

Pet Partners Therapy Animal Program

Some people were born to be doctors, lawyers, or rock stars, and some animals were born to be therapy animals—comforting strangers, building community, and bringing joy to all they visit. The greatest role we can play is giving the animals in our lives the opportunity to share their unconditional love with the people who need it most. Whether or not you have a pet, we can all improve human health and well-being by making therapy animal visits possible—spreading hope and healing to more people.
