SONIA, OR THE GIRL FROM RUSSIA

Sonia, or The Girl From Russia

The annual Senior dramatic performance, "Sonia," a musical comedy in three acts, directed by Leslie R. Carey, was enthusiastically received by the large audiences that witnessed the two performances Thursday and Friday evenings, February 15 and 16, in the Roberts Junior High Auditorium.

The audience is hushed with tense anticipation as the curtain opens, revealing a group of college students, led by Sonia Markova, who are planning a surprise party for Professor Smythe, familiarly known as "the absent-minded professor". In the midst of the merry-making, Sonia's Aunt Martha Mayflower, a prim and dignified lady, makes her appearance. Sonia has never seen her own father. He was a Russian nobleman, who was imprisoned during the Bolshevik Revolution. She receives a letter that he is alive in a Siberian prison and that, if money is sent, he will be able to escape. Pat Dunn, the popular hero at college, is in love with Sonia. He mistrusts the source of her letter, but decides, together with Professor Smythe and Aunt Martha, to accompany Sonia to Russia. They are all seized by the Bolsheviks. By the explosion of a bomb, the absent-minded professor is brought back to his senses. At the close of the story, Sonia finds the person of Ajariah Smythe, her long lost father. Pat Dunn secures the money paid to the conspirators, and Sonia agrees that it will make a nice little nest-egg for their new home.

In the leading role of Sonia Markova, the girl from Russia, Mary T. Martin portrayed her part in splendid fashion. The college football hero and fiance of Sonia, Pat Dunn, was played by George Taylor, in an energetic and capable manner.

Honors for the most realistic acting were divided between Agnes C. Trepancy, in the part of the dignified Aunt Martha, and David C. Baker, the absent-minded professor of Oriental philosophy. Herbert Anderson gave a finished study of Maurice, the college cheer leader. Rita McManus, as Peggy, and Mary B. Ayer, as Sally, were most worthy of mention. Inez H. Golding, doing the honors for Veda Veronal, the sophisticated beautician, made a very convincing vamp.

Other speaking parts—all of them essential to the carrying forward of the story—were in the capable hands of Henry D'Alelio, Boris Ivenuff; Myer Cohen, Count Ginwhiski; Clarence Brayton, the hard-boiled Sergeant O'Shaughnessy; G. Kenneth Gibson, Drosky, the leader of the revolution.

The college and Bolshevik choruses presented a delightful picture with their varied-colored costumes. Specialty dances were given by a group of flower girls. Edythe MacDonald and Antoinette Martini presented a Russian dance as a special feature.

All those who were engaged in the musical comedy from the east to the stage hands deserve great credit for its splendid success.

The Medford High School orchestra, under the direction of Harold Osgood, furnished a pleasing program between the acts.

Class Poem

THE CHALLENGE OF THE INCOMPLETE

'Tis true that tasks fulfilled to him give joy
 Who ceaselessly with pain doth toil to top
 His efforts bold with fruit of ruddy hue.
 The task complete he surfeited doth oft
 Become, Alas! The end of Labor's pain
 Doth often cause to cease the keenest charm,
 That work and toiling at the task did seem
 To offer. Now, the object fine hath lost
 Its great appeal. The chase! that word doth pour
 The molten fire into our veins that pulse
 Anew and quicken at the added heat.
 "By sweat of brow shall man his substance earn,"
 A mandate stern of Him, to those who ate
 The fruit of that forbidden tree, and since
 Has man been blest with duties harsh to fill
 His earthly stay. Alone can duty stern
 Bestow to one a fervor heavenly,
 Not unlike that which Job, the Patient, had.
 A work unfinished doth a challenge hold,
 A work unfinished is a dragon bold,
 That must be overcome, if flesh doth give
 The opportunity to feeble man.
 For as the blind without the light decay
 So man doth fallow grow without a task.
 To some the span of earthly years
 Is much too short to the "fair guerdon" win.
 To us their fair example ought to preach
 A sermon bright, inspiring us to give
 Our strength to higher thoughts and more assays.
 Ourselves we find on one of learning's stairs
 The climb, the prize all but the labor known.
 Shall we now stand in fear at the low foot
 And shun the steep ascent? Or shall we cry
 Excelsior! And with our groping strength
 And frame advance to greener fields on high?

SENIOR ADVISORY COUNCIL

Vocational School

It is the aim of the Vocational School to fit boys for useful employment through the development of their occupational skill, required for the performance of satisfactory work under actual employment conditions in the following trades: Auto Mechanics, Cabinet Making, Electricity, Machine Shop, Painting and Decorating, Printing and Sheet Metal.

One half of the time is devoted to actual shop work and the other half to related and academic work. The laboratory method of instruction is used in the related classes and is very closely correlated with the shop work. This assures a thorough training in shop and technical information.

The school attempts to prepare the boy morally, intellectually, and physically for that vocation for which he seems to be best fitted by nature, ability, and opportunity; at the completion of his training it places him in the industry trained for, keeps in touch with his progress, and encourages promotion.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL FACULTY

Medford Vocational School Clubs

In September, 1934, the Medford Vocational School Clubs assembled to begin their fourth year of activities. Each department of the school forms its individual club, which elects its own officers and holds weekly meetings. The dues pay the expenses of the annual outing held at the end of the year.

It is possible that the printing department may be given the opportunity to display its talents, for the organization of a newspaper staff from among the clubs is contemplated, and the actual printing of the paper will be done by this department.

The clubs are helpful to the boys in learning parliamentary procedure and in affording them an opportunity to take an active part in meetings during which ideas are sustained or defeated in debate.

The experience gained by attendance at these meetings will be helpful to the members later in life, for their self-control is strengthened, and their tolerant and charitable attitude broadened. It is to be hoped that these clubs will be a permanent feature of the school.

Medford Vocational School Outing

During the last week of school the students of the Medford Vocational School held their annual outing at Pleasant Pond Park, Hamilton, Massachusetts. The athletic contests held in the forenoon included races, shot-put, baseball throw, broad jump, sack race, and several others. Prizes were given to winners of first and second places. The School Trophy was awarded to the Cabinet Making department, having scored the largest number of points. After lunch the finals of the baseball tournament were held. The two contestants for the championship title, the Sheet Metal and Automobile departments, played a close game in which Sheet Metal department triumphed. Also in the afternoon boating, swimming, and fishing were enjoyed by many. In spite of a few minor and amusing incidents everybody returned home from a pleasant day, eagerly looking forward to next year's outing, for which a committee is already planning.

