DANIEL E. SULLIVAN
President

We have been most fortunate in our choice of class officers in the past three years. In carrying out the duties as our leaders they have shown themselves to be most competent and efficient.

Each year they faithfully saw that we paid our class dues.

Our Sophomore class planned Stardust, our Sophomore Hop. At this dinner dance everyone enjoyed dancing and, during the delicious turkey dinner, just listening to the music of Felix Catino.

In March of our Junior year we enjoyed A la Parisienne. Again we danced and dined to the music of Felix Catino.

Due to the combined efforts of our class officers, the advisory council, and our advisers, the several big events of our Senior year were a great success. At our Senior Prom, Moon Over Miami, held on January 17, in the Armory, we danced to Tony Barry and his orchestra. Favors were given to the girls. And who can ever forget all our Senior Week activities, especially our Senior Reception? This week topped off three of the best years of our lives.

Quintessence Of Life

It has been said that a man's success is a complete function of his ability and industry —his God-given ingenuity and creativeness combined with his assiduity to accomplish an objective. Yet, what is one man's means of success is not another's. Although each man may know what he wants out of life, he may not always know how to go about achieving it. Each man was, indeed, created for a sole purpose; thus, it is each man's obligation, not only to recognize his purpose, but to manifest completely his intentions to reach his ultimate goal. The fulfillment of man's purpose in life —no matter how infinitesimal his contribution may be—is true success. This is the quintessence of life!

What is the actual key to success? Is it the opportunity to practice brotherhood with our fellow man? Is it tolerance? Is it the ability to realize the fact that today will always be the best day? Considered alone, none of these establishes success; for success to any great degree is a combination of many factors, based, however, in every instance upon three requisites: intense interest in a designated task, attempt over and over again, and failure —only to be followed by further attempt. For the number of attempts is but one greater than the number of failures, while each failure is but one step nearer success.

With this thought in mind man, since his creation, has undertaken seemingly impossible tasks: the invention of the wheel and its adaptation to every-day life; the discovery of the minute atom and its application to power sources; the establishment of a civilization far greater than the world has ever known. Only through diligent effort, perseverance, and unselfish devotion, were these accomplishments possible. In fact, every wondrous thing which mankind has wrought resulted from heartbreaking, exhausting labor. In each instance of success, there first existed a challenge, that of possibility. Each successor met that challenge with foresight and with determination to surmount any barrier in his path. Each made the most of the oftentimes little he had. Each placed the good of others and the benefits which mankind might someday receive above his own general welfare. Indeed, upon hard work depends the sustenance of life itself, and the amount of work consumed by the world is the measure of world progress.

The youth of today now stand before the portals of a world of uncertainty; and, like their forefathers, they too are explorers as they search the unknown, question the unanswerable, and attempt the untried. They are in a position to witness the dawn of a challenging future, knowing that they will soon share in world progression and betterment. They face a future onerously burdened with many problems, yet a future brightened by the thought of inevitable discoveries to be achieved in various fields; in science, the conquest of space and the peaceable application of atomic power; in medicine, effective cures for both cancer and heart disease; in engineering, a trans-oceanic bridge and mile-high structures; in education, more productive methods of teaching; and in government, a peaceful existence through world-wide cooperation. Youth considers no limitations, only possibilities—their imaginations being the source of motivation for new and stimulating endeavors; they are endowed with the faculties necessary to promote new ideas, so important to their future well-being. With the words of former President Roosevelt ringing in their ears, "There is nothing to fear but fear itself!" they eagerly seek the opportunities which await them.

