World History Cultures Accelerated Course Syllabus

Updated: June 2024

Course Overview:

Throughout this full-year course, students will examine political, economic, cultural, social, and technological developments across a variety of geographic regions, including Europe, East Asia, the Middle East, Africa, and the Americas over four units of study. The class strives to meet the New Jersey Student Learning Standards' mission of providing learners with the opportunity of inquiry based learning and helps provide "learners with the knowledge, skills, attitudes, and perspectives needed to become active, informed, and contributing members of local, state, national, and global communities."

Class time involves teacher-guided lectures, discussions, collaborative learning activities, problem solving activities, writing activities, creative projects, and ties to the modern day through current events. Emphasis will be placed upon the development of the skills needed to succeed in the future, such as organization, study skills, time management, and public speaking.

The course content below follows the New Jersey Student Learning Standards for Social Studies.

Course Expectations and Skills

1. Develop literacy in civics as it is reflected in the governmental systems of global history.
2. Actively engage in studying current worldly events.
3. Consider multiple perspectives to evaluate issues of the past and today.
4. Analyze and interpret historical events of the past in light of contemporary history.
5. Develop critical thinking skills, which enable students to function as lifelong learners and to examine and evaluate issues of importance to the modern world.
6. Develop skills in reading comprehension, research, communication and technology.
7. Gain practice to succeed on standardized testing such as ACT, SAT, and NJSLA.
8. Maintain an organized notebook or portfolio of notes and work collected throughout the year.
9. Utilize technology to refine 21st century skills through database research and multimedia presentations.
10. Develop skills needed to be an active and contributing citizen in a diverse society.

World History Cultures Accelerated Unit #1

Italian Renaissance - Absolutism

Updated: June 2024

Unit Overview:

This unit is designed with respect to the modern day to educate students on the Italian Renaissance to the rise of Absolute Monarchs from 1300 - 1796. Renaissance, literally meaning rebirth, was a period of rebirth for art, religion, and government. Beginning in Italy, the Renaissance was funded by the wealthy Medici family whose money helped Florence to flourish. Philosophy began to center around Humanism, which encouraged individuals to strive to be educated in the classical arts, literature, and science. It looked for realism and human emotion in art and celebrated the need for comfort riches and beauty in society. This was a stark contrast from the teachings of the powerful Catholic Church, who preached a life of simplicity, strict obedience, and devotion to the church.

In a society where most of the population was illiterate, the people relied on clergy members who had power and responsibility to translate texts for them. Arguably the most important invention of all time, the printing press revolutionized the way text was reproduced, making it more accessible to Europe's population. When Martin Luther challenges the credibility of the Catholic Church, the printing press plays an integral part in spreading his 95 Theses, or grievances, against the church.

States began to form across Europe and Asia as feudalism declined, religion united groups of individuals, and absolute monarchs established control in the name of God. State building refers to the creation of political structures, institutional consolidation, and stabilization of societal groups to develop nations around the world. With the formation of states, economies grew and fueled the age of exploration for their nation to achieve the three G's: God, glory, and gold. During the age of exploration, many explorers traversed the world for their own benefit, but in the name of a certain country. These nations will claim the new lands their explorers find as their own and build empires that will span multiple continents. By conquering new land for their empires, these nations prospered by obtaining new foods, plants, animals, and wealth. However, the lands colonized by these empires will suffer with disease, slavery, political instability, culture annihilation, and economic decline. This will create and establish the Triangle Trade from the Old World to the New World.

As these empires flourished with their newly obtained resources from their colonized lands, absolute monarchs became stronger, more powerful, and took complete control of every aspect of their empire. The rulers and nobility of these empires will prosper, but everyone else in society will suffer. The end of this unit will lay the foundation for our next unit where society will challenge the authority of these Absolute Monarchs, begin to develop new ways of thinking, and the creation of new governments.

World History Cultures Accelerated Unit #2

Scientific Revolution - World War One

Updated: June 2024

Unit Overview:

This unit is designed with respect to the modern day to educate students on the Scientific Revolution to the First World War from 1500 - 1918. The questioning spirit that fueled the Italian Renaissance, Protestant Reformation, and exploration inspired citizens to begin to question themselves, God, and the government. This age of revolutions will cause people to begin to ask 'why?'. The questioning spirit of the Scientific Revolution leads to a philosophical revolution known as the enlightenment. Where people begin to discuss new ideas about human nature, liberty, and equality, which drives independence movements around the world.

