

THEME A

Improve quality and relevance of academic experiences

When we listen to our students' voices, we also hear that they desire access to curriculum and supports that prepare them for adult life. They also want to engage in curricular opportunities, inside and outside of the classroom, that are relevant to their current environments, future interests, and navigation of adulthood. PPS is fortunate to have educators and community partners ready to support this work.

What Students NEED

When asked, “What do you need to know and be able to do after you graduate?” 51% of student responses reflect the need for skills to navigate adult life, such as life skills, financial literacy, and general health and wellness. More than 40% of the responses reflect skills that support professional and academic success. Approximately 40% of responses reflect professional and academic success.
