

Note from the Head

Behaviour is always a talking point of schools and an important area to get right if schools are going to be a safe and successful learning environments. At Woodlands Park, we try our best to ensure that children's behaviour is appropriate and that everyone is kind and supportive of others. When children's behaviour is a concern, we try and manage it in way that protects the learning and safety of others, whilst also addressing the behaviour using restorative approaches. We do have some children with social emotional needs, who occasionally struggle to regulate their behaviour. When children come home and share behaviour concerns with you, do take time to discuss how some children find aspects of school difficult and, where possible, express empathy and discuss what we can all do to support others.

Big Bird Watch

Last weekend was the national big bird watch weekend. The bird watch is the biggest survey of its kind and encourages people to record what birds come and go in gardens over the period of an hour. Our aptly named Robins class (Year 3), participated in the survey and took to our school field to find out what birds they could see. Mrs Malcom shared their findings in assembly and encouraged other children to get involved. More about the results of the big bird watch can be found on the BBC website.
