COUNSELOR'S CORNER

Parents and Students:

The holiday season is a time filled with joy, celebrations, and countless activities, but it can also be overwhelming. Taking time to care for yourself—whether through rest, exercise, or simply saying "no" when needed—is crucial for maintaining balance. Managing stress during this busy time helps preserve your well-being, allowing you to fully enjoy the season and connect with loved ones without burnout. Remember, self-care isn't selfish; it's an essential part of staying healthy and happy during the holidays.
