TEACHER - STUDENT BY PETER EATON

Everyone knows what a teacher's pet is. It's a guy or gal who always seems to be trying to flatter the teachers and remind the teacher of homework that's due today that she almost forgot to take up. We don't want to be teacher's pets, but isn't everything teachers do worth noting? Our teachers work hard and do their best to help their students learn. We should show them our respect. Besides, being bearable to a teacher makes them more bearable, too. Establishing a mutual respect between teacher and student is critical in ensuring maximum learning and success in assignments. Plus, when you are on good terms with a college instructor, they are more likely to listen and help solve problems you point out. It is good to start showing respect for your teachers now because when you go on to get a job, you are expected to respect your boss; otherwise, you will be fired. Let's not let that happen and learn to respect our teachers. It's not that difficult.
