What is a credential? The attainment of an industry-recognized certification or credential ensures that students graduate from high school globally competitive for work and postsecondary education. An industry-recognized certification or credential helps businesses:

- Save many hours of training time because their new hire is already trained.
- Be confident that the credential holder has already learned a specific set of skills.

An industry-recognized certification or credential helps students:

- Validate their knowledge and skill attainment with an industry-recognized certification.
- Stand out in a field of job applicants.
- Start at a higher salary level.
