

How to file a Short-Term Disability (STD) claim online

Follow the steps below to start your disability claim request. These instructions also provide information on what to expect during the process – we’re here to help.

Step 1: Notify your supervisor

Please discuss the details regarding your absence within 30 days of your STD:

- The length of your absence and your estimated return-to-work date.
- If you need to be absent from work at one time (continuous) or for shorter periods (intermittent).
- If you’re sick, injured, or pregnant and require a reduced work schedule.
- If you have any potential employer-paid benefits such as PTO, vacation, sick time, other forms of insurance such as Workers Compensation or state paid benefits.

File your STD claim within 14 days after your first day absent from work due to your disability. Please read through all the steps in this guide before starting your claim submission.

Step 4: Communication with MetLife while absent from work

- Your claims specialist will periodically contact you and your health care provider(s) to check-in on you and your health.
- If there's a change in claim status, your claims specialist will contact you by phone and send a letter to outline the change such as an extension or closure.
- If you will be absent from work on an intermittent basis, please continue to tell your claims specialist when you will be absent so that benefits can be paid appropriately.

Returning to work

- You may be contacted by your claims specialist, a nurse clinician, PCS, and/or a vocational rehabilitation consultant to discuss your return-to-work options.
- If you return to work earlier or need to be out longer, call your claims specialist to create a new return to work plan. Also, please call your employer to keep them informed of any changes to your return-to-work date.

If your claim has been denied

- You may have the right to appeal the decision on your claim.
- The decision letter will provide important information about how to file an appeal and the required timeframe.
