Hey Mr. Albizo!

Hope this email finds you well. I just wanted to check in with you, give you some of my life updates, and hear how you're doing as well! I was hoping I could give you a visit when I'm back home but I leave for college on Tuesday morning and it seems like Irvington doesn't start until Wednesday unfortunately.

I finished my last day of my internship today with Lockheed Martin as a Systems Engineer for Cybersecurity at the Eglin AFB in Florida. It was super rewarding and I had such a great time, though the first month or two was a bit hard adjusting since I was by myself in a whole new state hahaha.

Most of my time there was working on quarterly security scans for different boundaries in this training facility for F-35 pilots. I got to dip my toes in PowerShell scripting too.

I think you'll really enjoy this one, though: I got my CompTIA Security+ certification yesterday! I spent about 2-3 months studying for it. I definitely owe a lot to you for introducing certifications and emphasizing the importance of them, as well as always believing in me. Just thought I'd share the good news with you!

Besides that, I got promoted to being a supervisor at my on-campus job in IT. So I'll be training some incoming students to become little-Laurens, hopefully.

Hope you're doing well and can't wait to hear back from you soon!

Thank you,
Lauren [REDACTED]