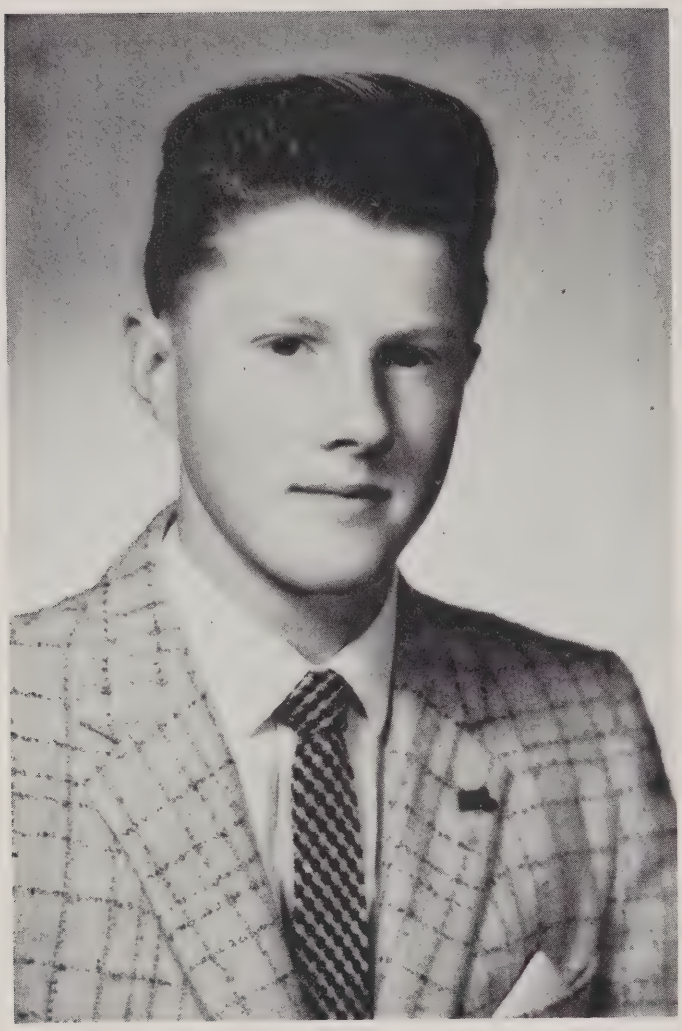

Columbus reached a new and wondrous island off the coast of North America centuries ago; yet, he was incognizant of the vast, fertile, and far more important continent which lay unexplored before him. He had ventured far to prove a theory, and succeeded, but in the end remained satisfied with only the first fruits of his toil. He did not advance further into the unknown to realize the extent and true value of his discovery. So too, everyone is a Columbus, for at some point in everyone's life each person has tasted success—whether it was his first unassisted step, his first audible expression, or his first constructive thought. More fortunate than the great explorer Columbus are those who are not satisfied with their early accomplishments, but who instead continue throughout their lives to develop their natural abilities. It is most important that individuals never cease their endeavors as they take new steps forward, voice new opinions, and originate new thoughts. Truly nothing in this universe remains stationary; everything must either decline or advance to greater heights. It is up to the individual to progress and through continual effort to better the world for all mankind.

Life itself is a river—flowing incessantly, sometimes rising, sometimes falling, often deviating from its proper course, yet always reaching its destination. The tributaries of this river, man's industry in new fields and his exploration of means for a more profitable existence, cause it to flow triumphantly into the harbor of success. This harbor, however, is merely the transient repository of an accumulation of knowledge; it is an opening to the vast ocean of information conserved by civilization through centuries of recognition. It is a point of contemplation upon man's accomplishments which makes his efforts to achieve success more realistic. Just as all living things need water for the continuance of life, so man needs knowledge to quench his insatiable desire to master the complexities of life. Each raindrop of knowledge raises the level of the river of life; while each period of drought—a decrease in the investigation of intellectual and scientific possibilities—lowers the level of the river and slows down its course to the sea. Only through continuous effort, ambition, and adaptability can man reach his destination, ultimate success in life.

By realizing his potentialities as well as his limitations, man has been able to establish a foundation upon which to base later decisions and actions. Influenced by his environment, he has put to use his knowledge gained through study and attempt. Through the fruits of his labors he, in turn, influences those about him. It is the extent of this influence which determines the greatness of his success.

In summation may I quote "What Is Success?" by Grace M. Robertson:

SUCCESS means doing, day by day,
The very best you can,
It's going on, yet taking time
To help your fellow man . . .
To make your mark to reach your goal,
To take your rightful place,
To strive and strive and strive again,
Yet wear a smiling face . . .
To make the most of what you have,
To build and not to lean,
To take what happens with a heart
That's steadfast and serene . . .
It's knowing how to meet success,
To handle joy and sorrow,
Believing in your inmost heart
There's always a tomorrow!
It's keeping on when heart and soul
And courage seem to fail,
Convinced that faith and hope and WORK
are certain to prevail!

The Dangers Of Specialization

JAMES R. SHARKEY, JR.
Essayist

On October fourth of last year man succeeded for the first time in launching an object into outerspace. To the world the news of this history-making event caused a stir of excitement as it gave evidence of the rapid advancement of civilization; to America, however, the feat was especially significant since it brought to focus Russia's tremendous progress in the field of science, progress which had lifted her to a position leading all other nations in scientific achievements. As the Russian satellite, Sputnik, circled in its orbit, it not only gathered data concerning the nature of outerspace but also acted as a stimulant to the American people. In them it created a feeling of awe, mixed with anxiety, as they suddenly realized that America's scientific progress had been slow in comparison with the accelerated Russian advancement.

