Project SEARCH

An employment-focused transition program for students in Farmington Public Schools and surrounding area school districts.

Project | SEARCH®

What is Project SEARCH?

Project SEARCH is a one-year secondary transition educational program for students with developmental disabilities. The goal is competitive and integrated employment.

Project SEARCH combines classroom time provided by Farmington Public Schools with 2–3 separate unpaid internships at Corewell Health Farmington Hills Hospital. This combination of instruction and immersion in the workplace prepares interns to make valuable contributions to employers. Interns gain experience in a variety of settings that align to their interests, abilities, and availability.