Revolutions like the Enlightenment and the American Revolution inspired the French Revolution. The majority of the population in France was starving, poor, and paying all of the countries the taxes. However, the rich lived lavishly and did not pay taxes. This caused a bloody revolution led by the people, for the people. The execution of the French King 'Louis XVI' marks the end of absolute monarchy in France and the beginning of a new non-monarchical government.

The previous revolutions lead directly to the Industrial Revolution. This revolution was a milestone for humanity and will have immediate and long term effects on all societies. Industrialization caused massive population movements, an increased need for raw materials, urbanization, and the development of complex economic systems. Although the Industrial Revolution began in the 1700s with the British Empire, not all countries became industrialized right away due to the necessary resources in order to have this revolution.

The nations that did industrialize, embarked on a competitive race for political and economic control over large regions of the world in what would become known as New Imperialism. These industrialized nations used their strong armies and navies to colonize many parts of the world that were not industrialized. This gave them access to more raw materials and a larger workforce. During this time period, many Western powers divided Africa, colonized large areas of Asia and Latin America, with little concern about how their actions would affect the native people of these lands. This global competition for political and economic control by these Western States created a sense of Nationalism within their countries and the colonized ones as well. This belief of superiority was fueled by new ideas from revolutions and new imperialism. Nationalism played a crucial role when uniting and dividing people.

The rise of imperialization and militarism, the creation of alliances, and an intense sense of nationalism led to World War One. Two alliances formed with many global powers on opposing sides ready to die for their country. The creation of new military technology led to increased levels of wartime casualties and a stalemate to set in. This world war will not be over by Christmas, but rather last four long years. World War I was the world's first total war, in which governments used a variety of strategies, including political propaganda, art, media, and intensified forms of nationalism to mobilize all citizens for the war effort. After four long years not much ground was gained. However, the death toll continued to rise, economies began to crumble, and society was tired of this war. The Treaty of Versailles was signed, marking the official end to World War I. The end of this unit will lay the foundation for our next unit where society will turn towards dictatorships and they will collide with opposing political ideologies, sparking the Second World War.

Rise of Dictators - World War II

Updated: June 2024

Unit Overview:

This unit is designed with respect to the modern day to educate students on the effects of the Treaty of Versailles to the end of World War II from 1918 - 1945. The Treaty of Versailles was designed to create and maintain peace, help build governments in Europe, create new countries, and help restore the global economy. The conditions of this treaty were not favorable for all of the parties involved, but provided world peace. It had politically, economically, socially, and geographically affected the entire world. The United States entered a time of economic prosperity while most of Europe and some of Asia attempted to recover from World War One. In 1929, America had an economic collapse known as 'Black Tuesday'. At this time, most of Europe relied heavily on the U.S. economy because Europe's economy was not fully rebuilt/reestablished from the war. This economic collapse caused the rest of the Western industrialized world to spiral economically downward into what is known as the Great Depression (1929). This economic collapse impacted every nation and affected a country's most vulnerable citizens, such as children, the elderly, and those subject to discrimination.

As the Great Depression continued to impact countries around the world, many people lost their jobs, houses, family, and life. These citizens felt as though their government did not provide them with the support they needed. It was time for change. Through this desire for change, totalitarian dictators began to rise around Europe and Asia throughout the 1930s. Most notably in Italy, Germany, Japan, Spain and Russia. They promised to deal with the economic depression and provide prosperity to the people. Many used conflict, fear mongering, scapegoating, and territorial expansion as a means of maintaining power. These totalitarian dictators were opposed by many democracies around the world, but in fear of another world war, they appeased the dictators to avoid confrontation.