The main reason for Russia's outstanding scientific accomplishment lies in the fact that she has employed the principle of mass specialization in her educational system. Specialization in the early years of schooling accomplishes two objectives in the race for scientific supremacy. First of all, it is a means of recognizing students who have outstanding abilities in particular areas and offers the opportunity of placing them in advanced courses. Secondly, it equips the average student with an excellent background in basic scientific and mathematical principles so that he will be able to choose his specific field of study after high school graduation and to concentrate his entire efforts in this field immediately upon entering college. By this system Russia has been able to produce men who, possessing a great fund of specialized knowledge with which to work, have discovered new theories and new laws of nature.

Certainly specialization is beneficial to mankind, for it has produced men who have contributed greatly to the happiness and comfort of others. Edison, who experimented in electricity and chemistry from the time he was a boy, invented many devices, such as the phonograph, electric light, and movie projector, all of which have become a part of our daily lives. Einstein, who devoted his life to the study of nuclear physics, derived the formula for converting mass into energy. Experimenting with this formula, scientists found a key that opens the door to a new world of power, the strength of which seems limitless. Thus, by the work and achievement of a few men, specialists in their field, our way of life has been made easier and more enjoyable.

With the passing of time and the advent of new discoveries, the many fields of specialization subdivide and become even more specialized. Therefore, one who wishes to assimilate all the information in a certain field must concentrate his entire efforts in this field. If he does this, however, he loses the opportunity to gain knowledge in other areas of learning. He lacks a background of knowledge without which he is not able to appreciate classic art and literature, to comprehend the history of man's advancement in civilization from his primitive condition of the Stone Age to his complex society of the Atomic Age, or really to understand himself or his fellow man. Furthermore, if he specializes too early, he determines his own career at a time when he has not had enough experience and understanding to do so wisely. Therefore, although early specialization may benefit mankind as a whole, it does not usually offer a life of happiness and enjoyment to the individual.

Acquiring knowledge can be compared to the construction of a building. The most important part of a building and the part constructed first is the foundation. The taller a building, the deeper and stronger must be its foundation, for it is the foundation which supports the weight of the structure and determines its strength. A building with a weak foundation will lean, sway, or even topple to the ground in ruin. So it is in education. One must first acquire knowledge, balanced by study in many and varied subjects. Then, upon this foundation of knowledge one may begin to specialize or build, increasing the height of his knowledge in one particular field. If, however, a person begins to specialize upon too weak a foundation, he will be swayed by the tides of hysteria, lose sight of his goal in life, and become lost in a maze of confusion.

We, as high school students, whether we realize it or not, have been building a foundation of learning during the past three years. Many of us will add to this foundation, strengthening and testing it by four years in further academic study. There will, however, come a time when all of us must complete the foundation and begin to build upon it. The structure which we build will be moulded and shaped by the experiences we encounter, by the relationships we establish with our fellow men, and by our understanding of life and our place in it. All of this will be affected by the background we acquire in high school and in college.

Specialization today is essential as man's sphere of knowledge becomes too complex and too comprehensive for one human mind to absorb; but when specialization is employed as the sole aim of a nation's educational philosophy, it can result in only temporary feats of scientific accomplishment and in ultimate failure to achieve enduring success. In the history of mankind nations are remembered for their philosophical and intellectual achievements rather than for spectacular and materialistic accomplishments, which for a moment cause excitement and temporary honor, but which quickly fade in the minds of men. Ancient Greece, for example, stressing ideal beauty in art and evolving philosophical ideas which still dominate the world, has had a lasting effect on civilization. Rome, on the other hand, materialistic in her thinking, achieved temporary greatness in engineering and in military supremacy. Only structural ruins and the memory of a vast empire testify to her former glory. In a similar way Sputnik, having caused a brief sensation, is now fading into oblivion as other artificial moons rotate in outer space. America in evaluating her educational opportunities must continue to offer courses sound in value and stressing knowledge, truth, and culture. Her goal in education must aim to keep her strong and a leader in world thought; it must regard the welfare of the individual, developing him into a responsible, considerate, and well-integrated member of society.

Lou Scores Our Second T. D.

