PARENT RIGHTS AND DUTIES

Relating to Employment-Related Transfers

As a parent or legal guardian, you have the right to:

- If a district elects to accept employment-related transfers, a parent or legal guardian may request that their child attend the school district in which the parent/guardian is physically employed. A student admitted to a school district under this law shall be deemed to have complied with the residency requirements for school attendance in that district.
- The district receiving the transfer request is prohibited from ,, denying the request based on race, ethnicity, sex, parental income, academic achievement, disability, or any other arbitrary consideration.
- The district of residence and the district receiving the transfer request may prohibit the transfer if it would have a negative impact on a court order or voluntary suppression plan of desegregation for the district.
- The receiving district can prohibit the transfer if the additional cost of educating the student exceeds the amount of additional state aid received as a result of the transfer.
- The district of residence can prohibit the transfer if the transfer would result in the district exceeding its transfer limits, as specified by law.
- If the transfer request is denied, the law encourages the district Board to communicate in writing with the parents/legal guardians as to the specific reasons for the determination and to ensure that there is an accurate record of the reasons made at the Board meeting.
- Once the student has been admitted to the receiving district under this provision, the student is not required to re-apply in the next school year. The student shall be permitted to attend school in the receiving district through grade 12 if the parent or legal guardian so chooses and if at least one parent or legal guardian of the student continues to be physically employed in the district's boundaries. There is no right to appeal to the County School Board about any denial under this provision

You are encouraged to review the district's governing board policy for further information, additional parent / legal guardian rights and additional requirements of the district, if any.
