documents).

A. Dress Code

Saint Paul Public Schools will not restrict an employee's clothing, appearance, or expression on the basis of gender identity.

Board Policy 509: Use of Peace Officers and Crisis Teams to Remove Students with IEPs from School Grounds

Board Of Education | September 17, 2024

Why are we proposing this policy?

Required per Minnesota Statute 121A.55(f)

• The statute specifically states, "Each school district shall develop a policy and report it to the commissioner on the appropriate use of peace officers and crisis teams to remove students who have an individualized education program from school grounds."

Policy 509 Purpose

Purpose of policy: The purpose of this policy is to describe the appropriate use of peace officers and crisis teams to remove, if necessary, a student with an individualized education program (IEP) from school grounds.

• Only used in emergency situations (defined in law)

Click to view updated draft policy

Special Education Considerations

- If a student is removed, this policy requires parental notification and outlines responsibilities of the IEP team
  - Parents notified as soon as possible (same day)
  - Outlines when an IEP team meeting must take place
    - Repeated removal MUST be reviewed by an IEP team for consideration in developing the IEP

Policy 509 Communication (new slide)

- School Year 24-25: Office of Specialized Services will send communication to all parents of students with disabilities
  - Partnership with Special Education Parent Advisory Council (SEAC)
  - Letter explaining the new policy
    - Reference to the state statute regarding policy
    - Statement about state/federal law already in place
    - Overview of parental rights
    - Contact information if they have questions about the policy

Moving forward

 Integrate this notice into other communication and updates to parents (e.g., Rights and Responsibilities Handbook, etc.)

What Will Change Once This Policy Is Adopted?

Nothing.

Historically, we have been following these procedures. We are now proposing to adopt a policy based on statute requirements to have a policy.

This policy will not result in an increased presence of law enforcement in our schools.

What Does it Look Like In Practice?

- Here in SPPS, it is very rare that students with Individualized Education Program (IEPs) are removed from school grounds.
- When this does occur, 99% of the time it is internal staff (not police) that is removing students with IEPs
  - Security and Emergency Management (SEM) team members drive the student(s) home; many times a social worker is accompanying SEM
  - SEM follows the parameters of the student's IEP
- In response to the behavior, the district/school work with parent(s)/guardian(s) to continually review student's IEP and update it

Budget Policy

Preamble

Saint Paul Public Schools recognizes the importance of community input as spending decisions are made. SPPS will strive to make decisions in a collaborative and transparent manner, providing members of the SPPS community with means by which they can influence the district's spending decisions.

This was split apart from the 'Purpose' section at last week's COB meeting. This serves as a statement of values.

Purpose

The purpose of this policy is to set expectations regarding the roles of the community and the Board of Education in the budgeting process and to establish lines of authority and procedures for the establishment of the school district's revenue and expenditure budgets. The policy of the school district is to establish its revenue and expenditure budgets in accordance with the applicable provisions of law. The annual budget will effectively express and implement the school district's goals and priorities.

This text is a mix of the MSBA model policy and some original language. It explains the purpose of this policy.

Requirement

- A. The school district must maintain separate accounts to identify revenues and expenditures for each building. Expenditures shall be reported in compliance with Minnesota Statutes section 123B.76.
- B. Prior to July 1 of each year, the school board shall approve and adopt its initial revenue and expenditure budgets for the next school year. The adopted expenditure budget document shall be considered the school board's expenditure authorization for that school year.
- C. Each year, the school district shall publish its adopted revenue and expenditure budgets for the current year, the actual revenues, expenditures, and fund balances for the prior year, and the projected fund balances for the current year in the form prescribed by the Minnesota Commissioner of Education within one week of the acceptance of the final audit by the school board, or November 30, whichever is earlier. A statement shall be included in the publication that the complete budget in detail may be inspected by any resident of the school district<sup>2</sup> upon request to the superintendent. A summary of this information and the address of the school district's official website where the information can be found must be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the school district. At the same time as this publication, the school district shall publish the other information required by Minnesota Statutes section 123B.10.
- D. At the public hearing on the adoption of the school district's proposed property tax levy, the school board shall review its current budget and the proposed property taxes payable in the following calendar year.
- E. The school district must also post the materials specified in section C above on the school district's official website, including a link to the school district's school report card on the Minnesota Department of Education's website, and publish a summary of information and the address of the school district's website where the information can be found in a qualified newspaper of general circulation in the district.

This text is from the MSBA model policy. It puts legal requirements into policy language. It does not change our current practices.

Board Budget

The Board Budget is a section of the district's budget that funds the operations of the Board of Education. Prior to the end of January each year, the Board of Education will evaluate the current year's Board Budget and draft a Board Budget for the following fiscal year. This task may be delegated to a committee or workgroup of the Board. This Board Budget will be provided to district leadership for consideration in their first drafts of budget options.

