Course Name: Philosophy and Literature/Honors Philosophy & Literature

Born On: August, 2024
Previous Revision: August, 2023
Board Approval: 8/26/24

COURSE DESCRIPTION: Philosophy and Literature/Honors Philosophy & Literature

Great literature asks many questions of its readers: What should we do? Why are we here? How should we live? As such, the Philosophy and Literature course asks students to consider the questions that have intrigued, challenged, and bewildered thinkers and writers for millennia. Through an exploration of philosophical texts created by prominent voices in the fields of thought, culture, art, and more, students will consider how they feel and what they think about these eternal questions, while learning about the ways that others have wrestled with these thoughts throughout time. Additionally, students will practice their writing skills in argumentative, narrative, and expository modes. Multiple opportunities are provided for individual and group projects, as well as oral presentations.

NJ Statutes & Administrative Mandates

N.J.A.C. 6A:8-1.1: The New Jersey Student Learning Standards specify expectations in nine content areas. The standards are further delineated by performance expectations that outline what students should know and be able to do at individual grades or benchmark grades two, five, eight, and twelve.

Unit 1 : The Examined Life (An Introduction to Philosophy and Literature)

Unit Description/Overview: In this unit, students will be introduced to the fundamental functional components of philosophical thought, through both an exploration of seminal texts in the field of philosophy as well as the application of a philosophical framework to contemporary texts across modalities.

Approximate time frame: 3-4 weeks

Essential Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Why and how is philosophy defined, studied and organized?• How do philosophers think, reason, argue and agree?• How did philosophy originate and develop?• Why should people study philosophy in the first place?• How are philosophical concepts integrated into literature?
NJSLS Standards	RI.CR.11–12.1. Accurately cite a range of thorough textual evidence and make relevant connections to strongly support a comprehensive analysis of multiple aspects of what an informational text says explicitly and inferentially, as well as interpretations of the text.

RL.CI.11–12.2. Determine two or more themes of a literary text and analyze how they are developed and refined over the course of the text, including how they interact and build on one another to produce a complex account or analysis; provide an objective summary of the text.

RI.CI.11–12.2. Determine two or more central ideas of an informational text and analyze how they are developed and refined over the course of a text, including how they interact and build on one another to provide a complex account or analysis; provide an objective summary of the text.

RI.IT.11–12.3. Analyze the impact of an author's choices as they develop ideas throughout the text regarding a complex set of ideas or sequence of events, and explain how specific individuals, ideas, or events interact and develop.

RI.TS.11–12.4. Evaluate the author's choices concerning structure and the effectiveness of the structure an author uses in his or her exposition or argument, including whether the structure makes points clear, convincing, and engaging.

RI.PP.11–12.5. Analyze an author's purpose in a text distinguishing what is directly stated in a text or through rhetoric, analyzing how style and content convey information and advance a point of view.

RL.MF.11–12.6. Synthesize complex information across multiple sources and formats to develop ideas, resolve conflicting information, or develop an interpretation that goes beyond explicit text information (e.g., express a personal point of view, new interpretation of the author's message).

RI.MF.11–12.6. Synthesize complex information across multiple sources and formats to develop ideas, resolve conflicting information, or develop an interpretation that goes beyond explicit text information (e.g., express a personal point of view, new interpretation of the concept).

Student Learning Objectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Students will understand the ways in which philosophers, specifically moral and ethical philosophers, identify and address questions within their field. • Students will be able to frame questions, both those posed by the course and organically generated within their own lives, through a philosophical framework. • Students will demonstrate the components of philosophical inquiry when parsing texts, evaluating scenarios, and reflecting on prior experiences.

Unit 2: Who Should I Be?: Identity and the Self

Unit Description/Overview: In this unit, students will explore the branch(es) of philosophy that address the self, the individual, the ego, and the relation of these individualistic components to the world at large. In doing so, students will experience theories presented by writers and philosophers as to the pursuit of “a life well lived” across time and modality, while reflecting on their own interpretation of “the good life” as well.

Approximate time frame: 4-5 weeks

Essential Questions

- What does it mean to be an individual? What does the individual have access to that others do not?
- How does one “live a good life”? Are there any consistent elements of the good life, as documented throughout history? If so, what are they?
- How do we know who we really are? In what ways is the “you” that others see and the “you” you are within similar? Different?
- What is an identity crisis? Is this a necessary experience, or a setback to avoid?
- What thoughts, fears, and desires shape our individual identity? How much control do we have over this shaping?