Class History

One beautiful September morning in the fall of 1931, hordes of tiny individuals were seen scurrying apparently toward some common point. From Medford, north, south, east, and west they came, almost like the troop which assembled at the alluring notes of the Pied Piper of Hamelin. But these groups of innocent children were not gathering to be spirited away to an unknown cave; they were, if perchance you have not guessed it by this time, the famous class of 1934 approaching the Medford High School, there to be given the last three years of public school instruction that they might be better able to take their places as useful citizens in a noble land. Adventurous sophomores—we! Finally, however, we reached the school, only to be herded laboriously into the Assembly Hall. As we gazed round at our vast group, we had difficulty in finding classmates familiar to us, for all the junior high schools had poured forth their ninth grades into this mass which was to be known henceforth as the sophomore class.

Soon our glances turned toward the stage. A tall, distinguished gentleman had appeared there who was looking down upon us with a friendly smile. This kindly gentleman, we soon discovered, was a man whom we were to experience no trouble in learning to love, for Mr. Gilkey had little difficulty in making young people like him.

Sitting bolt upright we waited for his voice which soon came to us, as in his friendly manner so characteristic, he bade us welcome into his already large family. Then and there was lighted the fire which has since grown into a huge blaze of happiness. Courage, honor, cooperation, initiative, the desire for knowledge, and the ability to use that knowledge to the advantage of our fellow-men were the embers which his devotion and aid fanned into flames. Thus with high hopes and the promised assistance of our new master, we entered upon the duties of our first year as high school students.

Even now we cling tenaciously to the happy memories of our Sophomore days, for aside from our studies, there were numerous outside activities which we enjoyed. Some of us felt the call of the stage. Thus the Dramatic Club discovered that it had some new members among whom it hoped to find perhaps a Barrymore—perhaps a Skinner. Others of our family felt this same urge for acting, but in a different field. Was it the call of the wild? At times one would have thought so, had one seen the recruits returning from the football practice.

After a successful football season, many hopeful sophomores appeared on the basketball court. At the same time hockey was getting under way and those sophomores who successfully demonstrated their prowess at stick handling and skating were kept on the squad. Throughout the winter months there were some who excelled in hockey and some who excelled in hookey, but the truant officers did not award letters in the latter sport. Meanwhile the fleet of foot were eagerly awaiting the days when they could exhibit the unusual rapidity with which they could manipulate their pedal extremities. These were the youths who proved themselves worthy to be called track men.

The girls were by no means idle when they could participate in such sports as soccer, basketball, swimming, and baseball. Foremost among our athletes were Edna Fitzpatrick, Lorraine Driscoll, "Phil" Stewart, and Mary L. Ayer.

While our athletes were perfecting themselves physically, those of us who were more inclined toward literature were busy writing and soliciting material for the "Review". Proud were the chosen few who were enrolled on the "Review" Staff or whose literary accomplishments were published—and well might they be!

So busy did we become that before we realized it, June approached and our days as sophomores were over. The summer passed and soon we were back in school as Juniors ready for the tasks which we were expected to perform quite efficiently. It was now our turn to lend a helping hand to the sophomores. We took pleasure in directing them to the same rooms which we had labored unsuccessfully to find unless some condescending senior or junior had relieved our distress.

Although Mr. Gilkey had left us in the spring on account of illness, we had hoped to find him with us again in the fall. Unfortunately, he was not able to return. We found however, a very able substitute in the person of Mr. Kendall. Later in the year, when Mr. Kendall became headmaster we welcomed him to that position and promised him our loyal support. His generous and sympathetic counsel has been never failing.

Again with the fall began the regular round for sports—football, soccer, basketball, track, hockey, and baseball. The juniors were not slow in giving their loyal support and were by no means a small factor in the victories of the varsity teams.

This was the second year that we had felt the thrill of sports, but we were for the first time to feel a new thrill, for, as juniors, we elected class officers. The worthy representatives who were Louis Sacco, president; Marjorie Jackson, vice-president; Helen Coluci, secretary; Ralph Lovering, treasurer.

Thus the junior year advanced until the great event, the Junior Prom, approached. Of course, it was a success, for, headed by Robert Deery, the committee worked unceasingly. Perhaps you would like to know who composed this famous committee. They were Louis Sacco, John McGinn, Ernest Sacco, Ralph Lovering, William Warren, Henry Lurinsky, Helen Coluci, Lorraine Driscoll, Marjorie Jackson, Edna Blodgett, and Eileen Donavan.

When the junior prize speaking contest took place, we discovered that in our midst there were speakers who caused a hush to fall upon their audience. We are not likely to forget Ruth Ryan's reading of "If I were King," which was truly worthy of the first prize for the girls. The gestures and facial expressions of Eleanor Catton convinced us that the timid little city girl could not be happy among all the insects and animals of the country. Edward Shea won the first prize for the boys with his presentation of "The Stone." Abbott Whitmarsh, who was second, caused hearty laughter when he enthusiastically presented "A Quiet Man at a Baseball Game."

Thus the year drew to a close. These final days were spent in the traditional manner—aiding the seniors to graduate. As is our Medford High custom, two girls and one boy were chosen from each junior home room to serve as marshals and ushers. How proud we felt as we formed the guard of honor for the senior class day, reception, and graduation. For this was also the signal that our days as juniors were drawing to an end. Soon would come that much-hoped-for day when we would be seniors. We had come, we had seen, we had almost conquered—one more year would tell.

The Senior year! The class of 1934 is about to be graduated from the Medford High School. The happy hours which we have spent here are passing into the realms of cherished memories. We have had daily contact with the lives of superior men and women, some of whom, though dead, still live in the glory of their achievements. Their high ideals of truth, honor, and purity have been instilled in us, and as the graduating class of this school, we hope that we have attained a loyalty and dignity worthy of them.

As in former years, the first exciting and important event of our Senior career was the election of class officers. To quote Mr. Kendall: "There never was a class which possessed so many aspiring politicians." There were 35 students who took out papers announcing their desire for class office. These were finally successful: Thomas Joyce, our good-looking President; Helen Green, petite and charming Vice-President; Helen Murphy, our brilliant and vivacious Secretary; and John Riley, Treasurer. We all thought that "Johnnie" was fully capable of taking care of any "dues-dodgers."

Athletics next claimed our attention. Bill Warren, an apparently quiet student, became the dynamic captain of football and led the team through a fine season! Although not a championship eleven, the team made an excellent showing. Our representatives were "Art" Griffin, "Larry" Green, "Ernie" DiGregorio, "Ronnie" MacDonald, "Pete" Biagione, Fred Brown, Henry Lurinsky, "Johnnie" Correia, and Wayne Crankshaw.

Another major sport was hockey in which the class was represented by Tom Jackson, Captain; "Marty" Boormeester, Phil Sullivan, Fred Manser, and "Joe" Buzzell. "Joe" was as sensational a goalie as Medford has ever had. He was on hand stopping the opponent's points every time they threatened.