This section explains that the Board is responsible for developing our own budget for consideration in the larger budget package. In the past, we have been told what our Board Budget would be for the following year. That decision was made without our input. Going forward, we will evaluate our needs and develop a proposal for our own financial operations each year. This language allows this task to be delegated to one of our committees. In the past this would have been the Board Budget committee. Under our current structure, this would likely be the Governance Committee. At the COB meeting, we moved the deadline from April to January and added the word 'workgroup' to this section.

Working Session

By the end of the third full week of February at the latest, the board will hold a public Working Session to establish a set of parameters for draft budgets for the upcoming school year and to review information such as:

- A. A forecast of projected revenues and expenditures;
- B. Legislative impacts;
- C. Parameters for Collective Bargaining Agreement settlements,
- D. Inflationary pressures; and
- E. Feedback from principals, parents, employees, students, and other relevant community input on budget 215 priorities.

This provides us with an opportunity to do our budgeting work in a transparent way. This working session will look much like the budget work session we had earlier this year. We will review the available data and give administration specific direction about the budget options we would like them to prepare for our consideration. At our COB meeting, we rephrased this section slightly for greater clarity.

Budget Options

It shall be the responsibility of the Superintendent and designated staff members to prepare presentations regarding the specified budget options. These options will be publicly submitted to the Board no later than the April Committee of the Board meeting each year. The draft budgets shall include a multi-year (at least three-year) forecast of projected revenues and expenditures and other material assumptions. These budget options should be crafted using data on the effectiveness of existing programs and expenditures, and should be explicitly aligned to the strategic plan of the District as well as the goals of the Board of <sup>216</sup> Education, if the Board has set goals.

This section provides a deadline by which we must receive drafts of the budget options. The goal here is to make certain that the Board and the community has opportunities to influence budget decision before it is too late to make changes.

Final Budget

The composition of the final budget will be a packet composed of required fund allocations, comparison to prior fiscal year, and a detailed document that breaks down all site allocations, administration departmental funding, displaying dollar amounts, and FTE's. The Board will be provided with a document outlining the district-wide expected contracted services by dollar amount and percentage of total fund.

This is a new section that details the information we expect to be included as the budget is presented.

Public Input

The district shall host public meetings to gather feedback from community members for the purpose of informing budgetary decisions. At least one of these public input sessions will take place in the Fall. At least one will take place within the eight weeks prior to the adoption of the budget.

These input sessions are meant to be used to gather feedback that can influence spending decisions in substantive ways. The Fall session is early enough to take place before decisions have been made. The one that takes place within eight weeks prior to adoption is late enough to give us feedback on the decision we are about to make.

Adjustments

The Board of Education may shift or waive the deadlines in this policy by majority vote when necessary and allowable by law.

This section was written to address concerns that we may not be able to meet 219 certain deadlines in a given year due to unusual circumstances. Instead of removing deadlines from the policy, this section allows the Board to waive or alter deadlines for a budget cycle if necessary.

Reallocation

The Superintendent shall be authorized, in their sole discretion, to make such changes within the various budget classifications as they may deem necessary. The Board of Education will be informed of reallocations of general funds between program types of more than $350,000.

This language gives the Board a chance to review substantive changes to the budget during the fiscal year. Executive Chief Sager provided us with the $350,000 figure as a suggestion for an appropriate amount.

Adoption

The Board of Education will demonstrate the following prior to the final budget adoption:

- A. The Board has collected and used public input to inform budget allocation.
- B. The Board has completed a working session as outlined in this policy.
- C. The Board has reviewed the requested budget options.
- D. The Board has either amended and/or adopted the budget by majority vote.
- E. The Board has completed a review of substantive reallocations between program types of 221 more than $350,000 in the prior year's budget.

This is a new section meant to improve accountability as we adopt our budget each year.

Implementation

- A. The school board places the responsibility for administering the adopted budget with the superintendent. The superintendent may delegate duties related thereto to other school officials, but the superintendent maintains the ultimate responsibility for this function.
- B. The program-oriented budgeting system will be supported by a program-oriented accounting structure organized and operated on a fund basis as provided for in Minnesota statutes through the Uniform Financial Accounting and Reporting Standards for Minnesota School Districts (UFARS).
- C. The superintendent or the superintendent's designee is authorized to make payments of claims or salaries authorized by the adopted or amended budget prior to school board approval.
- D. Supplies and capital equipment can be ordered prior to budget adoption, as authorized by the superintendent or designee. Other funds to be expended in a subsequent school year may not be encumbered prior to budget adoption unless specifically approved by the school board.
- E. The school district shall make such reports to the Minnesota Commissioner of Education as required relating to initial allocations of revenue, reallocations of revenue, and expenditures of funds.

This language is from the MSBA model policy and does not change our
