Helpful Hits for Supporting Students

Now that report cards are available, here are some helpful tips to help your students grow through this school year:

- Have the student talk to their teacher(s) to review what needs to be done to improve the grade and set up a parent conference with teachers as necessary.
- Have your student follow up with their teachers to make sure all assignments have been turned in.
- Remind your student to study review material prior to taking an assessment, and to ask the teacher to review the assessment after grading for reassessment or test correction options, as applicable.
- Encourage your student to write down assignments, due dates, and upcoming summatives in a planner or electronic calendar.
- Monitor the Home Access Center and Schoology for current grade and academic progress in class.
- Encourage your student to make time in a quiet place to do homework and study each day.
- Have your student request to work with teachers after school, as needed (4:45pm transportation is provided Monday through Thursday).
- Remind your student to lean on their school counselor, the School-Based Health “Wellness” Center, or other supports for strategies to balance school and life together for academic success.
