A Blaze of Fur... and Meows!

You may have seen this little furball around, meowing around being curious, eating food, or just chilling in a bush. If you didn't know or haven't seen the campus cat, this male cat seemed to have found a home here a few weeks ago. It is now being fed and has been given the name Blaze. While he doesn't necessarily like being around people, if he's curious enough, he'll probably come to you to say hi or just meow and run. If you see Blaze around campus, say hi every once in a while, but please don't touch. You can follow Blaze the cat on Instagram @mcc_blaze_the_cat.

The Phoenixes' Call

Humans of MCEC

Phoenix Spotlight: Jose Espinoza Ambrosio

This week's Humans of MCEC is dedicated to Jose Espinoza Ambrosio, a Junior here at MCEC. When asked why he decided to attend MCEC, he said he wanted to have connections and knowledge, both of which he feels he has gained. Taking many classes relating to business, he hopes to one day get into the business and marketing world where plans to be successful. Jose spoke fondly of his relationship with his English teacher, Ms. Pratt, as she helped him find the programs and classes he needed. Aside from the teacher support he has received, he enjoys the school's environment, and its many great people. Jose has gained much knowledge here, from there's no such thing as a stupid question to learning to be more responsible and managing his procrastination. We hope that Jose attains his dreams, as he wants to attend NC State University or Wake Forest where he will continue to show his Phoenix Pride. #PhoenixPhenoms
