HAZARDOUS CHEMICAL MANAGEMENT IN SCHOOLS

SCIENCE LABORATORY SAFETY

Laboratory experiments are an exciting part of teaching science and an important tool for engaging students. And yet, these activities also come with a great deal of responsibility. Chemicals, when not properly handled, can be hazardous for both staff and students.

Puget Sound Workers' Compensation Trust has developed a tool to assist districts and schools with the management of hazardous chemicals. Here, we outline the steps needed to ensure your staff and students stay safe while in the lab.

Remember the key to any safety program is training! For each step listed, it is imperative to include the appropriate training.
