

MS.ED IN STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES (PRE-K TO 12) AND LITERACY (ALL GRADES)

FREE INFO SESSIONS
DEC. 4 AND DEC. 11 AT 3 PM AND 5 PM

The New York State Department of Education has eliminated the grade bands for teaching Students with Disabilities and Literacy and therefore updated the MS.Ed. in SWD and Literacy.

To reflect the new teacher certification requirements, LIU Hudson is offering a new, certification-compliant 36-credit Master's degree.

Coursework focuses on assessment, differentiated instruction, the science of reading, the development of effective IEPs, and research-based practices for purposes of intervention and inclusion.

This degree offers significant career opportunities and flexibility as both special educators and literacy specialists are in high demand and uniquely qualified to work with students who may face a variety of challenges.

Enrollment is open now and classes begin in January, 2025.