Soccer, basketball, and track were our next consideration in sports. Our soccer team brought us everlasting fame by annexing the Greater Boston Interscholastic Soccer League Championship. Jason McFague and "Joe" Buzzell were the outstanding stars from the class of 1934. The winter season saw "Vernie" Sherman, Salvatore Gemellaro, and Henry Gerrior as outstanding members of the basketball team. Many an exciting moment was furnished, for several of the games were decided by a two-point margin—the reason, no doubt, for the impromptu cheering section. Allan Andrews, "Johnnie" Hall, "Art" Griffin, Captain; Gordon Tower, "Bob" Laycock, John Donnellan were participants on the track team. This team proved a winning combination.

In baseball this year, Medford joined the Greater Boston Interscholastic Baseball League. Capt. Francis Doherty, "Phil" Sullivan, "Marty" Boormeester, "Arty" Johns, "Larry" Green, "Johnny" Kenefick, "Frankie" Hartwell, Allison Burt, and "Joe" Buzzell made up the team for '34—and what a team it was! This last outdoor sport needs no elaborate description.

During this year, Senior girls, also, have by no means been inactive in sports. Edna Fitzpatrick, Lorraine Driscoll, Ruth Ryan, Phyllis Stewart, Priscilla Lindner, Janice Kenny, Alice Cameron, Mary L. Ayer, Caroline Biganzoli, and "Dot" Kelley won honors in basketball, soccer, and tennis.

The year 1934 has been a record one in many ways. In dramatics, the first event was the annual Christmas drama, "The Silence of God." The performance was unique in as much as the cast was composed entirely of boys. "Ken" Gibson portrayed the role of Josef, the inn keeper, in a decidedly vivid and convincing manner. He played the part with such realism that some said he even walked with a shuffling step for weeks after. Richard Ashley, taking the part of Count August Feldman, also added to the dramatic accomplishments of this year.

On February 15th and 16th, another unusual achievement for the illustrious class of 1934 took place when, instead of the class play—a musical comedy, "Sonia", was presented. It was the first time in many years that any class of Medford High School has offered a musical production. We heard later that the largest audience ever to witness a Senior class play was present at the final performance. Mary Martin, as Sonia, was exactly what one would wish such a heroine to be! George Taylor, the college football hero, portrayed his role with perfect ease and naturalness. The comedy parts were taken by David Baker as the absent-minded Professor Smythe, and Agnes Trepaney as the dignified Aunt Martha. The superb acting of Inez Golding, Rita McManus, Mary B. Ayer, Henry D'Alelio, Kenneth Gibson, Clarence Brayton, Myer Cohen, and Herbie Anderson will long be remembered. Yes, the class of '34" upheld the high standard of the school with the presentation of "Sonia"!

In May, the Dramatic Club presented "Secret Service", a Civil War romance. Someone has said that whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Evidently, the cast of "Secret Service" adopted this motto. Barbara Mayo as Edith Varney had a Southern personality, charmingly all her own. No wonder Lewis Dumont lost his heart to her! We all did! Veronica Dyer, portraying Caroline Mitford, delighted the audience with her interpretation of the part. Wilfred Varney had reasons for his evident admiration. Michael Dyer, taking the role of the old colored servant and slave, Jonas, was highly satisfactory from the moment he stepped on the stage. His bearing—everything he did—made him outstanding in the cast. The success of this play, however, was not due to the work of individuals but to the united efforts of the coach and players; the cast was especially large, including over forty members.

Some may, by this time, have gained the impression that athletics and dramatics constituted the sole activities of our class. On the contrary, the originality of '34 was revealed by the formation of three new clubs: The Boys' Club, The Girls' Club and The Girls' Athletic Association. These clubs were all formed for altruistic purposes—to involve the sacrifice of self in the interests of others. David Quinlan became the President of The Boys' Club, Helen Greenwood of The Girls' Athletic Association, Martha Jones of The Girls' Club, and Abbott Whitmarsh of the Hi-Y organization. All of these clubs have promoted social welfare, and have added substantially to the already fine school spirit.

The biggest social event of the year was the Senior Promenade, held January 26th. Will anyone ever forget the weather on the memorable night? It was zero! clear, cold, and crackling! What a night to don evening clothes! This was an insignificant matter to the class of 1934, however, for the "dance was on" and the affair was largely attended. The Prom committee included Joseph Barry, Helen Coluci, Francis P. Doherty, Thelma LaSelva, John A. McGinn, Gertrude Carroll, Warren Keough, Hazel Richardson, John Kenefick, Lorraine Driscoll, John Brintnall, Henry Lurinsky, Lawrence Green, and Dorothy Kelly, all of whom worked efficiently to assure the success of the party.

The last important event in our Senior history was the finals of the prize speaking contest. This affair took place May twenty-first. The Seniors in the finals were Ruth Ryan, Mary Strunk, Antoinette Martini, Vera Golding, Kenneth Gibson, Clarence Brayton, and Abbott Whitmarsh. Everyone knows of the close competition in the contest. The first prizes were awarded to Vera Golding and Kenneth Gibson; second prizes, Ruth Ryan and Herbert Giffen.

Since the ending of the prize-speaking contest, all thoughts have turned to June and graduation. The announcement of the Year-Book Staff with George Masterton as Editor-in-chief, Claire Devlin, and Alice Cameron as associate-editors, and especially the animated discussion among the girls concerning graduation clothes have combined to make commencement seem very near. From that time until now, we have "hustled and bustled" here, there, and everywhere. We have been sent to the photographers; pictures have been taken; proofs, anxiously scanned; our friends have made complimentary remarks, and otherwise, and once again we have regained our dignity and composure! The biography aids have delved into our past, present, and future; orders have been taken for rings, pins, and pictures of this team and that. Yes! the last few weeks have been hectic ones!

But not all the events of our school days have been occasions for happy memories. During the course of two years, four of our beloved teachers have been called from our midst: Miss Mabel A. Gannett, Mr. Frank S. Gilkey, Miss Laura P. Patten, and Mr. Harry E. Walker. A realization of this loss to the school has gripped our hearts. Above all else, these men and women stood for sincerity and fidelity. They will always be held in loving memory by those who knew them. The services which they have rendered as teachers in the Medford High School will be forever enshrined in our hearts.

An additional cause of sadness and grief for the class of 1934 was the death of Paul Armstrong, taken from us April third. He will always be remembered with affection by his teachers and classmates. His cheerful smile and sincere friendship will be greatly missed.

To-day, commencement week for the class of 1934 has begun. The word, "commencement," is a reality! It marks a beginning for us—the beginning of education—not the close. It signifies the opening of a million channels to success or failure. Remembering our opportunities here in Medford High School—the advantages of association with minds of distant ages and of the present—as we close our history of high school days, let us look ahead with courage, and take for our motto the words of Disraeli:

"Keep the standard of culture and knowledge high; attempt great things and you will accomplish great things!"

JANICE E. KENNEY,

AGNES C. TREPANEY.

