Student Spotlight Jamie Bobo

This month, we're excited to shine a light on Jamie Bobo, our fantastic newsletter editor and an all-around amazing student! Jamie is known for her lively spirit and quick sense of humor. When she's not at school, you can find her singing in the choir, spending quality time with her family and friends, or exploring new places. Oh, and did we mention she has a big love for pickles?

Jamie chose to attend CCRC because she wanted to boost her math skills. It was a perfect fit for her to learn and grow, especially since she had been having some struggles with the subject before.

So far, Jamie's experience has been super enlightening! She's picked up loads of new math knowledge, although she admits that writing can sometimes pose a bit of a challenge for her.

For anyone thinking about joining CCRC, Jamie's advice is simple: focus on the subjects that will help you reach your goals. Stay dedicated, and you'll find the success you're looking for!