Appeasement would not work and these two opposing political ideologies collided causing the Second World War. Like the first one, World War II was a total war in which governments used a variety of strategies, including political propaganda, art, media, and intensified forms of nationalism, to mobilize populations (both in the home countries and the colonies or former colonies) for the purpose of waging war. In the case of totalitarian states, they used their ideologies to repress basic freedoms, dominate many aspects of daily life during the course of the conflict, and commit mass atrocities, such as genocide. New military technology and new tactics, including the atomic bomb, fire-bombing, and the waging of "total war" led to the largest number of wartime casualties ever recorded. The end of this unit will lay the foundation for our next unit, where tensions that rose during World War II will cause 45 years of an ideological conflict between the United States and Soviet Union and how the end of this 'Cold War' will lead to the modern era.

Essential Questions

Effects of the Treaty of Versailles

Unit #4

Cold War - Modern Era

Updated: June 2024

Unit Overview:

This unit is designed with respect to the modern day to educate students on the Cold War to the Modern Day from 1945 - present day. When World War Two ended, the allied bond that tied the United States and the Soviet Union together was severed. These two countries no longer put their economic or political differences aside, but instead confronted them on a worldly scale. Afraid of the deadly nuclear technology both had developed at the end of World War Two, the two countries never declared war on each other. Instead, both the U.S. and Soviet Union assembled massive stockpiles of nuclear weapons, causing panic about a global atomic war. Due to this fear, the Cold War became an indirect war with no direct military conflict. Instead of fighting each other directly, both nations settled into a pattern of fighting through proxies. Proxy Wars were not directly fought by the United States or the Soviet Union, but rather instigated by them and fought on their behalf by their alliances within that country. The U.S. and U.S.S.R. would support these proxy wars by providing money, military, technology, and intelligence. These wars took place where colonization happened during the Age of New Imperialism, such as Asia, Africa, and South America. The global competition between the United States and the Soviet Union was not just met on the battlefields of other countries, but also in a competition to be the best scientifically and culturally. As the Cold War tensions died down in the 1980s, the two governments began open discussions to work together and create international peace. Through various treaties, the Cold War became less prominent to the world. Under Mikhail S. Gorbachev, the Soviet Union will democratize. As the U.S.S.R. democratized, many Soviet-bloc countries obtained their independence and the Soviet Union would fall. With the collapse of the Soviet Union, the Cold War was over. The Modern Era began.

Technological advancements from the Cold War allowed the world to become more connected. This new technology helped nations' economies, culture, and communication transcend regional and national borders into the 21st century. This is known as globalization. Today, the world's nations are so tightly linked that the smallest actions of one nation can affect not only themselves, but other countries as well. This can include but not limited to increased wealth, providing goods and services at lower prices, better education, improved healthcare, and raising the standards of living.

However, globalization created many social, environmental, and security issues for the entire world. Globalization put an emphasis on Western Culture causing an increase in individualism, competition, and an emphasis on work and profit. This caused many social issues. These issues are worldly, but can be seen predominantly in weaker developing nations where workers are exploited for cheap labor, work in dangerous working conditions, and practice child labor. Due to globalization, improvements in technology, and growth in the world population threats to the environment have increased drastically. In recent years, some of the most extreme environmental issues have arose, such as climate change, deforestation, and pollution. Globalization also led to an increase in domestic and international security issues. The biggest threats to domestic and international security today are cyberattacks and terrorism. The internet is used by society to store, transfer, and send information from one location to another. For a government this could include money, military information, and infrastructure. If not protected against cyberattacks, a country's economy, military, and stability is at risk. However, terrorism is different from cyberattacks. Terrorism is the use of violence and fear, especially against civilians, by groups of extremists to achieve political goals. The greatest challenges for current and future generations is how to achieve necessary development while also protecting an individual's life, the environment, and the country.

