

Hello SHMS Families,

Conferences: January quickly arrived and conferences are two weeks away! Wednesday and Thursday, January 22nd and 23rd, we plan to see you in the evening for conferences between 3:15-7:15 PM. Students will be presenting some of their quality work to showcase their effort to you and their advisory teacher. Your son/daughter's second period (advisory) teacher will be reaching out with more specifics next week. Also, our wonderful Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) is working with Scholastic to host a book fair during these evening conferences! Please mark your calendars and be on the lookout for an email via parent square from your child's second period teacher next week. We are looking forward to seeing you again!

5th grade conferences will be January 21, 22, and 23rd, and you can expect an individually scheduled conference with your son/daughter's teacher

Reminder: We ask for your help in monitoring the items students bring to school. Personal items and attire should be school appropriate and supportive to the learning environment. If students are wanting to bring items not related to learning or classroom activities, we urge you to contact us so that we can communicate together to better understand the context. For example, today, some items unrelated to school or learning were given out during lunch which caused conflict on the playground and disruption in the classroom. Any help and monitoring you can provide in this regard is very much appreciated!

If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact us. Go Griz!