HIDDEN TREASURES

Hidden treasures! A magic phrase which has always awakened in us adventurous thoughts of tropical isles and seas! A picture of the imagination, seemingly unattainable; in reality, however, very close to us, for we have within ourselves buried treasures! Our search for these will have all the romance and adventure of the treasure hunts of old: a treasure hunt all our own, for we alone hold the key.

Let us consider what these treasures are, and more important, to what use we may put them when found.

Ambition is one of these valued possessions. We all have some inner longing to attain something. We may not reach it, or we may change our objective, but, nevertheless, we have that desire, our ambition. It is our ambition, if we cling to it, which will lead us towards our goal. This, then, is one of the most valuable gifts which we shall find in our treasure chest. Fred Fisher, one of the well-known Fisher brothers connected with the automobile industry, is said to have predicted while young that before he was fifty years old, he would be in a position where he would not have to care what anyone else did. During the years preceding 1929, the fortune of the seven Fisher brothers was estimated by some as exceeding five hundred million dollars. Fred Fisher had the desire and the will to gain his goal, and he did.

Cooperation is another treasure. In modern society we are all interdependent. Evidence of this fact is found in the words of Charles M. Schwab, the great American capitalist and steel magnate. When asked which group was the most important, the capitalist, the laborer, or the producer of raw material, Mr. Schwab replied by asking which leg of a three-legged stool was the most important. What Mr. Schwab said of industry can be applied to all walks of life. Cooperation is a very valuable treasure which we all may possess. We shall find it one of our greatest assets. By cooperating with our fellow men at home, at work, in fact, in all our daily contacts, we shall reap the benefits which such service always brings.

In spite of present conditions, our opportunities are still numerous. Competition is keener, it is true, but it is often through competition that success becomes greater. As proof of these opportunities we have only to look to modern industry. In a recent article appearing in the "New Outlook," entitled "Tomorrow's Gadgets," the author makes the rather surprising statement that in the past four years our laboratories have almost doubled the sum total of new things which will be available to us, when we are ready to buy them.

For example, the National Broadcasting Company has recently invested nearly a million dollars in wiring Radio City for television. New devices of every kind excite the imagination, houses of steel and glass, washable wall papers, railroad trains scientifically streamlined and air-conditioned, all brought into being by contemporary minds.

Our generation, therefore, has remarkable opportunities, not only in the production of these new items but in their distribution and financial management as well. There is also the challenge to us to create new things and to develop new enterprises. Surely, with the ever increasing knowledge in science, our chances, nay, our responsibilities for these accomplishments are greater now than ever before.

To-day in the United States there is a greater diversity of work than in any other period. There are, moreover, many more people in different types of occupations than at any previous time in our history. As we have progressed in our present day civilization, jobs have been created. Only a very few years ago, there was no such vocation as that of radio engineer, announcer, or artist. At present, thousands of persons depend upon this young industry for their livelihood. Sound pictures created new jobs. So did motor cars.

All these opportunities are ours. Within us lies the power of making the most of them, if we but try. This latent power is a real treasure which must be brought to light. When we find it, it will be one of our most important qualities for success in whatever work we may undertake.

This fact brings us to another point. What will be our contribution to society? What work shall we do? This question we must answer for ourselves. But we must be careful not to adopt the attitude that the world owes us a living. The world owes us nothing. It will pay us only what we, ourselves, by hard digging, are able to take from it. The world does not give; it merely relinquishes, and, it seems, most reluctantly. There is no royal road to success. One of the laws of Nature is the law of compensation. We shall be rewarded only in proportion to our efforts.

Our contribution will be our own creation. If our work is well done, no matter how small it may be, we may point to it with pride. This result, indeed, is a treasure worth seeking with as much zeal as the treasure seekers of old searched for gold, silver, and precious jewels. But in order to fully realize the satisfaction of pride in our accomplishments, we must do our own work.

In the new novel, "Years of Grace," Margaret Barnes, the author, pictures a situation which proves that justifiable pride in our work can come only through doing it ourselves. The occasion is a birthday party to a grandmother, who, in response to a toast makes a speech in which she expresses her great disappointment in her children. Since they are all living in wealth and luxury and consider themselves successful, they are amazed at her statement. She explains further by telling them that they have done nothing; they have accepted everything given to them with no desire to shoulder a burden as their father did. The grandmother was disappointed in her children, because they did not accept responsibilities. If we do not accept our responsibilities, we cannot fail to be disappointed in ourselves.

Yet work will avail us little of either success or happiness, if we lack one of the most important qualities—faith in our fellowmen. One of our greatest examples of such faith is found in the life of Abraham Lincoln. It was his abiding faith in mankind which brought us through the Civil War. The circumstances did not tend to generate faith. The country was divided so that every member of the Cabinet except one was of the opinion that it would be wise to accept secession as final. Lincoln's popular vote had been much less than a majority, and there was no sign, that even the North was united in his support. Furthermore, reverses on the field of battle were many. But Lincoln's faith never failed. He granted that some of the people could be fooled all of the time, and that all of the people could be fooled some of the time, but he was absolutely certain that all of the people could not be fooled all of the time.

Sometimes he seemed to make the mistake of trusting individuals too much, but his willingness to seek and to expect the best was part of his nature. If he had not possessed this faith in mankind, he could not have said, while the war was still going on and bitter feelings ran high on both sides, "With malice towards none, with charity for all."

We cannot all occupy the position which Lincoln held but we can all make his faith a part of our daily lives.

Our education here has furnished us with a background for our future development. We have acquired the elements of training necessary to living in the present complicated society of the world. If we have made the most of this training, this will prove invaluable. Yet we cannot stop here if we are to fully benefit from our treasures. We must strive to better prepare ourselves. As Daniel Webster once said, "Every man must educate himself; his books and teachers are but helps." Each one must first build a firm foundation; next develop it.

When one looks at a high building, his gaze naturally turns to the top. Our future careers will be like this building: our eyes will be concentrated upon the top, success. But there is more to a building than its roof. Deep in the ground are rooted the foundations. Above the surface are the many stories. So it is with our lives. Below the surface are the deep-rooted principles of right and wrong, our foundations. Above the surface are the stories representing our progress in knowledge and understanding. Our education in the public schools forms the lower floors of this building. We are standing now upon the twelfth floor. Whether or not we build higher into the clouds depends upon ourselves. We must be sure, however, of our foundations. With a weak groundwork a building soon topples; likewise will our success collapse if founded upon a weak character.

Our foundation is the basis of all our other qualities. A treasure within ourself which will constantly aid us in our struggle upward.

Thus we find that we have invaluable treasures within our grasp if we but reach out in an effort to attain them.

We have our ambitions, also the opportunities to fulfill these ambitions. We have our work to do for our contribution to world progress, and the qualities of cooperation and faith by which we shall realize success. In addition we have our foundation of character, our greatest treasure—the basis for all our future happiness.

