Daily reading

Critical Literacy

We read A Frog Thing by Eric Drachman last week about a frog who really wants to fly. And of course, no matter how hard he tries, he can't. We discussed effort, perseverance, and our limitations vs. wishes. And after empathizing with the frog, each child designed something to help the frog fly. The designs (drawings) are very clever with great explanations of what they chose to help the frog.

Math Fun

We're working hard to solidify our basic math skills; knowing combinations of ten, understanding odds and evens, place value, doubles, and basic addition/subtraction facts.

Parents & Kids Reading (Tues/Thurs)

Afternoon reading will start next week, Tues. 9/24. If you think you will join us for this each week, and/or volunteer around once a week, please fill out the enclosed TB Risk Assessment Questionnaire. Thank you!

Congratulations to the kids for doing such an amazing job on their song last Wed.! -Ms. Boyesen
