ROMEO & JULIET

"The Family Feud Tableau was an activity that aimed to advance our knowledge on the different characters in Romeo and Juliet in an interesting and engaging way. It was a way for students to compete with each other for extra credit, and it helped motivate them since many people find that having someone to compete with increases a normally lacking internal motivation. To start, we were separated into three different groups: The Capulets, the Montagues, and the Royals. Next, we were all provided with a very brief description of our characters and had to use the prologue of Romeo and Juliet to portray them accurately and in a way that makes sense. With this information, we had to use simple props, positions, and facial expressions to create a freeze-frame image that tells the basic story of the family we were assigned. This would teach us to work together without one singular person doing all the work and help us to better understand both the characters we portrayed and the characters in the other groups. Overall, it was an activity that most students found entertaining and could serve as a creative outlet for students who normally wouldn't expect it in an English class." Written by Avery Wells

AVIN SHRESTHA, 9TH GRADE

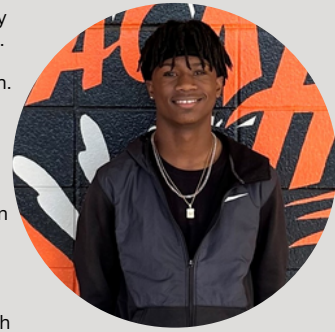

Avin asks incredible questions in class that helps build understanding for all of his peers. He thinks outside of the box while problem solving, and never shies away from a challenge. Avin is a true Harwood Blackhawk!

AVEREY PEREZ, 8TH GRADE

Avery is an exemplary example of a student. He is always polite and prepared to learn. He frequently comes into class early to prepare for the day. In his spare time, he always asks how to help out and has even taken to organizing my calculators and picking up trash without being asked. Avery is friendly with his peers and helps others when needed.

BRANDON DANNA, 7TH GRADE

Brandon always comes to class prepared, with a positive attitude and ready to learn. He's a natural mathematician and always grasps new concepts after the first try. Brandon is a pleasure to have in class.

HEBA TAZOURA, 9TH GRADE

Heba's academic success can only be outmatched by her sweet nature. She approaches all she does with a gentle and kind presence, yet has a fierceness in her for success. She hasn't met an algebra problem she can't solve! I'm so grateful to get to work with Heba this year.

ARYA SHAKYA, 8TH GRADE

Watching Ari learn algebra this year has been amazing! The way she studies and takes a deeper dive into understanding the "why" of how things work is so refreshing! She demonstrates academic responsibility, not just for today, but for success for years to come!

CHARLOTTE CRUZ, 7TH GRADE

Charlotte consistently excels in all areas of her coursework. Not only is she highly successful academically, Charlotte treats everyone with respect and sets an excellent example for others to follow.