“It’s doing your job the best you can
And being just to your fellow man;
It’s struggling on with a will to win,
But taking loss with a cheerful grin;
It’s sharing sorrow and work and mirth,
And making better this good old earth;
It’s serving, striving through strain and stress;
It’s doing your Noblest—that’s success.”

GEORGE W. MASTERTON.

M. H. S. BAND

The Band

Through the kind efforts of Mr. Kendall and Mr. Osgood, Medford High School was able to produce a band which competed successfully with the well known bands of our opponents on the football field. Many a loud cheer was aroused when the Medford High School Band in their effective uniforms rendered up-to-date snappy marches and school songs.

At each football game the Band saluted our opponents by forming the initial letter of the visiting school. The Band received a first prize in demonstration awards at the Boy Scout Exposition held in the Tufts College Gymnasium. Many favorable comments were made at the Somerville N. R. A. Parade and at the Patriots Day Parade in which the Band participated.

This year the thirty members have achieved a mark of distinction in appearance, cooperation, and performance.

The Orchestra

The orchestras under the capable direction of Mr. Osgood performed very creditably at the various assemblies and social events of the year. In March, the orchestra entertained at the graduation of the evening school. On April twelfth it presented a splendid concert at the High School. By playing appropriate southern music, this organization added a great deal of atmosphere to the annual Dramatic Club play, "Secret Service."

The Sonia Orchestra

For the presentation of "Sonia" a selected group from the High School orchestra played. Priscilla Dade, pianist, and Barbara March, violinist, accompanied the singers. Other members performing were the following:

Violins—Thomas O'Connor, Louise DeMontigny, Marion Faulkenham, Albert Porras, John Pantaleo.

Trumpets—Ralph Keene, Arthur Bizier.

Clarinets—Richard Wheeler, John Herlihy.

Cello—Paul Donlan.

Saxophones—Robert Sulis, Sterling Clark, Ernest Ministeri.

Drums—Harold Breen.

HI-Y CLUB

The Medford Hi-Y Club

With the close of this school year, 1934, the Medford Hi-Y Club completes its second successful year. Many extra activities have been started this year and the members hope to sponsor these affairs annually. "The Blue and White" Handbook, the official directory of Medford High School, was published and proved very successful; a Faculty Night, Parents' Night, and other special programs were held; athletics were inaugurated through the able assistance of Mr. Lang; and delegates were sent to many conventions. The membership limit of forty-five was reached this year with many wishing to join.

While filling its appointed place in the extra-curricular activities of our school, the Medford Hi-Y Club has endeavored to promote the Hi-Y purpose, "to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character."

Our advisers for 1933-'34, were Mr. Earl M. Woodward, Mr. Ralph L. Kendall, Mr. William E. Lang, Mr. Harold E. Brewer, and Mr. Clarence L. Thompson.

Boys' Glee Club

The Boys' Glee Club was newly organized this year, under the excellent guidance of Mr. Osgood. Several meetings were held, and the following boys were elected officers:

President JAMES DOYLE
 Secretary-Treasurer DANIEL MCCARTHY
 Librarian RICHARD ASHLEY

The activities of the Club included the rendering of selections at a number of assemblies, the singing of Christmas carols in the corridors, and participation in the first annual concert of the Medford High School Music Clubs, presented on Thursday evening, April 12. As their contribution to this concert, the Boys' Glee Club presented "Songs of Stephen Collins Foster" and united with the Girls' Glee Club in the singing of Guion's "Home on the Range", and "Awake" by Cadman.

An enjoyable outing at Ocean Park, Maine was included in their social affairs.

In addition to the officers, the membership of the Club included:

Charles Basso	Charles Howland	Charles Potter
Kermit Breedon	Herbert Johnson	Harold Rose
William Blunt	Lawrence Lavers	Harold Sinkey
John Correia	Howard Moulton	Russell Stone
Winston Forward	Roger Nichols	Harold Woodaman

The Debating Club

President HAROLD WOOD
 Vice-President HERBERT GIFFIN
 Secretary-Treasurer WALDEN IRISH

Two years ago the Debating Club for boys was organized under Mr. Kendall's suggestion, with Mr. Irish, Mr. Flynn, and Mr. Rogers as faculty advisers. At present there are about ten active members from all classes.

Frequent interclub debates, judges of which are the faculty advisers, make the club meetings on Thursday evenings very interesting. At one of the meetings Professor Bartlett of Tufts College spoke on "Disarmament."

On April 13 a debate was held with Norwood on the subject: "Resolved, that water projects should be operated and developed by the federal and state governments." Although Medford did not win, the work accomplished deserves much praise.

Through their instructions and experiences, the boys are taught poise, the art of holding the attention of the audience, and the arrangement of ideas for oral presentation.

Household Arts Club

President	ELEANOR LEVERONE
Vice-President	DOROTHEA TAYLOR
Secretary	EVELYN MAYBERRY
Treasurer	ANNE KEITH
Adviser	KATHERINE L. BAKER

Early in the school year the Household Arts Club was organized to create a more friendly spirit among the girls of the Household Arts Divisions.

The girls have been especially active in philanthropic work. A part of the proceeds from a successful dance held at Christmas time was used to buy toys for children of the Pre-School Center. In April a bridge party was held at the home of the adviser of the club. This money was also used for the benefit of needy children.

Girls' Glee Club

President	JANE BRITTAIN
Vice-President	FRANCES LITTLEFIELD
Secretary	EVELYN TELFER
Librarian and Pianist	GRACE LANGILL

Under the capable guidance of Mr. Harold A. Osgood the first Girls' Glee Club of Medford High School, an organization of which each member might be proud, was formed.

After much practice its first performance was given as the guest of the junior class at one of the autumn assemblies. The club next appeared as carol singers during the Christmas season, when the sweet harmony of many of our beautiful carols echoed and reechoed throughout the corridors of both the High School and the Vocational School. In a Senior assembly held on the last day of school before the Christmas recess, this group added much enjoyment to the program. On April twelfth, the Girls' Glee Club joined with the other music clubs of the school in presenting the first annual musical concert in the history of the school, and carried off its full share of the laurels of the evening.

The girls and their leader should be highly complimented for their splendid presentations.

President	DAVID QUINLAN

Secretary	RALPH LOVERING
Treasurer	GEORGE MASTERTON

The year 1933 brought to Medford High School a new organization in the form of the M. H. S. Boys' Club. Shortly after the opening of school in the fall, Mr. Kendall made arrangements for forming this club by appointing Mr. Harry E. Walker and Mr. Richard J. Phelan as advisers, who assisted the charter members in drawing up the constitution and the by-laws of the organization. One month later a list of names, submitted by the faculty through Mr. Kendall, was voted on for new members. From this list, forty Seniors and Juniors were chosen, who, together with the ten charter members, made up the fifty members required by the quota.