Football

Medford 18 Watertown 6

Fortune smiled on the Mighty Mustangs as they downed the favored Watertown squad, 18-6, in a tense thriller. After Sullivan's opening 90-yard touchdown on a pass from Paul Hogan, the remainder of the first half was played evenly. Then, in the second half the Mustang volcano erupted. The smaller Medford squad outran, out-blocked, and out-thought the big Watertown opposition. Lou Parella scored on a beautifully executed pass fake from Hogan. With four minutes left to play, the Mustangs began their final drive, climaxed by Carl DeBenidictus' 17-yard plunge up the middle for a T.D. This was the joyous end of a fabulously-played Blue and White game. Doug Collins starred with his running and punting.

Bedford 13 Chelsea 7

Medford, making use of a fine ground attack and the backfield combination of Hogan and DeBenedictus, downed the Red Devils in a heated contest. Both the Mustang touchdowns came in the third period. DeBenedictus, taking the handoff from Hogan, smashed through the Chelsea line for both T.D.'s, receiving excellent blocking from a determined Mustang line.

Medford 26 Weymouth 48

Outplayed in every department but passing, and behind 21-0 at the end of the first quarter, the Blue and White fought back, but only in vain. The passing combination of Hogan to Sullivan clicked for three touchdowns. One of the high points of the game was a 76-yard kickoff return by Lou Perella which resulted in a T.D. Medford showed that it had a fine passing department, completing 6 for 12. Though the Mustangs fought doggedly to win, they were unable to overcome the Weymouth horde.

Medford 20 Newton 27

Behind early in the game 7-0, Medford retaliated and went ahead 20 to 14 at the end of the third quarter. Medford capitalized on a blocked kick, recovered by Charlie Spencer in the Newton end zone. The Mustangs' second T.D. came when Bob McMaster snatched the ball from the hands of an unsuspecting Newton pass receiver and raced 55 yards for a score. Danny Sullivan scored the final Medford touchdown on a pass from Hogan. Unfortunately for Medford in the third quarter, Newton's ground attack began to click. Newton scored two touchdowns, went ahead, and won the game.

Medford 25 Quincy 21

The Mustangs had to come back from behind to beat a strong Quincy team. Trailing 21 to 12 at the end of the third period, the Mustangs began a victorious fourth quarter drive with a touchdown pass from Hogan to DeBenedictus. Taking advantage of a blocked kick, which was recovered on the Quincy 28-yard line, the Mustangs drove over the goal in 5 plays for a T.D.

Medford 7 Haverhill 6

A single point and the hard-playing Lou Parella won this closely fought gridiron clash. Medford's sole T.D. was scored in the second quarter on a 23-yard run by Carl DeBenedictus straight up the middle. Hogan's extra point pass to Charlie Spencer put the Mustangs ahead 7-6. Parella saved the day for the Blue and White in the fourth period when he climbed up the backs of the linemen and blocked a sure Haverhill touchdown pass. It was a good game and a close victory for the Mustangs. Our second half defense was extremely effective.

Medford 14 Malden 19

Hopes soared high for the thousands of Medford rooters as the mightly Mustangs took the lead in the first period, 7-0, on a plunge by DiVencenzo and an extra point kick by Doug Collins. Then, in the second quarter a Malden back broke through the Medford line and ran 59 yards for a T.D. The conversion was good and the game was tied up. Lou Perella sparked the Medford retaliation with a 38-yard end sweep run for a T.D. Collins came through with the extra point, and the Mustangs went ahead 14-13. Up until the fourth quarter the game was very evenly matched. Then, Malden scored. The Mustangs fought back, but two penalties halted their onslaught, and they fell to Malden. Medford 9 Malden Catholic 3

Three stolen bases, a long double by Joe DiMatteo, and two timely singles by Al MacMillan and Mike Franceschi gave Medford 5 runs in the first inning. In the 4th inning Medford added a run on Make Franceschi's single which followed singles by Lou Perella and Paul Hogan. In the fifth, after a walk to Joe DiMatteo and a single by Sal Lentine, Al MacMillan smacked a ball deep into right field. The ball easily cleared the fence for a ground rule double.

Medford added two more runs in the 6th on a single by Mike Franceschi, who had three hits in four times at bat. Lou Perella stood out defensively. In the 2nd inning Lou made a beautiful throw from deep in center field to get a Malden player at the plate. In the 7th inning he made a great catch, running deep into center field. Woody Poffenberger and Lenny White pitched very well, not allowing a Malden runner to cross the plate.

One bright spot in the game was a sparkling play by Owen Veitch on a slow roller to the shortstop. Another bright spot was the excellent pitching Medford received from Bob Celino. The Art Club is composed of those seniors who, at one time, have taken some course in art at the high school.