NJSLA Standards	RL.CR.11–12.1. Accurately cite strong and thorough textual evidence and make relevant connections to strongly support a comprehensive analysis of multiple aspects of what a literary text says explicitly and inferentially, as well as interpretations of the text; this may include determining where the text leaves matters uncertain. RL.CI.11–12.2. Determine two or more themes of a literary text and analyze how they are developed and refined over the course of the text, including how they interact and build on one another to produce a complex account or analysis; provide an objective summary of the text. RL.IT.11–12.3. Analyze the impact of the author’s choices as they develop ideas throughout the text regarding how to develop and relate elements of a story or drama (e.g., where a story is set, how the action is ordered, how the characters are introduced and developed). RL.TS.11–12.4. Evaluate the author’s choices concerning the structure and the effectiveness of specific parts of a text (e.g., the choice of where to begin or end a story, the choice to provide a comedic or tragic resolution) and how they contribute to its overall structure and meaning, as well as its aesthetic impact. RL.PP.11–12.5. Evaluate perspectives/lenses from two or more texts on related topics and justify the more cogent viewpoint (e.g., different accounts of the same event or issue, use of different media or formats). RL.MF.11–12.6. Synthesize complex information across multiple sources and formats to develop ideas, resolve conflicting information, or develop an interpretation that goes beyond explicit text information (e.g., express a personal point of view, new interpretation of the author’s message). RL.CT.11–12.8. Unit 3: How Should I Act?: Ethics and Morality

Unit Description/Overview: In this unit, students will consider the motivations behind the actions of individuals and collective groups operating as monolithic entities in times of peace and war (and everything in between!) Further, they will reflect upon their own motivations, both those explicitly endorsed and those truly acted upon, which may be entirely different from each other.

Approximate time frame: 4-5 weeks

Unit 4: What Can I Do?: Choice and Meaning

Unit Description/Overview: In this unit, students will consider the agency they possess in their own lives, its extents, and its limitations. Philosophical concepts such as freedom, autonomy, choice, and purpose will be explored through a philosophical lens via seminal philosophical and literary texts, as well as more broadly through certain philosophical movements such as existentialism, absurdism, and materialism.

Unit 5 : What Do I Owe?: Society and Responsibility

Unit Description/Overview: In this unit, students will explore, as contemporary philosopher T.M. Scanlon writes, “what we owe to each other.” In other words, the responsibility that an individual agent owes to the society in which they live, if any such responsibility exists. Through critical readings of pivotal texts in the field of social philosophy, egotism, and utilitarianism, students will confront vastly disparate interpretations of an individual’s obligation beyond their own individual existence.

Approximate time frame: 4-5 weeks

Essential Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • What is the individual’s responsibility to other people? How has this understanding changed throughout time? • Should an individual avoid, or embrace, selfishness? Should we be altruistic, or should we prioritize our own existence over others? • What social contracts have we entered into by agreeing to live in a society? What should be the penalty, if anything, for a violation of that contract?

Unit 6: The Eternal Conversation (Final Project)

Unit Description/Overview: In this unit, students will consider, as the brilliant polymath Leonardo da Vinci once wrote, “how everything connects to everything else” through an exploration of a common philosophical question, tenet, or value as interpreted by three distinct thinkers (philosophers, writers, artists,) identifying their commonalities and divergences, and ultimately reflecting upon where they, the student, stands on this concept.

Approximate time frame: 2-3 weeks

WRITING UNITS—GRADE 12

Writing Unit 1: Argumentative Writing (Literary Analysis)

Unit Description/Overview

In this unit, students are introduced to lenses and literary theory as they read short stories and poetry. Students begin the unit by visualizing the texts that they read. Then, students consider the elements of story and how the structure of narratives impact the reader's understanding of their meanings. After that, students read poetry and look at how the structure and style of poems shape their interpretations. Throughout this unit, students read sample close readings and sample student responses and essays. At the end of the unit, students will compose a literary analysis essay using the lenses and/or literary theory to argue about a text's (or multiple texts') meaning.

