

Seeing a provider that is in-network is important for keeping medical costs low. A network is a group of doctors, clinics, hospitals, and other healthcare providers that have contracted with a health plan to provide your care at a lower cost.

NETWORK MATTERS

Whether you need to see a doctor locally or while you travel, don't pay more for care than you should. Before you receive care, it's important to make sure that the doctor and facility (e.g. hospital, clinic, outpatient center) are in-network. Staying in-network means quality care at a lower cost for you. If you see a provider or go to a facility that's not in your plan's network, you'll pay more of — maybe even all — the cost of that care.