At Christmas they painted jars with bright colors to be used as Christmas gifts for elderly people. They also made cards which were used in some cases for the same purpose. Posters for the class dances were the products of this group.

The 42 members held a gala party in honor of St. Valentine's Day.

The Business Girls' Club, composed of senior girls in the business course, was re-organized three years ago under the guidance of Miss M. Gertrude Roughsedge after an absence of twelve years. The club is again actively functioning at MHS in meetings held once a month. The purpose was to instruct the girls in the ways of business and to prepare them for a life in the business world. They also played an important part in community life by contributing to the Boston Association for Retarded Children.

The Medford High School Camera Club of the 1957-1958 season was advised by the newly appointed physics instructor, Mr. Marchant. This organization contained sophomores, juniors and seniors who were interested in the camera, its techniques, and the pictures it develops.

The club had many interesting lectures by authorities on the camera, films from the Kodak Industry and a very clever photography contest. Each member who was qualified had the use of a dark room in which he could develop his own negatives. As the successful year came to a close, the Camera Club had its final affair, a banquet.

The French Club, Le Cercle Francais, was very successful during the 1957-1958 season. Our Advisors were responsible for our interesting programs. The requirements for club membership were that the student take at least two years of French and receive an honor mark in the subject.

The Christmas meeting, which always is a great success, commenced with eleven members of the All-Girl Choir singing French Christmas carols. Individual members then gave talks concerning Christmas in France and French customs. The club then joined in singing Christmas carols.

The other meetings were received enthusiastically by everyone, especially the play which was the feature of the March meeting. The year was climaxed by the French Club's annual banquet which was held at a French restaurant.

The Home Economics Club, open to all senior students of Medford High School taking part in courses related to Home Economics, was guided by the Misses Baker and Fuller of the Home Economics Department. Meetings were held monthly. In November the members were delighted to have two interesting professional florists speak to them on the different types of flowers and their arrangement. Other club meetings included guest speakers, films and outings. This group provided a wholesome and educational program for its members throughout the year.

During the year the Italian Club, under the direction of the Misses Bruno and Pietrangelo, sponsored a varied program to further interest in, and increase knowledge of, Italian culture. At the November meeting Dr. Roland Anzilotti, Mayor of Pescia, a small town in northern Italy, spoke about his country and said that it was in his town that the story of Pinocchio was written. He also expressed his appreciation for the donation sent by the Italian Club members of 1953 to pay for a statute of Pinocchio placed at the entrance of a children's park. During the winter meetings, members participated in an Italian play, conducted a panel discussion and held a quiz program. In the spring the club attended an opera and in May closed the season's activities with a banquet.

Junior Classical League

The Junior Classical League is a nation-wide organization for high school advanced Latin students, sponsored by the American Classical League, of which Dr. Van Johnson of Tufts University is the national president. The Medford High School chapter of the Junior Classical League has once again enjoyed a very successful season as one of the most active chapters in Massachusetts. This year we were fortunate enough to have three regional officers from Medford: Irwin Barnette, President; Jeanne Piazza, Vice-President; and Stephen Schoenbaum, Parliamentarian.

This year we were most happy to have Miss Elizabeth Toomajian join Miss Lynch as advisor.

The object of the Junior Classical League is to increase the knowledge of Latin and of Roman culture . . . to provide . . . opportunities for leadership, responsibility, and originality. We of the executive board have tried to accomplish this purpose through our meetings held on the second Tuesday of every month. We have presented a varied schedule of programs, designed to inform, educate, and entertain over 140 members. Quiz programs based on Latin, Roman History, and classical mythology, humorous and educational skits, and initiation ceremony in the form of a Roman slave auction, a play presented completely in Latin, participation in and attendance at the annual convention held this year in Norton, Massachusetts, and our spring beach party and picnic held at a local beach constituted the highlights of this year's busy and profitable season.

This year the organization met on the first Tuesday of each month.

Highlights of the year's programming were the annual Christmas party for underprivileged children at which the chapter was host to twenty-six Medford boys and girls, an Invitational Meeting for the past members of the society, the initiation of the new junior members, and the banquet (outing). Red Cross Canteen

Advisor: Katherine Baker

This group is made up of the girls in the hospital training course. It is not a club and has no officers. Each time an emergency arises, a different girl is chosen to captain the group.

At the Blood Bank the girls are scheduled in groups of four to serve light refreshments to the donors, and they also serve supper to the doctor and his assistants. The girls have a two hour schedule.

