The Asian American Journalists Association (AAJA), Atlanta Chapter would like to invite you to our annual 2025 Student and Early Career Journalism Workshop.

Date: February 22, 2025

Location: CNN Techwood, 1050 Techwood Drive NW, Atlanta 30318 (next to Georgia Tech)

Time: 9am to 4pm

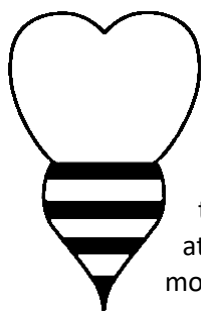

Cost: Free

Schedule of events and sign up link: <https://linktr.ee/AAJAATL>

Our workshops are open to all high school and college students – they don't have to be journalism or AAPI students to attend and it gives them an opportunity to meet and learn essay/article writing, editing, public speaking, reporting and other skills from experienced journalists from CNN, AJC and 11Alive. At the end of the workshop students can visit career booths to find out about internships and get an opportunity to tour the CNN studios and control rooms and learn how a live show is taken to air. Students also receive a certificate of participation from AAJA. The workshop is a full day event with multiple panels and classes.

For details about our workshop and a list of past speakers and events please visit our Eventbrite AAJA Atlanta link: <https://www.eventbrite.com/o/asian-american-journalists-association-atlanta-chapter-14899025199>.

You can also visit the AAJA Website: <https://www.ajja.org/about/>.

The Atlanta Regional Brain Bee is a neuroscience competition open to Georgia middle and high school students ages 13-19 (students from neighboring states that do not host Brain Bees are also welcomed). Our mission is to motivate students to learn about the brain and to inspire them to pursue careers in neuroscience so they can help treat and find cures for brain disorders. There are three tiers to this competition: students compete at their Local Brain Bee (Atlanta), the local winners then compete at the National Brain Bee, and National Brain Bees send one representative to compete at the International Brain Bee (IBB) World Championship. Please feel free to visit the IBB website for more information regarding the competition's history and recent years (<https://www.thebrainbee.org/>).

The Atlanta Regional Brain Bee Competition this year will be held at Emory University on Saturday, March 15th from 9:00AM-1:00PM. The format of the Brain Bee Competition will consist of a preliminary written round (multiple-choice and short answer questions) and a final oral round. To prepare, participants are encouraged to participate in our workshops (February 1st and 15th) led by graduate students from Emory University and Georgia State University. Attending the workshops is NOT a prerequisite for competing in the Brain Bee and students may attend the workshops WITHOUT competing in the Brain Bee. Workshops are $40 per person per workshop however, discounted group rates and tuition assistance is available for students who qualify for the National Free or Reduced Lunch Program at their school. For more information regarding the Atlanta Regional Brain Bee, please visit our website (<https://sites.gsu.edu/brain-bee/>) or feel free to reach out with questions. For more information on dates and how to register, please reference the information below:
