

Hiroshi Ishibashi

Class of 1966

Hiroshi Ishibashi attended Claremont Men's College in California for two years before completing his study at Art Center College of Design in Los Angeles.

He returned to Japan in 1971 and began working for his family's business, the Bridgestone Tire Company. Over the years he was involved in various product development projects for the company. In addition to his work with Bridgestone, he developed the AXIS Design Center, an innovative retail center in Tokyo featuring stores, a photography studio, and art galleries. This interest in art led to his involvement with the Bridgestone Museum in Tokyo and the Ishibashi Museum in Kurume. He has continued his involvement with both museums following his retirement from Bridgestone in 2012.