At the time of the disaster in South Medford, when the train was wrecked, the Junior Red Cross was very active. Several hundred sandwiches were made, and a canteen was established at St. Clements School. The canteen was active for over nine hours. At nine o'clock, when conditions were under control, they set up a canteen in the emergency fire truck with coffee and doughnuts so that the men who had to work would have refreshments when needed.

This group is organized for service; their duties are never established until an emergency arises.

The Science Club enjoyed its most successful year with a new high in membership. Serving in an advisory capacity was Mr. Cox. The objective of the club is to show its members that science careers offer lucrative opportunities.

To realize this objective, the officers, with Diane as president, planned special programs. Mr. Cangiano, head of the Medford Science Department, delivered a talk on "Science as a Career" which was very interesting. In subsequent meetings there were speakers from Monsanto, the Bell Telephone Company, the Godfrey I. Cabot Company, a leading chemical company, and General Electric. There were also trips to the Ford Motor Company and a research laboratory. In addition to these activities, certain members performed chemical experiments. In these times when science is so important, the Science Club stressed the value of a profession in science.

The Future Teachers of America Club is a newly formed organization among the student body of Medford High School. The club has been under the direction of Miss Rowan, Dean of Girls, and Mr. DeScenza of the mathematics department for the purpose of stimulating further interest in education and making available to the club and others interested material on the teaching profession.

At the first meeting of the club during February fifty of our students enrolled and elected officers. Since then the executive committee has prepared a constitution. By means of field trips to different colleges, guest speakers on education, films on improved methods of teaching, and a variety of other interesting programs the members of the club hope to investigate the many facets of teaching.

A convention at Natick, a beach party, and a banquet were some of the programs for this year.

All-Girl Choir

One of the most rewarding activities at Medford High School, the All-Girl Choir, entertained all in such programs as the Christmas Festival and the beautiful caroling in the corridors during the Yuletide season. At the State Music Festival the choir received its usual superior rating. Many of the members participated in the massed chorus.

With the hard work of rehearsals was some play; a "Country Style Dance" provided fun for them last fall in conjunction with the other musical organizations of the high school.

Special singing groups from the choir have also participated in outside musical engagements.

The 1957-1958 membership boasted the largest enrollment in the history of the organization: 220 girls.

Band

Our Medford High School Band is one of the most outstanding school bands in this section of the country. For over twenty years it has held a first-division rating under the outstanding leadership of Mr. Ralph I. Schoonmaker. It has added much to the atmosphere of our football games and rallies and has done much as a morale booster for our team and spectators.

Just last year the band took a very enjoyable and interesting trip to the nation's capital and New York City.

This hard-working organization deserves everything it gets. Mr. Schoonmaker and the band members should be congratulated for a job well done.

Blue and White

Advisor — John A. Ricker, Jr.

The production of the BLUE AND WHITE, CLASS OF 1958, was the result of the combined efforts of many pupils of the senior class. To divide the many phases of the material into equal work loads several staffs were formed. Each staff had its particular function. From volunteers these groups were selected by Mr. Ricker with the help and advice of several faculty members.

Organizational divisions included the following staff: Literary, Sports, Photography—Candids and Identification—Art, Promotion, Glossies, and Secretarial.

To these several staffs goes the credit for the compilation of all material herein, except for the individual biographies. The Promotion Staff was responsible for the sale of the book.

To the members of the various staffs we extend our gratitude for a job well done.

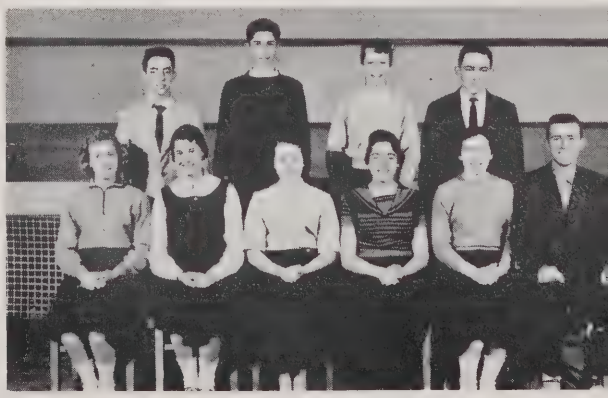

On this page we present three staffs; the others appear in the Foreword.