Approximate time frame: 4-6 weeks

Essential Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● How do we perform literary analysis?● How can we explicate texts?● How do we use lenses to derive meaning from a text?● How can we understand poetry?
Student Learning Objectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● Explicate texts● View texts through different lenses to determine the texts' meanings● Craft arguable theses● Discover patterns and themes within a text● Find evidence to support their interpretations of the text
Standards	W.AW.11-12.1. Write arguments to support claims in an analysis of substantive topics or texts, using valid reasoning and relevant and sufficient evidence. <ul style="list-style-type: none">A. Introduce precise, knowledgeable claim(s), establish the significance of the claim(s), distinguish the claim(s) from alternate or opposing claims, and create an organization that logically sequences claim(s), counterclaims, reasons, and evidence.B. Develop claim(s) and counterclaims avoiding common logical fallacies and using sound reasoning and thoroughly, supplying the most relevant evidence for each while pointing out the strengths

	and limitations of both in a manner that anticipates the audience’s knowledge level, concerns, values, and possible biases. C. Use transitions (e.g., words, phrases, clauses) to link the major sections of the text, create cohesion, and clarify the relationships between claim(s) and reasons, between reasons and evidence, and between claim(s) and counterclaims. D. Establish and maintain a style and tone appropriate to the audience and purpose (e.g., formal and objective for academic writing) while attending to the norms and conventions of the discipline in which they are writing. E. Provide a concluding paragraph or section that supports the argument presented (e.g., articulating implications or the significance of the topic). W.WP.11–12.4. Develop and strengthen writing as needed by planning, revising, editing, rewriting, trying a new approach; sustaining effort to complete complex writing tasks; tracking and reflecting on personal writing progress (e.g., using portfolios, journals, conferencing); or consulting a style manual (such as MLA or APA Style), focusing on addressing what is most significant for a specific purpose and audience. W.WR.11–12.5. Conduct short as well as more sustained research projects to answer a question (including a self-generated question) or solve a problem; narrow or broaden the inquiry when appropriate; synthesize multiple sources on the subject, demonstrating understanding of the subject under investigation. 🌱.

Writing Unit 2: Narrative Writing

Unit Description/Overview

In this unit, students are introduced to narrative techniques. Students begin the unit by reading, analyzing, and critiquing mentor texts. Then, students consider one topic of personal interest to write about. After that, students will use their own experience to drive their stylistic choices in their reflective writing. At the end of the unit, students will develop an essay about an artifact of relevance. They will retrace routes and experiences, conveyed through a personal “voice” in writing through punctuation, diction, syntax, and figurative language.

Approximate time frame: 4-6 weeks

Essential Questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● How can a writer tailor their purpose to an audience when drafting a piece of writing?● How can a writer create voice, both personally and in the characters they write about, through figurative language and other stylistic techniques?● How can one use personal narrative to convey their identity and convictions?
Student Learning Objectives	<ul style="list-style-type: none">● Read, analyze, and critique mentor texts● Write in response to a variety of personal narrative prompts with a specific and nuanced voice● Choose one topic of personal interest to drive stylistic choices in reflective writing● Develop an essay about an artifact of relevance● Retrace routes and experiences, conveyed through a personal “voice” in writing through punctuation, diction, syntax, and figurative language

SPEAKING & LISTENING

Unit Description/Overview

The purpose of this unit is to review and expand upon speaking, listening, and presenting skills studied in grade eleven. Through a variety of speaking and listening focused contexts, students will further their understanding of the components that create efficacy in speaking, presenting, slide design, and active-listening. Students will continue to build upon their understanding of source-credibility, further exploring how to establish their own credibility as speakers. Students will continue to incorporate multimedia into their presentations, as they synthesize multiple sources and mediums. Building upon their skills from grade eleven, students will continue to evaluate multiple components of speakers' presentations, considering and evaluating the messages they consume. The intention is for the exploration of and attention to these skills not only during this unit but also throughout the entire course.

Approximate time frame: Approximately 1-2 weeks AND throughout the year/paired with Reading and/or Writing Units

Essential Questions

- How can we engage our audience while executing our purpose?
- How can we employ active listening skills in a variety of contexts?
- How can we best engage in discourse, and why are such factors effective?
