

School to Careers

The Board of Education supports the concept that achieving employability is a fundamental need of every citizen in a democratic society. The schools are responsible for heightening student awareness of the contribution that every area of study offers to career development and the relevance and application of such studies. Specific skill building programs related to certain career pathways, such as business, marketing, consumer and family studies, industrial science and technology, occupational education (multi-oc), home economics education, environmental science, health, auto mechanics, health and hospitality services, will be offered in the home high schools or on the campus of Front Range Community College.

The curriculum and equipment used by students shall relate to the technology and skills, which are current with national and international practices in these career pathways.