In an assembly given by the club to the sophomores, Mr. Henry Warren Poor, the guest speaker, gave an illustrated lecture on the "Miracles of Photography in the World War". The club enjoyed many social gatherings throughout the year. In the month of April a gold eagle was adopted as the emblem, and pins with this insignia were made for the members.

The purpose of the club is to foster among the members of the school a spirit of helpful cooperation in all activities by the example of obedience to the rules of the school and by the promotion of the knowledge of its various aims and objectives.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Ivy Oration

From time immemorial the ivy—that hardy clinging plant which has beautified many an ancient castle and ancestral home with its velvet walls of green—has held a special significance for those who are about to brave the hardships of life.

That we may better understand its ever important meaning, consider the rare qualities of this plant. Starting out as only a tiny green sprout, groping blindly, it covers in time an entire building. Buffeted by the wind, how closely it twines, how tightly it clings, as its tenacles firmly grasp the trellis, its ladder to success! With “an instinct within it that reaches and towers,” it falters not, but grows ever onward, striving steadily upward, persevering, enduring, beautifying in its freshness.

To us, the class of '34, this ivy, springing from a stock immortal, now gives “its watchword: ‘On! and on!’” Let us hold firmly to the course we have chosen, though the tempest rages about us and all seems to be lost; for when the skies are darkest, the storm may suddenly disappear, leaving in its van the glorious beauty of the varicolored rainbow. May we cling with equal tenacity to our ladder of success, may we grip the rung; may we climb; for

Of toiling, uncheered and alone,
That wins us the prizes worth earning
And leads us to goals we would own.”

But persistency alone cannot lead us to success. Here again the unflinching courage of the ivy shows us the way. The poet, Edgar Guest, tells us that “courage is more than a daring deed: it’s the breath of life and a strong man’s desire.” In the days of yore only the runner who had the courage and dogged persistency necessary to win the race was presented with the ivy crown of achievement.

Thus, may we all
“Sail on, nor fear to breast the sea!
Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee.
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith, triumphant o’er our fears,
Are all with thee, are all with thee!”

RETAIL SALES CLASS

The First Retail Selling Class

The Seniors inaugurated the first Retail Selling Class in Medford High School. Since all business concerns selling and since numerous graduates enter this field, the addition of the course was necessary.

Not only was the class a great success but it was also made very enjoyable by Mr. Daniel A. Manley, the teacher, who conducted all discussions in a very unique manner.

The Boys' Cooking Class

Under the guidance of Miss Mary L. Jenkins, the Boys' Cooking Class has worked its way to victory. The present class, organized two years ago, is made up of Junior and Senior boys. Much to their satisfaction they have profited by the few mistakes which were made and have proved themselves to be excellent cooks. Having extremely generous natures, the boys were very solicitous in sending gifts of food to various teachers.

Let us all congratulate our future chefs.

The Senior Prom

Friday evening, January 26, was pleasantly anticipated by the Seniors. The Senior Prom, one of the most colorful events of the year, occurred at Pitman's academy. The favors, horns, hats, and flowers, heightened the enjoyment and gaiety of the affair, and the tuxedos mingling with the vari-colored evening gowns made the scene very colorful. Added to these were musical strains of Don Wasserman's Orchestra, which made a perfect evening. In the receiving line were Dr. and Mrs. J. Stevens Kadesch, Head Master and Mrs. Ralph L. Kendall, Miss Laura P. Patten, Miss Katherine Baker, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Berget Reese, Mr. Raymond G. Flynn, Mr. Daniel A. Manley.

Class Gift

The Class of 1934 selected as a class gift an oil painting of the late Mr. Frank S. Gilkey, Headmaster Emeritus and Senior Sub-Master, who served Medford High School unselfishly for thirty-seven years.

Through Mr. Gilkey's untiring devotion to cultural pursuits, he inspired in the students, who were privileged to come under his instruction, a deep love for music and a great interest in the classical languages. All found in him a warm friend and a helpful adviser.

The presentation was made on Class Day by Edna Fitzpatrick to Head Master Ralph L. Kendall who accepted the gift on behalf of the school.

To Our Artists

This spring the Boston Chamber of Commerce set aside one week as Art Week during which an art contest was held for the schools of Greater Boston. Six prizes were offered granting to the winners a year's scholarship in an art school.

The Class of 1934 feels very proud of Charles W. Tinkham and C. Robert Perrin who entered this contest and came through victorious.

Charles Tinkham won a year's scholarship to the New England Art School for his poster, a copy of the Rose Window in the Rheims Cathedral, France.

C. Robert Perrin received honorable mention for his outstanding work in reproducing a copy of the Boston Waterfront.

BOYS' DEBATING CLUB

Senior Reception

June 8, 1934 saw, at the Lawrence Light Guard Armory, a gay crowd of girls and boys attending the Senior Reception. Streamers of pastel colors hung from the ceiling; our glorious colors, blue and white, decorated the walls. Seated at the extreme end of the hall were the patrons and patronesses: Dr. and Mrs. J. Stevens Kadesch; Headmaster and Mrs. Ralph L. Kendall; Mr. and Mrs. Melvin V. Weldon; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie R. Carey; Mr. and Mrs. Eric Harrison; Miss Katherine L. Baker; Miss M. Gertrude Roughsedge; Miss Pauline V. Webber; Mr. Daniel A. Manley; Mr. Raymond G. Flynn. The orchestra was grouped in the balcony from which fluttered festoons of gay colors. The whole assembly swayed with the graceful rhythm of the orchestra. At twelve o'clock laughing couples wended their way homeward.

CLASS DAY MARSHALS AND USHERS

Junior Marshals and Ushers

In accordance with a Medford High School tradition, Junior Marshals and Ushers were elected to assist the Senior class of 1933.

On Class Day the members of the graduating class and their parents were waiting in the Assembly Hall for the exercises to commence when with a slow march the marshals, dressed in dainty organdy dresses, and the ushers in white flannels and blue coats, made their way into the auditorium. During the second part of the program which was held on the front lawn they stood on each side of the main entrance and remained there until the proceedings were over.

At the reception the marshals, facing each other, made a double line in the middle of the large room, interlocked their shepherd's crooks, and made an arch under which the Seniors passed.

On graduation night, as a final gesture, the marshals and ushers assisted the guests to their seats in the Tufts College Gymnasium.

The two faculty members who prepared the marshals and ushers for their part in the programs were Miss Irene Hall and Miss Katherine L. Baker.

