Humans of MCEC

Phoenix Spotlight: Blossum Yang

This week's Humans of MCEC is dedicated to Blossum Yang who is currently a senior here at MCEC. She came to the early college to take advantage of the opportunities presented to her, much like the rest of us. Since arriving here though, Blossum has become known around campus for her sunshiny personality that will put a smile on your face no matter who you are.

The name given to her is a perfectly chosen one.

For a long while now, Blossum has wanted to help people; because of that, she has decided to become a physician where she hopes to help people by diagnosing and treating their injuries and/or illnesses. To achieve this goal, she plans to continue on her path by attending UNC Charlotte, where she will continue to learn more about Biology, Anatomy, etc.

Despite soon leaving and paving her path forward, Blossum has gained many wonderful memories at MCEC. This is one of many places where she feels comfortable, and she could not see herself anywhere else. Being here has allowed her the opportunity to evaluate and better herself by helping her overcome various bad habits she struggled with. A lesson she wants many to know is, if you're willing to start your journey, no matter the difficulty, then it will become much easier over time.

Blossum has been a ray of sunshine since her arrival, and to many she has become a great friend. We all hope she conquers her endeavors and achieves her many goals in life wherever they may take her. #PhoenixPhenoms
