

THEME C

Optimize resources for equitable student experiences

Pittsburgh Public Schools believes in providing an equitable education for all students, ensuring they have access to high-quality curriculum and extracurricular activities regardless of financial, spatial, or staffing constraints. Each child should be able to engage with programs that foster pride and connection to their school community, but we know inequities remain when we look at who is accessing courses.

For example, White students are significantly more likely to complete an AP course than African American students, and this gap has increased over time.