DRAMATIC CLUB

Secret Service

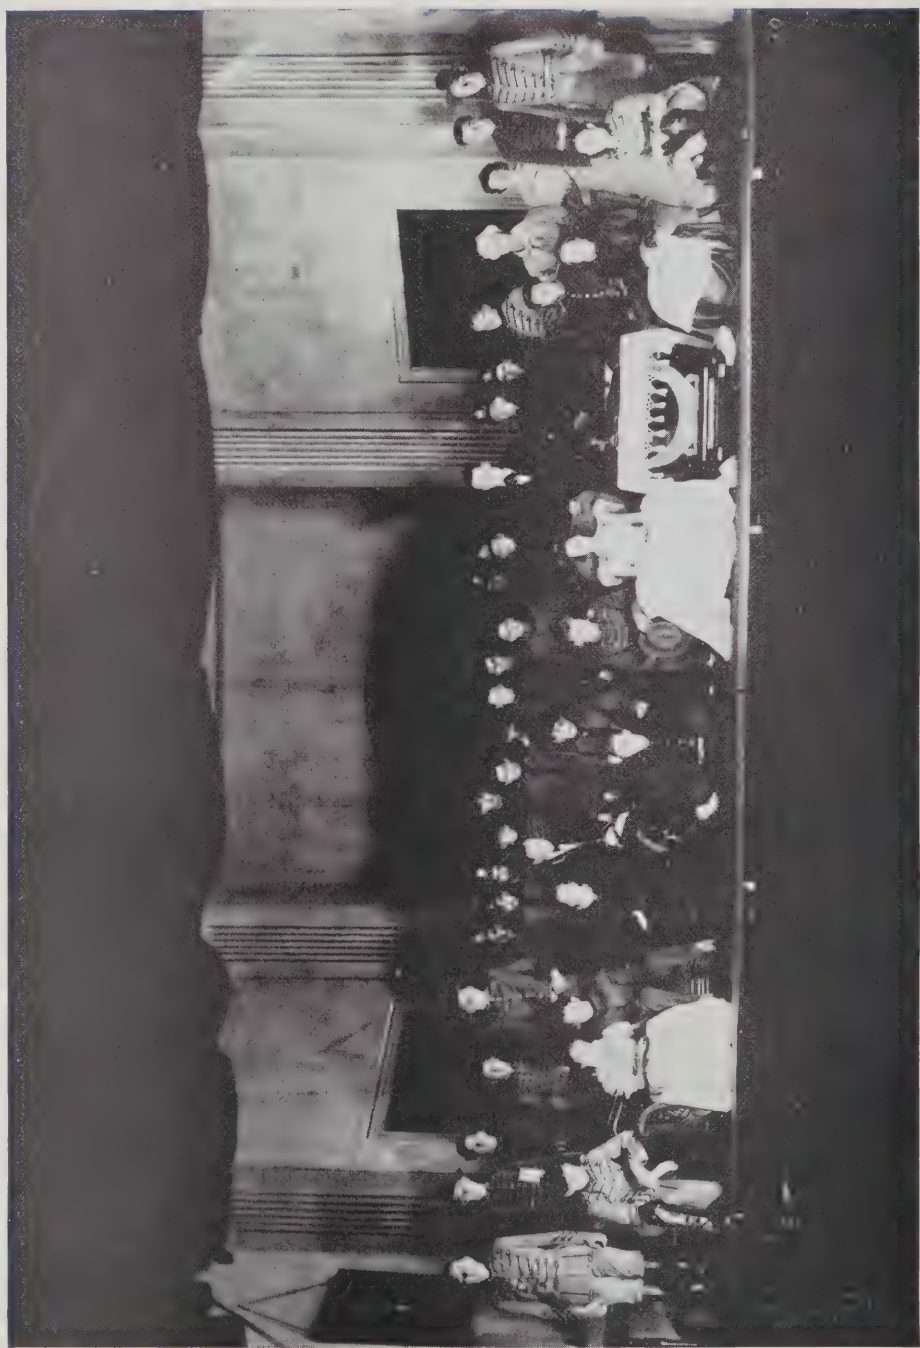

The action in "Secret Service" takes place during the Civil War. The southern belle, Barbara Mayo, indirectly saves Raymond Bosheo, the Union spy, from being shot by the Confederate forces. The romance between Veronica Dyer and Paul Petersen, the audience found very delightful and amusing. Richard Churchill, as the villain, did a very clever piece of work. To all taking part and to Mr. Carey, who directed the play, a great deal of credit is due.

The Dramatic Club

This year the Dramatic Club has not been so active as in the past years, but nevertheless it has solved interesting problems in the Public Speaking classes where the pupils have been working on appropriate selections, which they learned and delivered before the school on special days and occasions.

"The Silence of God" was the choice for the annual Christmas play. The cast consisted entirely of boys. The plot proved interesting and the parts were well taken. The school may well be proud of its Christmas plays, for they have been unusually well performed.

The crowning achievement of the year was the presentation of "Secret Service," a Civil War drama.

Under the supervision of Coaches Brooks and Phelan, Medford developed one of the finest defensive teams in the state.

Captain "Bill" Warren proved a great leader; nothing discouraged him. He gave his best to the school.

Carlo Sarno, Medford's all-scholastic tackle, seemed tireless, playing the whole game in practically every contest.

"Art" Griffin developed into a fine center. He, together with Captain Warren and Carlo Sarno, was outstanding in his ability to block punts.

"Pete" Biagione and "Ernie" DeGregorio made an unusual pair of guards.

"Torb" MacDonald helped the cause many a time with his long soaring punts. He was also a accurate passer, as well as a clever broken field runner.

Carlo Sarno was unanimously elected captain of the Blue and White eleven next fall.

The Blue and White Soccer Team, captained by "Jim" Haslam, won the Greater Boston Interscholastic Soccer League. This league was comprised of teams from Belmont, Watertown, Lexington, Sudbury, and Medford. Much credit is due Coach Lang and the members of the team which completed its schedule undefeated, with only three goals scored against it.

At a meeting of the coaches representing the schools in the league, seven from Medford were selected as the best players in the league. Captain Haslam and Jason McFague were unanimously elected; David Sundberg, George DiNapoli, Louis Sorrentino, John Poploski, and Allison Burt were the others chosen.

"Joe" Buzzell and "Jay" McFague teamed up well in the full-back positions. Many of the scoring threats of the opposition were broken up by this rugged pair.

North Shore Tournament

Medford 18 — North Quincy 19

The Medford High School Basketball Team showed an improvement over last year's team but did not have the necessary punch to win most of its games. Though it lost six games, all but one of these was very closely contested.

The team was led by "Bob" Gurney, a junior, who was as fine a captain as Medford has had. He was the leading scorer on the team and set a splendid example for the team by his hard, clean playing. The other members showed a splendid spirit, whether in victory or defeat.

Medford was invited to play in the North Shore Tournament and although the team lost to North Quincy in the first game by one point, it displayed a thrilling comeback.

Robert Gurney was chosen captain for another year.