Staff Heads: Literary — Robert Yassin
Sports — Paul Constantino
Art — Helen Toto
Promotion — John Saladino

Biography Staff

Chairmen: Marilyn Peoples and Linda Todd

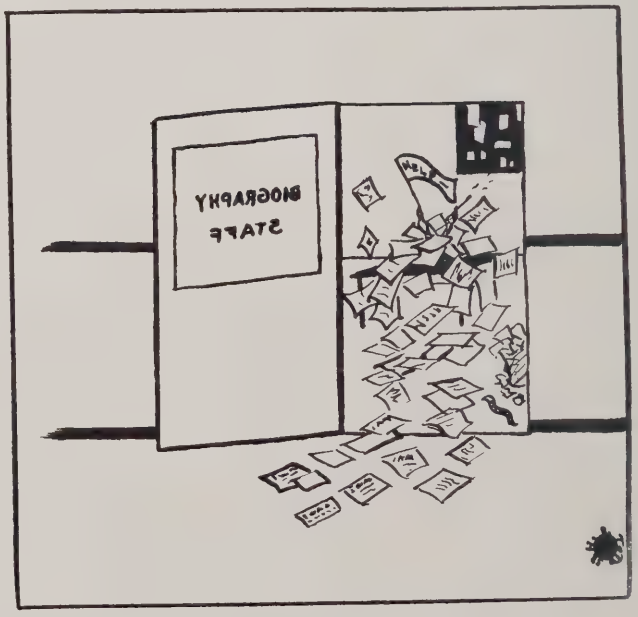

Advisor: Miss Marion R. Daggett

Under the conscientious and capable guidance of Miss Marion Daggett, teacher of English, the fifteen girls on the Biography Staff compiled all the biographies which appear in this book. The task required many weeks of assiduous work on the part of the staff, for the material had to be solicited, compiled, checked and double checked. We of the Class of 1958 owe a great deal to the members of this staff, and for their meticulous work we sincerely thank them.

Members of the staff, chosen by Mr. Ricker and Miss Daggett with the help of other teachers and advisors, include Marion Ahern, Dorothea Brown, Joan Deloia, Lana Howes, Sheila Fishbein, Maureen Fama, Ruth Lenox, Diane Kline, Judith Olans, J. MacLean, Lucille Myles, Sandra Reny, Marilyn Peoples, Anne Spera and Linda Todd.

Marilyn Peoples and Linda Todd, Chairmen of the staff, were especially effective in the organization of their work.

Again, thank you, girls.

Cheerleaders

Despite weather conditions, Medford High's eighteen vivacious cheerleaders were present to cheer their Mustangs on to victory. With much skill and precision, derived from long hours of practice, they led the many loyal Mustang fans in cheering not only for the football team, but also for the soccer, basketball, and hockey teams as well. They also entered competitions, in which they received high ratings. Another activity of theirs was the presentation of "Football Hero" in the annual Talent Show, in which they appeared in authentic football attire.

House Of Delegates

Advisor: Edwin F. Pidgeon

Each year one student from every homeroom is elected to serve as a member of the House of Delegates. His responsibility is to present any helpful suggestions from his classmates to the House. If the suggestion is approved, it then goes before the Student Cabinet for consideration. If the Cabinet approves, the matter is forwarded to the headmaster for final consideration.

The members of the House of Delegates work cooperatively with Mr. Pidgeon, their advisor, in order to do their best in maintaining the high ideals of Medford High School. They efficiently promote the sale of Prom and Talent Show tickets and aid in the success of other school functions.

Advisor: Miss Katherine L. Baker

In the junior year one boy and one girl from each home room were elected by their classmates to take part in the Senior Graduation and Class Day Exercises as Junior Marshals and Ushers. These Marshals and Ushers certainly added a great deal of pomp and ceremony to the colorful Senior Week as they took part in the Senior Reception, Class Day, and Graduation Night. Defying the tradition of carrying ivy, our Marshals carried crooks decorated with flowers and wore dresses of various pastels for the Senior Week festivities. The Ushers were in white dinner jackets. Being a Junior Marshal or Usher was an honor that the elected students will long remember.

Under the supervision of Miss Hardy, the girls' duties include arranging books, making out library permit slips, keeping records of overdue books and giving information to students seeking books. Seniors on the staff are Ann Marie Barry, Camille D'Agostino, Diane Gorman, Kathleen LeBreton, Ruth Lenox, Sally McConnell, Anne Mazenkas, Phyllis Tenovsky and Mary Lou Walker.