Essential Questions

Enduring Understandings

The Cold War

1. What makes a nation a superpower and is this status a good thing?
2. What were the causes of the Cold War?

Interdisciplinary Connections

English Language Arts

- RI.CR.9–10.1. - Close Reading: Cite a range of thorough textual evidence and make clear and relevant connections, to strongly support an analysis of multiple aspects of what an informational text says explicitly and inferentially, as well as interpretations of the text.
- RI.CI.9–10.2. - Central Idea: Determine one or more central ideas of an informational text and analyze how it is developed and refined over the course of a text, including how it emerges and is shaped by specific details; provide an objective summary of the text.
- RI.IT.9–10.3. - Interaction among Text elements: Analyze how an author unfolds ideas throughout the text, and develops ideas throughout the text, including how an idea or series of ideas or events develop, including the order in which the points are made, how they are introduced and developed, and the connections that are drawn between them.
- RI.TS.9–10.4. - Text structure: Analyze in detail the author’s choices concerning the structure of ideas or claims of a text, and how they are developed and refined by particular sentences, paragraphs, or larger portions of a text (e.g., a section or chapter).
- RI.PP.9–10.5. - Perspective and Purpose: Determine an author’s purpose in a text (including cultural experience and knowledge reflected in text originating outside the United States) and analyze how an author uses rhetorical devices to advance that purpose.
- RI.MF.9–10.6. - Diverse Media and Formats: Analyze, integrate, and evaluate multiple interpretations (e.g., charts, graphs, diagrams, videos) of a single text or text/s presented in different formats (visually, quantitatively) as well as in words in order to address a question or solve a problem.
- RI.AA.9–10.7. - Analysis of Argument: Describe and evaluate the argument and specific claims in an informational text, assessing whether the reasoning is valid and the evidence is relevant and sufficient; identify false statements and reasoning.
- RI.CT.9–10.8. - Comparison of Texts: Analyze and reflect on (e.g., practical knowledge, historical/cultural context, and background knowledge) seminal and informational text of historical and scientific significance, including how they relate in terms of themes and significant concepts.
- W.IW.9-10.2 Write informative/explanatory texts (including the narration of historical events, scientific procedures/ experiments, or technical processes) to examine and convey complex ideas, concepts, and information clearly and accurately through the effective selection, organization, and analysis of content.
- W.AW.9-10.1. Write arguments to support claims in an analysis of substantive topics or texts, using valid reasoning and relevant sufficient textual and non-textual evidence.

- W.WR.9–10.5. Conduct short as well as more sustained research projects to answer a question (including a self-generated question) or solve a problem; narrow or broaden the inquiry when appropriate; synthesize multiple sources on the subject, demonstrating understanding of the subject under investigation.
- W.SE.9–10.6 Gather relevant information from multiple authoritative print and digital sources, using advanced searches effectively; assess the usefulness of each source in answering the research question; integrate information into the text selectively to maintain the flow of ideas, avoiding plagiarism and following a standard format for citation (MLA or APA Style Manuals).
- W.WP.9-10.4. Develop and strengthen writing as needed by planning, revising, editing, rewriting, trying a new approach; sustaining effort to complete complex writing tasks; seeking out feedback and reflecting on personal writing progress; consulting a style manual (such as MLA or APA Style), focusing on addressing what is most significant for a specific purpose and audience.
- W.RW.9–10.7. Write routinely over extended time frames (time for research, reflection, and revision) and shorter time frames (a single sitting or a day or two) for a range of tasks, purposes, and audiences.

Mathematics

- S-ID.C.9: Distinguish between correlation and causation.
- S-IC.A.1: Understand statistics as a process for making inferences about population parameters based on a random sample from that population.
- S-IC.B.6: Evaluate reports based on data (e.g. interrogate study design, data sources, randomization, the way the data are analyzed and displayed, inferences drawn and methods used; identify and explain misleading uses of data; recognize when arguments based on data are flawed).

Science

- HS-PS4-2 Evaluate questions about the advantages of using a digital transmission and storage of information.
- HS-LS2-7 Design, evaluate, and refine a solution for reducing the impacts of human activities on the environment and biodiversity.
- HS-ESS3-1 Construct an explanation based on evidence for how the availability of natural resources, occurrence of natural hazards, and climate change have influenced human activity.

Art

- 1.5.12prof.Cr1a: Use multiple approaches to begin creative endeavors.

Technology and 21st Century Themes & Skills

- 9.4.12.IML.8: Evaluate media sources for point of view, bias, and motivations
- 9.4.12.IML.9: Analyze the decisions creators make to reveal explicit and implicit messages within information and media

Computer Science

- 8.1.12.IC.3: Predict the potential impacts and implications of emerging technologies on larger social, economic, and political structures, using evidence from credible sources.