Goalie "Joe" Buzzell's stellar performances, however, were rewarded as he was chosen all-scholastic goalie.

Edward Richardson, a sophomore, was elected by the lettermen to lead next year's team.

Also "Wallie" Mather ran a great "300" to tie for first place with "Bob" Bolivar.

Medford continued its winning streak taking Malden by a 4—3 score. This game was featured by the stellar playing of “Artie” Johns, the Blue and White second baseman and pitcher “Joe” Manzo who won his game with a home run in the last inning.

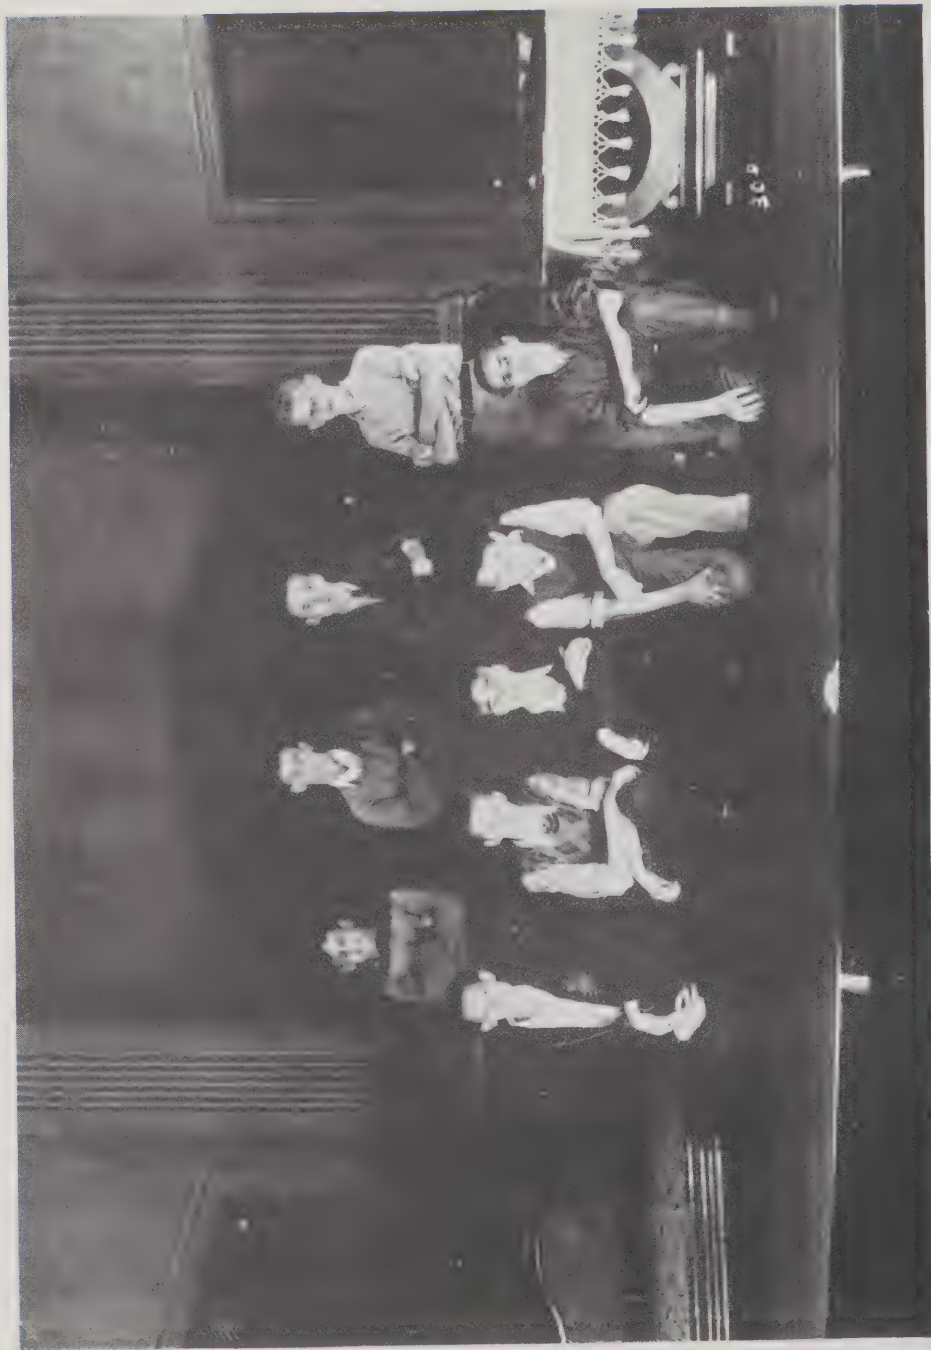

In the best game of the year Medford defeated Everett 9—8. Twice the Medford team came from behind to win the game. “Pizip” Cervone tied the game up with his home run, and John Hardy drove in the winning tally.

The undefeated Medford team next defeated Revere 7—4, winning handily behind “Joe” Manzo’s great pitching.

In what was supposed to be the most difficult game of the year, Medford easily triumphed over Somerville 12—6. Medford hopped off to a seven run lead in the first inning and was never in danger thereafter. Carlo Sarno, Medford’s “king of swat,” banged out his third home run of the year in this game.

Medford’s first defeat in eight came at the hands of Chelsea whom they had previously defeated. The Blue and White lost not only the ballgame but the services of its great second baseman, “Art” Johns, who broke his leg in this game.

Because “The Blue and White” went to press before the remaining games were played, their accounts can not be printed.

STAGE HANDS, "SECRET SERVICE"

Senior Episode

The Carpenter was speaking with Stark realism to the Taylor and the Baker who were sitting in a Brown Hall in the rear of King's Hotel in Ireland.

Two or three Weeks ago on a clear Knight in March when I was walking through the Greenwood, I suddenly heard a sound which made me tremble.

"Where shall I put the Carr?" questioned a Solomen Noble voice.

"Turner around and Parker just below the hill in the Glynn," came the reply.

Quickly I hid behind a tree. By the slight Russell and crackle of twigs and old pine needles on the ground, I realized that one of the men had gone to hide the Carr. As the Mann, whose voice had given reply, advanced into the clear Field in the midst of the wood, I saw that he had as a companion, a fellow who looked as if he might possibly have a lot of Pride. Together they were Resselar-ing with and trying to drag across the earth a large and heavy Green bag. Upon thrusting a Spear in its side a stream of Nichols, Golding Barr pins, and Cooper pennies poured forth. There beneath the moonlight Rose the enchanting tones of tinkling metal through the frosty Irish Ayer.

"Mayo, may I have some of the loot," pleaded the companion, "before you Berry it?"

"No, Leavitt alone," growled the leader.

I watched for one half an hour until the treasurer was buried. Recovering from the shock I received on beholding such a sight, I fled in Dyer haste to the hotel."