The Protective Department of Medford High School is composed of a group of girls under the leadership of Mr. Edwin F. Pidgeon. It is the duty of these girls to patrol the corridors and be certain that anyone entering the school may do so and to direct people in the high school and answer their questions. In this respect the protective department acts as guides. The girls also are placed at the entrances of the corridors to remind the students when they may and may not enter the various buildings. Talent Show

Climaxing weeks of long, strenuous practice, the tenth Annual Talent Show was presented on November 22, 1957, to an overcapacity crowd in Chevalier Auditorium. The thirty-three acts, including dance lines, soloists, family stunts and group numbers, ran smoothly and rapidly under the various master or mistresses of ceremonies. However, its success would have been impossible without Mr. Edwin F. Pidgeon, faculty advisor, talent scout, producer and director, and his able staff.

As well as socially, the Talent Show was a success financially and the athletic sweater fund was greatly enhanced.

Dance lines featured in the show included ANCHORS AWEIGH, DARK TOWN STRUTTER'S BALL, BUNCH OF SWELLS, VARSITY DRAG, MELODY GIRLS, SUNNY SIDE OF THE STREET, CHARLESTON, SLOW WALK, AND CHEERLEADERS.

Soloists also did a remarkably fine job in contributing to the evening's entertainment. Presenting their wares were Bob Loconto, Maura Murphy, Susan Rush, Patricia Burns, Carol Pedonti, Jean McSweeney, Wayne Hight, Marie Piazza, Margaret Dempsey, Diane Ciampa, Virginia Cogliani and Helen Toto. Several of these acts were song and dance.

Duets and brother and sister acts were prominent in the program, giving a very attractive variety to the show. Among these were Pedonti and Curcio, Smith Brothers, Pennie Sisters, Brophy Sisters, Gawlinski Sisters and Piazza Sisters.

Acts which also lent spice to the merriment were ME AND MY SHADOW, TEDDY BEAR'S PICNIC, FLUORESCENTS, SWEET GEORGIA BROWN and a versatile Band.

The Melvin V. Weldon Vocational Student Council consists of two members from each department, one being a senior and the other a junior. To be a member of the council, one must have and maintain marks of "B" or better. The group was organized to promote better relations between faculty members and students. The council has effectively supervised the lunchroom under the guidance of P. Joseph Corrigan. The council's supervising the lunchroom has eliminated the necessity of constant faculty supervision. They have always been active in the promotion of assemblies, senior banquets and many other projects. The latest of such is the Vocational High School Chorus. Washington-New York Trip

During the April vacation a group of seniors made the annual excursion tour of Washington and New York under the supervision and chaperonage of Mr. Edward Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hobart. The group spent two exciting and hectic days in Washington, touring such notable sights as the Federal Government buildings (including the Capitol, Congressional Library, White House, Blair House, U. S. Treasury and F.B.I. Building) as well as museums and the celebrated Lincoln Memorial, the recently completed Iwo Jima Monument and the Washington Monument, from which they viewed the entire city at night, with its myriads of lights spread out before them.

Before proceeding to glamorous New York, the group visited historic Mount Vernon, home of the great George Washington. The finale of the itinerary was climaxed by visits to the Empire State Building, Radio City Music Hall, and the United Nations Building while in New York; there they stayed at the Taft Hotel, not far from dazzling Times Square. An exhausted but enlightened group of students indeed, filled with memories of unforgettable experiences and loaded down with souvenirs of every description, finally arrived in Boston.

The Pep Club is a newly organized group for girls, formed to arouse interest in the extra cirricular activities. This group is the basis of the cheering section and this year it initiated white sweat shirts with mustangs on the front as their uniforms. Although this was its first year, the club successfully promoted school spirit and added much help to the cheerleaders at the various games. The club is to be congratulated for a job well done.

The Class Poem

by

ELIZABETH M. BROWN

Class Poet

SHELL-HUNTING

I am shell-hunting
The craggy beach, embracing sun and sea,
Has never been more beautiful.
The joyful sea gulls glide in soundless flight
Against a wide, wide sky.
And I am happy.
A glint of mermaid silver in the sand. . . .
I stoop.
A tiny shell all streaked with misty green
And silver nestles at my feet—a fragile thing.
It is already chipped.
I toss it back and then walk on.
I see another—this one flushed with rose and pearl,
Translucent, delicate as Dresden.
I pick it up—its shape imperfect.
And then again I see a purple shell
With undulating lines of sea-washed grey.
It is small . . . I leave it there.
And suddenly I stop.
Slack and empty at my side, the little bag I brought
To hold my shells.
And far behind are those I cast aside,
For flawless they were not.
Ah; foolish one! If I but knew it was the flaw
That made their beauty true.
But it is late. The sea is streaked with yellow now
And black . . . the gulls are gone,
The wind a worried moan. . . .
And I depart.

N.B. This poem was selected as the winning product in a competition among the senior candidates for Class Poet.
