Unit 1: INTRODUCTION TO TEXT ANALYSIS

Rationale: The Introduction to Text Analysis unit is used to introduce students to the basics of literary study and informational reading strategies; we begin to identify important literary terminology and apply these skills to the stories we read. The unit is also used as a means of teaching relevant reading strategies, such as meta-cognition, text connections, and inferential reading, which will serve students in terms of navigating both literary and informational texts. The selected works will provide profound insights into the human condition and serve as models for students' own thinking and writing. Along with high-quality contemporary works, these texts should be chosen from among seminal U.S. documents, the classics of American literature, and timeless examples of world literature.

Essential Questions

English Language Arts
Grade 7

- What are common literary devices used across literature?
- How can we connect the texts we read to our own lives? To our world? To other works of literature?
- What are the varieties of conflicts one may face?
- What are the elements of literature? How do we see them utilized in the stories we read?
- What strategies can we employ to help us better comprehend the stories we read?
- How do we draw inferences using details and examples from the text in fiction and nonfiction?
- How does an author use reasons and evidence to support main ideas in a text?
- How do we integrate information from multiple texts on the same topic?

CRP7. Employ valid and reliable research strategies. Career-ready individuals are discerning in accepting and using new information to make decisions, change practices or inform strategies. They use reliable research process to search for new information. They evaluate the validity of sources when considering the use and adoption of external information or practices in their workplace situation.

CRP8. Utilize critical thinking to make sense of problems and persevere in solving them. Career-ready individuals readily recognize problems in the workplace, understand the nature of the problem, and devise effective plans to solve the problem. They are aware of problems when they occur and take action quickly to address the problem; they thoughtfully investigate the root cause of the problem prior to introducing solutions. They carefully consider the options to solve the problem. Once a solution is agreed upon, they follow through to ensure the problem is solved, whether through their own actions or the actions of others.

CRP9. Model integrity, ethical leadership and effective management. Career-ready individuals consistently act in ways that align personal and community-held ideals and principles while employing strategies to positively influence others in the workplace. They have a clear understanding of integrity and act on this understanding in every decision. They use a variety of means to positively impact the directions and actions of a team or organization, and they apply insights into human behavior to change others' action, attitudes and/or

Unit 2: RESEARCH

English Language Arts
Grade 7

Rationale: One of the most important skills that students must acquire is the ability to conduct independent research in order to create a written product. This skill will obviously be required of students in future English classes, but will also prove essential to performance in other disciplines. To become college and career ready, students must grapple with works of exceptional craft and thought whose range extends across genres, cultures, and centuries. Through wide and deep reading of literature and literary nonfiction of steadily increasing sophistication, students gain a reservoir of literary and cultural knowledge, references, and images; the ability to evaluate intricate arguments; and the capacity to surmount the challenges posed by complex texts. Students will utilize fiction and/or nonfiction readings to facilitate the research process, and will create a written product to demonstrate their findings. Students will also be expected to demonstrate speaking and listening skills and present their research in some capacity.

Essential Questions

- How do I know if the information that I have researched is reliable and valid?
- What does it mean to plagiarize? Why is it necessary to avoid plagiarism?
- How do I keep track of all of my sources and notes? Why is this necessary?
- What does it mean to cite a source? Why are parenthetical citations and works cited pages essential for research?

Unit 3: LITERATURE AND NARRATIVE WRITING

Rationale: The Literature and Narrative Writing unit is designed with a focus on the important elements of a story: plot, conflict, characterization, etc. Students will explore these and other essential literary terms through their reading of selected short stories and novels. Students will then apply their understanding of story elements to their own writing, where they will demonstrate the ability to synthesize the various components of a story into an original narrative.

Essential Questions

- What can fiction do better than nonfiction? Why?
- How do the characterization, conflict, and plot of a work of nonfiction differ from those of a work of fiction?

English Language Arts
Grade 7

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What makes fiction narrative different from other types of writing? • What are the main characteristics of a short story? • Who are the likely readers and audience for this form of writing? • How do I make my story more interesting to my readers? • What kind of organization could be used for this form of writing? • What kind of voice would be most effective for this form of writing? • What role does/can figurative and/or sensory language play in fiction narrative writing?

Unit 4: HISTORICAL AND CLASSIC READING

Rationale: This unit will allow students to engage with some of the most influential canonical texts in literature, as well as works that exist within a specific historical era. In addition to novels, students can also explore other classic modes of literature such as drama, poetry, etc. Students will be expected to write informative and explanatory pieces in which they investigate specific aspects of their readings, such as historical time periods, relevant biographical information about authors/subjects, and so forth. Classes will also engage in Socratic discussions or class debates about issues raised in their readings and writings.

Essential Questions

- What makes characters in historical fiction believable?
- Why do characters do what they do and feel how they feel?
- What are the details that make a story seem realistic?
- Why can readers see their own life in some stories?
- What can a reader learn from reading historical fiction?
- What strategies could you use to see the world through the eyes of others?
- What makes poetry different from other literary genres?
- What are the main characteristics of poetry and description?
